It looks as if a man's back is the center of strength when he is straining to lift or hand a heavy weight. But the center of strength is not the back, but the stomach. There's no strength in the back of a giant if he's starving. All strength is made from food, and food can only be converted into strength when it is perfectly digested and assimilated. When the stomach is diseased, the nutrition of food is lost and physical weakness follows.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It makes men strong and muscular, by enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of the food eaten.

"I suffered from a very obstimate case of dyspepais," writes R. R. Secori, Esqu' of remedies without success, iwas so far gone that I could not bear any solid food on my stomach; left melancholy and depressed. Could not sleep nor work. AN IMPORTANT VOLUNTEER.

Carlos, a Captain in the 24th
Russian Dragons.

An important volunteer who has gone to the front to serve Russia is Don Jaime de Bourbon, the only son of Don Carlos. Don Jaime holds the honorary rank of captain of the 24th
Russian Dragoons, and he telegraphed to the Czar offering his services at the seat of war, an offer which was at once accepted. Don Jaime, who was born in 1870, is said to be a fine soldier, having received - his training in the British and Austrian rmies. He is the pretender to thrones of France and Spain, his father, Don Carlos, having waived his claim in favor of his son. Like his sister Blanche of Castile, Archduchess Leopold Salvator of Austria, he sa nardent automobilist. He is also a skilled aeronaut, and it is mainly because of this that the Czar so gladly accepted his services. It is a curious coincidence that another pretender to the throne of France is serving in the Russian army. This is Frince Louis Bonaparte, who is colonel of the Russian Imperial Guard, now at the front. The sketch shows Don Jaime in the uniform of the Russian Dragoons.

IN ONE GENERATION.

Comparative Divorces Granted in Canad and the United States.

During one generation of thirty-four years—those preceding the year 1901—the divorces granted in Can-ada numbered only sixty-nine. In the United States during the same period the number of divorces was almost seven hundred thousand. The population of the United States has almost seven hundred thousand. The population of the United States has averaged twelve times that of the Dominion, while its divorces were ten thousand times as many.

If divorces in the United States during the time mentioned had been the same per capita as the Dominion there would have been less than two thousand in this country—reduced, in other words, by 668,000.

Where these figures reversed—if Canadians had outnumbered our divorce decrees by ten thousand times, relatively—would we not be looking upon our "Lady of the Snows" with something of the regard bestowed upon the Biblical scarlet woman? Yet no especial opprobrium, nationally speaking, has been attached to our national laxity.

Here a trivial excuse, spider-webby, in its validity, may serve as a pretext for separation. But in Canada it is a much more serious affair. Only one cause, the Scriptural, may be taken as ground for legal separation, and then the matter is not left to the indifferent, insignificant weighing of a local justice of the peace, or even to the courts; it is made the concern of Parliament, both Houses of which must pass the bill which is entered by counsel in behalf of his client.

In addition, a published notice of intention to apply for divorce, giv-

The few varies according to the eminence of the counsel retained, but the average cost, including traveling expenses—for both applicant and accused must appear at Ottawa, the seat of Government, when the bill is heard—Government fee, solicitor and counsel fees and so on, is not less than $500, and oftener reaches $1,000 or more.

If similar stringent laws were in vogue in the United States there would be fewer hasty marriages, at lenst—that fruitful source of grist for the divorce mill.—New York Herald.

Wainwright's Challenge.

Walnwright's Challenge.

At the recent banquet of the Press
Gallery of the House of Commons
the speeches in reply were limited to five ninntes. Nobody overran except Wainwright, who is a great man of the G.T.R., and will be a greater man in the G.T.P., says H.F.G., in Toronto Star. His reminiscences, ranging over forty year: were so spirited that the assemblage begged him to go on. Mr. Wainwright twined wreaths of roses around the G. T.
R. and cast a brilliant horoscope for the Grand Trunk Pacific. He wound up with a challenge to the Hansard
staff to compete with him in a trial of speed in verbatim reporting. Two hundred words a minute, he said,
was his average when he was in form. Two hundred words a minute.
However, Wainwright's was the speech of the evening, and his challenge bids fair to go a-begging. For the first time in many years the C.
P. R. was unrepresented at the banquet. Grippe had laid that good fellow George Ham by the heels. Still, Providence is kind. If Ham was lacking, there was Egg in the salad.

