WELL MERITED HONOR COMES TO THE "FIGHTING NUTTALLS" ONE RECRUIT WAS SECURED LAST NIGHT

Sergeant Jack Nuttall, Son of John T. Nuttall, Receives the Distinguished Conduct Medal for Bravery—Brother of Gordon Nuttall, Who Was Invalided Home.

The Montreal Star of Saturday publishes a lengthy list of Canadian soldiers who have been awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal, and among those to receive the honor is Sergeant Jack Nuttall of the Tenth Battalion, a St. John boy, and the eldest son of John T. Nuttall, an overseer in the Cornwall cotton mill.

SERGEANT JACK NUTTALL.

Speaking to The Standard last night Mr. Nuttall said he had received word from the Adjutant General in Ottawa on April 24th to the effect that his son, John P. Nuttall, had been wounded through the right arm while engaged in heavy fighting in the north of France and had been admitted to No. 18 General Hospital, Camiers, on April 15th.

Jack Nuttall at the time he was wounded was the sergeant instructor in the Tenth Battalion and was looked on as one of the best instructors in the army. He has a great many friends in St. John who join with the family in their pleasure of hearing of the great honor that has been given him.

Another recruiting meeting was held on the Market Square last night but, as usual, the greater number who stopped and listened to the speakers were not those who could enlist and serve their king and country at the front. The young men listened to the band concert provided by the band of the 115th, and when the appeal for recruits was made drifted away like the mist before the rising sun.

The speakers of the evening were Capt. Sanford of the 115th, and Rev. W. R. Robinson, and both made stirring appeals to the patriotism of the men of Canada, with the result above stated.

John T. Nuttall, the father of the young soldiers, during peace time, drilled for years with the 62nd Fusiliers, holding the rank of sergeant. Ever since the war commenced Mr. Nuttall has been prominent in the work of recruiting and if he could pass the medical examination would quickly don the uniform and fight side by side with his sons.

Both boys went overseas with the first contingent and The Standard has on different occasions printed interesting letters from them, while they were in England and after they got to the firing line. After they left England the two brothers, being in different divisions did not see a great deal of each other.
