

LAFLEUR BECOMES A YEOMAN SUPERSTAR

BY PETER PUCK

When Guy Lafleur retired from the Habs, the National Hockey League was sad to see him go. But before hockey fans could blink an eyelash, he was back; not playing for Montreal mind you, he changed flags, and began shooting pucks for the New York Rangers. Then he was traded to the Nor-dics, enemy number one of the Habs. Now, 'the flower' of our eye has changed jerseys once again, but not for an NHL team. Guy is currently sliding on the ice of York's very own Ice Palace.

Who would have thought Lafleur would become a Yeoman with number 10 on his back? But it's true. (Believe it or not).

For years, Lafleur felt he lacked a certain kind of education. Since he had some time on his hands, he decided to get a Bachelor's degree in psychology and French. There was only one problem. He didn't pass the French proficiency test. Oh well, I guess it'll have to be a B.A. in psyc, alone.

The very minute after Lafleur was enrolled by the wonderful and efficient Voice Response Enrollment System, (ahum!), President of York, Harriet Arthurstein begged Lafleur to 'try-out' for the hockey team. Try-out! Who the hell asks a mega-super star like Guy Lafleur to try-out for any hockey team? 'Damned if I know,' said Arthurstein.

Lafleur, who is very determined to do well in school, says he's 'taking a, how you say, laid back attitude to de game.' Although he goes to all the practices and gives a full 110 per cent, Lafleur's first priority is making the dean's honour roll. 'Ecole, I mean eu, scool, is very importante to moi, et I have to do dis for myself, eh,' he said, 'but I eu, won't let my funs down.'

So all you flower power hockey fans, get yourself down to the Ice Palace for Lafleur's debut as a Yeoman, on Dec 24. 'Vive 'la fleur'.'

Feeling that the Fine Arts and Athletic departments have been separate for too long, the football Yeomen join our ballet programme in their new collaborative work entitled 'V.P.'s last Hurrah.'
