evolves the happy median line that should carry the aims and obligations of Democracy at its best. I would like to be able to say from experience, as I can in your brother's case, that you have devised a perfect direction, but I believe that you have, and it is the object of this letter to wish you every success in carrying out your plans, for I see that you, yourself, believe in them.

In conclusion I would say that it is a remarkable & happy coincidence, that two brothers should take up the cause of the two greatest ills of modern life; that I feel qualified to congratulate you both, having suffered from each of these terrors, and that your standard of ethics reflects the greatest credit on your early training, showing the value of the instilment of the Golden Rule, which one can see is your guide.
