ADVERTISE IN THE EVENING ADVOCATE

House Of Assembly, 1920 Official Proceedings.

TUESDAY, May 18th, 1920.

SIR JOHN CROSBIE (Continued)

I hope that this House will not tumble down about somebody's ears before this thing is got through with. I appeal to the Hon. Mr. Coaker, who is the only hon. gentleman on the government side whom I know personally that I can appeal to, to endeavour to save this salt situation and incidentally save his friends, the fishermen of this country. I also appeal to him, while arranging in act here, to appoint Mr. Cave as Minister of Shipping.

The situation is more serious than dream of. I question if we will have enough of hard coals to keep us going next winter. If a fellow gets up here and has the foresight to make a prophecy as to the outlook for Newfoundland, he is called a pessimist. But what can he do? You cannot close your eyes to the facts. They are and you have got to realise them, whether you are on the government side of the house or the opposition. And like the rest of us on this side of the house I am prepared to put my shoulder to the wheel and save Newfoundland, no matter who is the government of the day, and assist my fellow-men to get out of the hole we have got into, whether through mismanagement or what. If this is not done I may be able to say what is going to happen. Most of those in the government side of the house do not know much about the matter, but I believe the hon. minister of marine and fisheries knows that the statements I have made are absolutely correct.

HON. MINISTER OF MARINE AND FISHERIES—May be you would appreciate a coalition government.

SIR JOHN C. CROSBIE—I wish no coalition government. I had enough of that. I do not wish to be in the government no longer as far as I am personally concerned. But whether in the government or on the opposition I am ready and willing, if it is necessary, to give my services to the country. And I am prepared to do my duty if called upon in a fearless manner because of those who sent me here, and no defiance that will stand before me will prevent me from doing so. I ask the hon. minister of marine and fisheries, as he is the only person in the government who knows anything about the matter, if the salt position to-day is not very serious. I appeal to the hon. gentleman on behalf of the prime minister, on behalf of the government, to get together and try and get the salt position secure or we will not be sure as to what may happen.

I have no unkind word for the acting minister of shipping, Mr. Cave, but I do regret his position. I regret his position as acting minister of shipping, in which position he is not one of the executive council. He has not got the same as his executive brothers and those associated with him. I wish to call the attention of the government to this fact that the shipping question is more serious than they understand. It is of more serious moment than they give credit to. The hon. minister of shipping wants every assistance possible from the executive government to carry out his tasks.

The coastal service requires great consideration and I want them to do something in this matter. I want them to lay upon the table of the house the plans which they suggest to carry out so that I may be able to give them any just criticism which they may deserve. I am waiting for this bill to come before the house so that I may criticise it if necessary. If it is all that can be desired then it will have my hearty support. I appeal to the Prime Minister and Executive Government and their associates and state that the position is really serious and demands immediate attention and the quicker the better, and I prophesied before it will not be far away when the Black Monday which we never dreamt of will be upon us.

Now firstly, as to the salt question, it is essential that sufficient salt be procured, as it is necessary for the fishermen to produce the codfish. Secondly as to coal, some desperate attempt ought to be made to get some steamers to carry coal down here from the Dominion and Scotia Companies if we are to avoid a repetition or more than likely something worse than last winter, which was bad enough for anybody. Thirdly, some extraordinary effort should be made to improve the deplorable coastal service, and the quicker the improvement is made the better. I am awaiting the coming up of the coast bill so that I can criticise it. I hope the leader of the government who, when a member of the Upper House criticised me because of the scandals I was committing as minister of shipping in the national government, will introduce a bill making it legal for Mr. Cave to act in his position according to his own dictates. I appeal to the hon. gentleman to seriously consider this matter before him and it is more serious than can be imagined.

used to be two to fifteen thousand tons used down in Green Bay in the herring industry. On the west coast there is more salt than is required, and there is such a large amount there that some of it is being purchased for consumption down north. But the situation is serious because we had anticipated that a couple of cargoes would arrive before the end of May, as we had sufficient stocks to last till then, but these have not arrived.
