

A Pioneer's Story.

WILLIAM HEMSTREET'S HEALTH RENEWED AT SEVENTY.

He Was Afflicted With Illness for a Long Period, and Thought His Days of usefulness were Past—He is Again as Healthy and Robust as He Was Twenty Years Ago.

From the Free Press, Acton, Ont. No man is better known to the people of the county of Halton and Wellington than William Hemstreet, a pioneer and much esteemed resident of Acton. Mr. Hemstreet is a native of this county, having been born at Trafalgar township in 1817. In his younger days Mr. Hemstreet conducted a carrying business. He subsequently engaged in the drying and butchering business, and some twenty-five years ago, owing to his superior knowledge of the value of live stock, he took out a license as an auctioneer.

His calling became at once popular and he was constantly on the road, driving in all kinds of weather, holding auction sales several days a week. Although possessing a strong healthy constitution, he continued exposure and hard work of selling some days for six or eight hours at a stretch, he gradually lost his strength and vigor, and about three years ago found himself a collapsed and worn-out man. In conversation with a reporter of the Free Press he said: "I felt that my days of usefulness were over. My strength had departed, my voice was gone, I was too weak to do work of any kind and I was utterly useless to myself or anyone else. My symptoms were peculiar and baffled several of the best local physicians, who differed very much in their diagnosis. I took their medicines faithfully but to no improvement, resulted. I did not suffer much pain but was a very sick man. Had no appetite, no strength, could not sleep, and both myself and my friends concluded that my days on earth were numbered and that my worn-out system would in a very short time lie down in eternal rest. I had to give up all my business interests."

When Mr. Hemstreet's attention was attracted by the published testimonial of Rev. Mr. Freeman, a minister with whom he was personally acquainted, relating to his restoration to health after using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He was particularly impressed with this testimonial and concluded that these pills must possess singular merit and healing power of Rev. Mr. Freeman would not lend his name to their approbation. Mr. Hemstreet then decided to give them a trial; he first got one box, then three, then half a dozen, and took them regularly. No very marked effects, he says, were noticeable but with characteristic persistence he persevered in their use. By the time twelve or thirteen boxes had been taken, he felt that new blood was coursing through his veins; that he possessed renewed vigor and was able to perform all the duties his business calls demanded.

"For a year I continued to take the pills," he said, "and I was regaining my old time strength and good health and I was determined the cure should be complete and permanent, and I give them the credit for making me the new man I feel myself to be today. As evidence that my recovery is complete I have only to state that since I have conducted a number of auction sales in the open air with perfect ease and with entire satisfaction to my clients. I am as much active in making personal matters public as any one could possibly be, but my long continued illness was so widely known and my recovery has been so marked and satisfactory that I feel that I owe a debt of gratitude to the simple but effective remedy which cured me, and this is why I thus acknowledge it, as well as to show to those who are up in years and in ill-health what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the nerves, thus driving disease from the system. Avoid imitations by insisting that every box you purchase is enclosed in a wrapper bearing the full trade mark, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Choice of Tablets. In purchasing tablets for every day wear, buy from the web, and the half bleached will give you more service than the fully bleached. When you are ready to wash them, pull a thread in the way and cut by the thread to straighten the edges. Turn the hem well under the first time, so that it cannot draw out. The width of the hem is a matter of choice. Tablets do not require any starch until they get old and thin, and then very little. If you wish your table linen to save a nice polish, sprinkle it well and roll tightly and have the iron hot. Fold the cloth lengthwise so the straighter come together before you begin to iron, stretch the sides and ends as they are straight, iron the cloth double until perfectly dry, then fold lengthwise again and iron through the middle, and then fold back and forth. When you remove the tablecloth from the table, be sure to fold in the same crease every time.

The Panster. Whiskey straight makes cracked paths. Every married woman travels under an assumed name. Powder magazines ought to be classed as fish hieratics. The pawnbroker should not be censured for keeping his pledges. Some girls make their gowns, and the gowns of some other girls make them. The chairman of a meeting uses his gavel when he wants rapt attention. It's a sad mistake to judge a man by what he gets instead of by what he earns. No man gets more than he earns.

Pat and his friend Mike had killed a snake in the field. As the tail of the snake continued to oscillate, Pat remarked to his friend: "And is he dead, Mike, do you think?" "Oh, yes, Mike," said Mike, "but he ain't oscillating."

The Good Work is Quickly and Surely Begun.

Paine's Celery Compound is Always Victorious Over the Most Stubborn Diseases.

Some medicines require weeks of use before sufferers can realize any promising results, and the great majority of patients are worthless, and in many cases positively dangerous to use. When weak, broken down, sick and diseased men and women have used Paine's Celery Compound for a single day their doubts vanish, hope fills the heart, and they are added to the tens of thousands that gratefully acclaim the praises of a medicine that truly possesses life-giving virtues.

If your life is in peril from such stubborn and desperate diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, liver complaint, Bright's disease, diabetes, nervous prostration, or ailments resulting from impure blood, and have not yet tried the medicine that has cured others, do not hesitate another hour. Paine's Celery Compound will surely do for you what it has done so well for your friends and neighbors. It will cleanse the blood, drive out lingering rheumatism and neuralgia, banish liver trouble and liver complaint, build up the exhausted nervous system, clear the complexion, give good digestion, healthy sleep and perfect vitality. One bottle promptly begins the good work.

