Take vacation "Down North"

Two-fifths of Canada in silent exciting northland

"Down North", life is very dif-ferent; just how different is something few Canadians appre-

Two-fifths of Canada lies North of the sixtieth parallel. Yet, in this enormous area of some million or so square miles lives a mere one-fifth of one percent of Canada's population.

In the Northwest Territories this gives a population density of roughly 0.02 persons per square mile, while in the Yukon they are rubbing shoulders at 0.08 persons per square mile. The overall figure for Canada is 8.3 persons per

Most people imagine the North as a permanently frozen, colourless place and find it hardly believable that people can live here in comfort. It is true that the climate tends to be rather extreme, but it is predictable, which is more than one can say for the Maritime climate.

In the winter, temperatures may go as low as 50, 60, or even 70 degrees below zero - not to mention the "lazy winds" that go through you rather than round you. In the summer however, it is not too unusual to have the temperature go as high as the upper 80's - and of course we do have 24 hours of daylight per day for a couple of months in the summer, and we can swim in the shallower lakes which warm up very quickly. One lake at Yellowknife does service as a swimming area in the summer, and is used for stock-car racing on 5 feet of ice

Some sights are unique to the North. Have you ever seen the Aurora Borealis stretching clear across the sky, rustling and moving like gigantic coloured curtains, illuminating the countryside? In the right place at the right time one may watch upwards of 10,000 caribou amble past with the easygoing gait of Irishmen going to a funeral wake.

When travelling in the North one often has difficulty in grasping its immensity. One may fly all day, seeing nothing but the sheer silent, empty land stretching away to the distant horizon.

A line drawn from a point just North-West of Great Bear Lake, South-East to Churchill on Hudsons Bay approximates the Northern limit of the trees. North of the tree-line lies the Barren Grounds: a vast area of countless hills, grey lichen-covered rocks, portent of doom. and long eskers twisting across the landscape like huge veins. rolling in the spring snow like from the government.

Dalhousie graduate student Michael Hewitt has vacationed in the Canadian northland, and reports that life is "very different" there, though just how different, "is something few Canadians appreciate". He describes his companionship with the Canadian Eskimo and captures the feverish activity of geologists, sportsmen, bootleggers and the law at Great Slave Lake. The glow of chilblains and howling dogs have caught Mr. Hewitt's imagination in the North West Territories where he has a Yellowknife address. He plans to head "Down North" once more, this spring.

Summertime in the Great Slave Lake area is a period of feverish activity, with tourists (a strange race) fishing for 50 lb. trout, geologists searching for precious minerals, and the R. C. M. P. looking for bootleggers. The R. C. M. P. usually have the most successful season. Visitors to the North always vow to return, for this is pioneering country in many ways, and one may still see unshaven and highly aromatic characters returning from the bush with a hopeful gleam in their eye. One such prospector once told me of a hard winter he had spent under canvass, and swore that he once had his coffee freeze so fast - the ice was still warm.

When weighing up the pro's and con's of living in the North, two big advantages emerge. First, there is no television, and second, it is too far for my mother-in-law

Other things we go without in the North are traffic congestion, air pollution, Cassius Clay, and A

You may think that I am mad, (a view firmly held by my motherin-law) but next May I am going to hurry back "down North", and this time next year will be basking in the gentle glow of my chilblains, listening to the dogs howling outside.

In the event that this article has aroused your curiosity and you wish to know more, I suggest you purchase a book called, "The Unbelievable Land", edited by I. Smith and published by The Queens Printer at $2.50. The book is beautifully illustrated, and deals with every aspect of the North, from Eskimo's to permafrost. I would suggest however that a visit "in the flesh" has no substitute. If American students can work there in summer, I see no reason why we shouldn't.

'Oh, baby, please don' go./Oh, baby please don' go./Oh, baby, please don' go back to New Orleans/'cause I love you sooo."

Thus, Brownie McGhee and Sonny Terry began their second night at the newly opened Gemini VI, and if their performance has any bearing on the year to come, 1966 should be a satisfying one for the folkies in Halifax. The two filled the evening with good humour, wit, nostalgia, and most important excellent vocal and instrumental blues.

The first song was followed by a bit of humourous reminis. cing about life in the South, "I Don't Want No Cornbread, Peas, and Molasses". As on most of the songs they do, humour is always present. Where the young folk singers of today attack blues with reverence and respect, transforming it into a sacred art, Brownie and Sonny display the fun-loving optimism and love for the past that makes the studious seem boring in comparison. As Pete Seeger said: "You can't learn to be a folk singer by being serious. You have to goof off." They do. Blues is not only the outpouring of sorrow and grief; it is a way of life. Brownie McGhee and Sonny Terry live with a great joie de vivre and they transmit this zest to their audience. The rapport they create with the audience is so complete that one feels like running away to the South just to sample some of that corn bread, peas, and

Garbage is Good

"YOUR TURN TO CURTSY MY TURN TO BOW' A study in Bathos. By Fraser Sutherland

One should frequently read a bad book. And incidentally "bad" is a critical, not a moral evaluation. Fortunately there is no shortage of badly written books;yet there is of those qualifying as genuine suitably smelling garbage. Such a book is "Your Turn to Curtsy My Turn to Bow" by William Goldman, publisher Bantam Books. People used to speak of penny dreadfuls, this is a 50 cent dreadful. Reading an impossibly bad book sharpens one's perception. Genuine garbage improves the reader's critical faculties. The paperback jacket for "Your Turn-" has a girl clutching a pillow beneath her chin; she is staring wistfully into space. A boy lays beside her, one hand on her bare shoulder, the other fingering her beautiful hair. The bedspread is rumpled. A covering comment near their provocative postures says, "The frank and tender portrait of a seventeen year old boy and his initiation into physical love." The publisher's blurbist at

For the uninitiated, the Freesom Singers consist of five negro singers and one white guitarist, who speaks of himself as the "in-tegrator" of the group. The emcee, Mr. Joe King, is a very good interviewer and reporter but his qualities as a master of ceremonies are somewhat limited. He reviewed the concert before it started and was incapable of talking to the Freedom Singers with-out being jokingly insulting and patronizing. However, the actual performance was anything but amateurish. The Freedom Singers wove a spell around the audience that was hard to shake.
