

Could Not Lie On Her Left Side.

WAS TROUBLED WITH PAIN IN HER HEART FOR SIX YEARS.

Expected Her Friends Would Find Her Dead.

Mrs. C. Bondreau, Campbellton, N.B., was completely cured by

MILBURN'S Heart and Nerve Pills.

She tells of her experience in the following letter: "I was troubled with a pain in my heart and weakness for six years. Most of the time I could not lie on my left side. I consulted a doctor but got no relief and was completely discouraged. I did not think I would live long and expected my friends would find me dead. A friend brought me a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I took them to please her, not thinking they would do me any good. I had not used half the box when I commenced to feel myself getting better and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and can recommend them to all sufferers from heart trouble."

HAS ROMANTIC SIDE

DUTIES OF INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH CONGRESS.

Began Work in London on May 26—Sublime Simplicity of Telegraphy—The World's Nerve Centre—Some of the Recognized Codes—Wonderful Minuteness of Detail—Theme for a Novelist.

Without pomp or circumstance, or any of the advertisement that usually heralds a great national or international gathering, there opens in London to-day (May 26, 1903) one of the greatest and most practical of all international conferences that the world has so far been able to agree upon.

It is a conference that affects more nearly and directly the daily life and bread-and-butter interests of the people of the world than all the Hague peace conferences of other political gatherings the high politicians of the world have dreamed of.

The International Telegraph Conference will be held in the Examination Hall of the Royal Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons, on the Thames Embankment, and will be opened this morning by Mr. Austen Chamberlain, the Postmaster-General.

At this conference every nation in the world civilized enough to be a user of the telegraph—which, of course, means the whole of the civilized world—is represented, with one most notable exception. That exception is the United States of America. But though, for reasons purely technical and capable only of technical explanation, the United States is not directly represented in the conference, it yet fully shares in the effects of all its deliberations.

The International Telegraph Conference discusses and amicably arranges every point of every sort relating to the exchange of telegraphic communications between all the ends and parts of the earth.

If you should wish to travel from London to, say, Manchuria, or to the interior of Argentina or Persia, you would need to spend quite a little time and anxiety in fortifying yourself with the very necessary permits to insure your reaching your destination untroubled by trouble—some customs and military authorities, and to reach it in reasonable time.

Sublime Simplicity.

If you wanted to telegraph to these places you would simply go to the nearest telegraph office—it might be in a grocer's shop at the next corner—and hand in your message in the simple and sublime assurance that it would be delivered to your correspondent in Manchuria or Persia or Argentina within a few hours and without the slightest trouble to you or to him.

This though your message might convey immensely more important news to him than you could carry if you took the long journey yourself.

And you would most likely complain strongly if your telegram were delayed an hour or two, though you in person might be delayed for days at some frontier by some stupid frontier officer.

At these delicate matters of the free passage of the telegraphic correspondence of the world all over the world the International Telegraph Conference arranges. Its work and the result of its work are worthy the pen of the world's greatest novelist.

The conference meets about every five years. The present meeting is two years belated. It should have been held in 1901, which was the golden jubilee year of the establishment of international submarine telegraphy. It is held in turn in the world's great capitals. There were other things of moment to the world occupying the British Empire's capital two years ago. So the conference was postponed.

But though the International Conference meets only once in five years, there exists all the time an international Telegraph Bureau, which the conferences direct, that does for the telegraphic communications of the world what the Hague bureau may do for the peace of the world—when the millennium is a little nearer.

The World's Nerve Centre.

This bureau is located at Bern, Switzerland. It is the nerve centre of the world's telegraphs. It is the the centre of arbitration and medium of amicable arrangement of all the difficulties that arise in the way of the free interchange of telegraphic correspondence between all the ends of the earth. It is a prosaic business office full of infinite poetry.

"Bern," as the bureau is known in every telegraph office in the world, is in closer touch with all the world than are all the world's rulers and politicians.

If revolutionaries in the Balkans cut the wires, or British Generals in South Africa seize the cables, or storms or earthquakes or any other cause interrupt the free flow of the world's telegraphic correspondence, "Bern" is the first to know of it, and "Bern" notifies every telegraph office in the wide world, and immediately sets to work to contrive how best the break may be bridged without offending the national interests or susceptibilities of any nation.