All of These Songs Free. Announcement was made last week of a Sunday World Music Album of ten songs to be issued weekly. Following is the complete list:

"In the shadow of the Carolina Hills," by George Taggart and Max S. Witt, authors of "The Moth and the Flame."

"If All the Girls Were Like You," by Malcolm Williams, author of "My Ann Elder."

"You'll Have to Transfer," by Abe Holzman, composer of "Smoky Smoke," the greatest cakewalk hit of the season.

"Snap-Shut Sal," by Williams and Walker, the two real "roosters" authors of "Don't Like No Cheap Man."

"Tell Mother Not to Worry," by Louis Myll, composer of "Countryside Carnival Cakewalk."

"Prancing Pickaninies," by Max Dreyfus, composer of "A Carolina Cakewalk."

"My Georgia Lady Love," by Sterling Howard and Emmerson, authors of "Hello, My Baby."

"There ain't No Use to Keep on hanging 'Round," by Irving Jones, author of "Get Your Money's Worth."

One song each week for ten weeks. First song published Sept. 3, "In the Shadow of the Carolina Hills."

The entire set is to be given away with ten Sunday World, and will be sent by express, "insurance" and "freight" paid. Maces, Art, Portfolio and Comic Weeklies for 50 cents. Send 50 cents to-day, to-morrow or next week. Don't wait later than next week. This is a most exceptional offer and is only put forth to advertise the great Sunday World. Address, Music Editor, The World, Pulitzer Building, New York.

A local newspaper man met an old German friend a few days ago. "Hullo!" he cried. "How are you?" "Pretty well," said the friend. "How was it by yourself?" "Good," said the newspaper man. "I heard you were quite sick some time ago."

"So I was," said the friend. "I was quite sick. I got me a crate deal of troubles, but by trying I was all right now. My wife died five years ago."

The newspaper man was a little stunned by this sudden clearing of the troubled skies. "So you are a widower?" he somewhat timidly remarked.

"You put I'm a widower," said the friend, "but I don't stay no day any longer. I got my eye on somebody sure. Will you come to my wedding?"

Our First Crusade.

In 1875 a number of women in a little town of Hillsboro, in Ohio, associated themselves together for a unique purpose. They saw that intemperance was devastating homes and ruining families and that generally it was working much social havoc in their little town. They saw, besides, that the ordinary temperance societies, the churches, the politicians, were doing little or nothing to save the town from this detestable curse. So they determined to do what they could. The great fire was kindled in this way. Dr. Dio Lewis had been speaking in the town to a gathering of women, and in the course of his address he had told the story of the misery which his mother, himself and his brothers and sisters had suffered through his father's intemperance; and, further, he told how his mother, a deeply pious woman, had induced a liquor-seller who had been accustomed to supply her husband with drink, not only to refuse to sell him the poison but also to give up the business altogether. Having told this story, Dr. Lewis asked how many of the women present at this meeting would pledge themselves to do with the publicans as his mother had done with this man. Seventy stood up to express their willingness to enter upon a campaign of prayer, for the deliverance of both drunkard and drink-seller. On the 23rd of December these women, with others, met in the Presbyterian church in Hillsboro to devise a plan of campaign; and after they had prayed and taken counsel together, they sallied forth into the streets on their holy mission. The march of seventy devoted women through the streets of a small town on that bleak December day, singing the hymn, "GIVE TO THE WINDS thy fears," presented a spectacle of a solemn and most impressive character. As they reached the various drink-shops they stopped, sang and prayed, standing round the door or kneeling on the curbstones before it. Not only did these ladies sing and pray, but they made direct appeals to the drink-sellers to give up a business far more perilous to themselves than their customers. A considerable portion of them did—strange to say—give up their business; multitudes of drunkards gave up the drink, a profound impression was made on the minds of the public in Hillsboro, and the movement rapidly spread to all the region round about and by and by was taken up by earnest women in other states in the Union.

This came to be known as the whiskey war. Some of its effects were transitory. Enthusiasm, by and by, as its manner is passed away. Many of those who had been rejected over as "reformed" fell back again. Grieved on the part of the liquor-seller and disheartened among his victims resorted their way. Saloons that had been closed were re-opened. The trade flowed in its accustomed channels once more in hardly diminished volume; and the enemies of the temperance reformation comforted each other with the assurance that the anti-whiskey crusade had been but a fiasco. It had "fizzled out," they said, and left nothing. But this is just what it had not done. It had really developed into a higher order of organism. All or almost all each organization of women for the cause of temperance as now exist anywhere on the globe have grown out of it. The Women's Christian Temperance Union of the United States, with its present membership of 200,000, was in it. The British Women's Temperance Association, with its 100,000 members was in it. The Women's Total Abstinence Association of Great Britain, with its large and increasing membership, was also in it. Indeed, all or almost all of the organizations of women for the suppression of intemperance, which now exist throughout the world, have been developed from it.

The Woodstock Sentinel Review states that a Masonic banquet was held in the town of Woodstock, Ontario, and that "the toasts were drunk with cold water and the fact was considered worthy of comment by one of the speakers as indicating the change that is coming over society and societies." Commenting on this statement The Canadian Craftsman may say in the city of Montreal, and we say as throughout the greater part of the Dominion, the best and most prosperous lodges have conducted their banquets without liquor for the past quarter of a century. In Toronto, for instance, St. Andrew's Lodge, the mother lodge of the district, banished liquor from its refreshment table some twenty-five years or more ago, and celebrated its seventy-fifth birthday a few months ago with a banquet equal to anything gotten up by the Craft, without a drop of intoxicating drinks.