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

They Have Been a Potent Factor In Forming Public Opinion. Even without the personal enlightenment that counts for so much women's clubs have been a potent factor in determining public opinion. As organizations they have realized that "in public country and the country are all the cou lic opinion we are all legislators by our birthright." And in practice they have found that they could actually legislate by means of this power. Leg-islative work is undertaken by all the islative work is undertaken by all the state federations in urging and securing the passage of laws that deal with the conditions of women and children. In Massachusetts, Connecticut and Illinois the state federations have promoted the passage of a bill giving joint and equal parental guardianship to winor children.

The juvenile court law has been secured in California, Illinois, Maryland and Nebraska. The Louisiana federation has worked successfully for the probationary law, and in Texas an in-dustrial school has been established. Laws to raise the standard of public morality, to segregate and classify de-fective and delinquent classes, to se-cure the services of women as factory inspectors, police matrons and on boards of control, are other measures for which women's clubs have suc cessfully worked.—Mrs. Martha E. D. White in Atlantic.

THE NEAT LITTLE DARN.

Way It Was a Pleasure to the Observant Old Lady.

"I love to see a neat little darn in household napery or garments of any kind," said an observant old lady; "It always suggests to me care and neatness and good management. Slovens never darn tidily or take the proverbial stitch in time that saves some useful possession. When I was a little girl, nurse used to tell us a story about a beautiful and rich and altogether de-lightful and desirable young man who liked two sisters. One was much pret-tier and livelier than the other, and naturally he rather preferred her to the quieter sister, but on one unlucky day for her he took a walk with her. Her slipper stuck in the road and came off, and he was horribly shocked to see a great hole in the heel of her stocking. Of course he did not like her after that. And the next day, by a strange coincidence, while walking with the plainer sister, she, too, in some way or other, lost her slipper, and this time he no-ticed the neatest, nicest little darn imaginable on the toe of her stocking and loved her at once and always. Perhaps our nurse's tale has had something to do with my liking for people who darn their things neatly, but I think it shows desirable characteristic," concluded the old lady.

Some Virtues of Louis XIV.

One need not overlook the enormous shortcomings of Louis XIV. as a man and as a king to admit that in some important respects he "tried to do his duty." He was a hardworking soverlyn both in the sphere of administrathat any one is ever convinced by argu-She wears frocks that match her duty." He was a hardworking sovereign both in the sphere of administration and in that social sphere which was, to his mind, no less important.

So courteous that he never passed the poorest women about the palace without lifting his hat, he carried polite consideration to the level of a fine art.
In the way of courteous speech there are few things nobler than his remark
to the great Conde as the old hero was slowly ascending the great marble hair. She does not dye her hair to match her frocks. She knows that when men talk about a woman being good looking they mean that she is well dressed, though they do not know it.

She knows that every real woman is the ideal woman, the fact being that every idea of ideal woman is wholly dependent on the idealist and every woman who is idealized is idealized.— Philadelphia Bulletin.

Curtains of Cheesecloth. irl who likes pretty things room, but has not much means for gratifying her tastes, can make very pretty curtains of cheesecloth. A wide hem turned down the sides and across the bottom and stitched on the machine with red, blue or yellow silk, according to the prevailing color of the room, will give an exceedingly charm-ing effect. The curtains may be looped back with wide bows of taffeta ribbon back with wide bows of taffeta ribbon the same shade as the stitching. If time be abundant, the machine stitching can be replaced by brier work, and a really handsome curtain can be made of this material, which costs only a few cents a yard, by putting a wide border of drawn work inside of the hem. Cheesecloth is woven so loosely that those who are experts in the art of drawn work will find no difficulty at all in doing the work.—Table Talk.

The Stitch in Time.

If you find at night that there is a button gone from any of your garments, sew it on again at once. You will not feel any more like doing it in the morning, neither will it be more convenient. If your collar is even a little soiled remove it from the neck of your dress and baste a clean one in its place before you sleep. Then if you are a little late or hurried in the morning you will be certain of a clean collar. If your gloves are ripped or the least detail of your toilet is ever so little out of order, do not neglect it, thinking no one will notice it. More than you think will notice, though they may not speak to you about it, but they will put you dawn as careless or that worst of all faults in a woman, slovenly.

A Washing fitnt.

When there is a baby in the house there are often little things to be washed out. I find a child's washboard, ten inches long by six inches wide, very useful. It can be placed in the washbowl and is more effective than rubbing between the hands, besides less tiresome. I also find one of use at the kitchen sink for the daily washing of dishwipers and dishcioths.