The first duty of every nation is to notify "Bern" of an interruption or alteration in its telegraphic arrangements. The first duty of "Bern" is to notify every other nation.

"Bern" is the centre of everything telegraphic, and "CQ" is the nomenclature of telegraphy, is the circumference of everything.

A message from anywhere addressed to "Bern" finds its way by the quickest route and ahead of every other message to the International Bureau; and a message from Bern addressed simply "CQ" finds its way ahead of every other message to every telegraph office in the wide world.

Recognized Codes.

Every city in the world has its recognized code. London is "LN," New York is "NY," Suva is "SZ."

"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried many medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure."

It is undoubtedly true that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery holds the record for the perfect and permanent cure of indigestion and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a palliative. It cures the cause of disease and builds up the body with solid healthy flesh, not flabby fat.

It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets' have done for me. I am T. M. Palmer, of Peede, Kaufman Co., Texas. "Two years ago I lived two weeks on milk and even that gave me pain. I felt as though I would starve to death. Three doctors attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarrh of the stomach and bowels. They attended me (one at a time) for one year. I stopped taking their medicine and tried other patent medicine; got no better, and I grew so weak and nervous my heart would flutter. I could not do any kind of work. Now I can do my house work very well; am gaining in flesh and strength, and can eat anything I want."

Accept no substitute for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Monte Video is "MV." A message sent from Bern addressed simply "TQ" would quickly find its way to Iquique, far away on the west coast of South America.

But "CQ" means "all stations," and a message from Bern, telling, perhaps, of interruption to West Indian cables because of the eruption at Martinique, or of the stoppage of cipher telegrams to South Africa because of the Boer war, would be passed from one station, and Government, and cable company to another, until it reached every telegraph office in the world.

This is only a minor duty of the International Telegraph Bureau at Bern, but it illustrates the worldwide touch the bureau has of the telegraphic communications of the world. And what Bern does in this detail it also does in every other detail affecting telegraphic correspondence.

The conference of the telegraphic authorities of the world which meets to-day in London will report the result of its deliberations and its decisions to Bern, and on the basis of these decisions Bern will regulate the telegraphic correspondence of the world.

For Bern is very much more than a mere information bureau. It is an international clearing house and arbitration tribunal. It was created in 1858, as "a central office to collect, arrange, and publish information of all kinds relating to international telegraphy; to circulate requests for modifications of tariffs and service regulations; to give notice of changes adopted, and generally to study all subjects and execute all work intrusted to it in the interest of international telegraphy."

Everything relating to the internal telegraph service of the various countries is communicated to Bern, and so to one another; every improvement any country may introduce, all alterations of tariff, opening of new lines and closing of old ones, all about new experiments, or on the times during which offices are open.

As showing the minuteness of detail with which Bern deals, it is interesting to note that Bern says that "between all offices of different States the signal for closing is given by the office belonging to the State whose capital is situated furthest west." This trifling rule illustrates vividly how Bern settles a very possible international quarrel between a Persian operator who may want to hurry home to see his sweetheart and a Russian telegraphist who, at the usual hour of closing, has still on hand a message from a Persian Cannon Street merchant ordering a bale of something, by next steamer, from his Persian agent in Bombay.

Every difficulty of every sort that might arise between nations in the transmission of telegrams is dealt with by Bern.

Some day some great novelist will take Bern as his theme and write a story of fact that will shame all tales of the purely imaginative story teller.

The expenses of the Bern bureau are borne by the respective Governments in the order of their telegraphic importance, as denoted by classes.

It is interesting that in the first class come Great Britain, Germany, the Argentine Republic, Brazil, France, British India, Italy, Russia, and Turkey. Then come Austria, Spain, and Hungary. In the third class are Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Holland, and Roumania.

Denmark and Japan come in the fourth class, with some of the British colonies. Portugal, Greece, and Serbia are in the fifth class, while in the last Persia, Montenegro, and some smaller colonies of European States.—London Express.
