

Ingratitude.

By RUTH CAMERON.

To exact a full return in praise and thanks for every kind deed one does is to nullify the virtue of the gift. But it is only reasonable for a donor to expect a bare acknowledgement of a gift, a display of common courtesy in the manner of receiving it. And it does not seem as if anyone, however careless and ungrateful, could fail to give this much.

And yet you would surely be surprised if you could know how many letters I receive, whose writers complain that even the scantiest courtesy has not been shown by those who have received benefits from them.

For instance, one letter friend says, "Personally, we have not much money, but I make it a rule, if I do not wear a dress more than three or four times in a season, to give it to a person who will make use of it before it goes out of style. It means some trouble. If there is a white yoke or anything that can be washed or cleaned at home, I have that put in order. If it is aingham dress that can go to the tub, and I know the skirt is likely to be too short, I rip out the hem and have the gown washed and ironed before sending it away. (What a contrast to the people who always rip anything of value off a garment before they give it away.) Then I hunt up a suitable box, paper and twine, and either call up the express man or carry the box to the post office. It has irritated me very much to wait indefinitely for some acknowledgement from the person the dress is sent to. It seems to me the least she could do would be to write a postal acknowledging it. As it is, I do not know whether the box has arrived or not. In one case, after sending boxes for several years to a cousin who used the dresses but never acknowledged them in any way, I stopped sending them to her. I suppose that it is mean and petty to feel that you want thanks—but really, all I should ask is common politeness."

Another letter friend who has carried many delicacies into a sick neighbor is seriously inconvenienced because the family fail to return any of the dishes. The writer does not complain of this blatant discourtesy, but merely asks if I think it would be proper for her to request the return of the dishes. Of course it would, and yet, what an unpleasant thing to be obliged to do! I know just how uncomfortable she feels about it. What a reward for her kindness!

Loans often bring a similar reward. Another letter friend tells me that she loaned her college cap and gown to a girl who could not afford to buy one. Of course she was glad to do it. But it did not seem to her too much to expect that the girl should return it when she no longer had any use for it. Several times since then the owner has wanted it for social functions and had to do without it.

"One ungrateful man does an injury to all who are in distress," says an old philosopher.

There was never a truer word spoken. There may be a few high souls who can keep on doing good indefinitely in spite of everything, but the majority of us cannot help feeling our ardor chilled by discourtesy and ingratitude.

Household Notes

To clean lacquered brass, clean with hot olive oil.

To clean pewter, use silver sand and cloudy ammonia.

To clean brass and copper, dip half a lemon in salt.

A rag soaked in paraffin makes an excellent stove polisher.

If you find any moth holes in your good blankets, darn them with white wool.

Panama hats can be cleaned from dust and grime by means of a soft cloth wet in kerosene.

Soak mildew stains a few hours in a weak solution of chloride of lime, then rinse in cold water.

Turpentine has the same whitening cleansing effect that kerosene has on a boiler of clothes.

Every guestroom should have a casket or two to hold stray tumblers and protect polished tables.

The best pad for the baby's crib is an old blanket worn thin. The same thing is good for the ironing board.

Always air your fireless cooker when it is not in use, and occasionally sun it or wash it out with soapy water.

To string beans perfectly, first wash them, then plunge into boiling water for three minutes and drain; then every vestige of string can be removed.

Rub a little flour very lightly over the top of a cake before frosting it, and the frosting will be less likely to run off.

A cloth dipped in 1 part turpentine to 2 of olive oil can be used with great success to rub the piano which needs brightening.

The woman who does her own washing will find it a good idea to wear a pair of rubbers while she stands at the tub.

It is much easier to push back the skin of the nails after washing the hands in very hot water. You will find that they will polish much better, too.

An electric candle in an old-fashioned candlestick is very convenient and pretty. It is especially handy when exploring the recesses of a dark closet.

Always rub a little cold cream well into the skin at the base of the nails at night. This keeps the cuticle soft.

Sherwood Magee.

Red McGhee

Red McGhee says: When home run hits you talk about it's almost sure beyond a doubt, you think o' Baker's drives. But there's another Sleepy town gent whose bat has put a husky dent in a n y pitcher's lives. An' that's Magee of Doon's clan. Don't over-look him. He's some man! He's led the ol' league twice. When he steps up to crowd the plate a pitcher's like to aviate an' shake his knees like dice.

One guy that Magee can hit at will is Rube Marquard who hurls the pill at Magee's Polo grounds. Magee has banged the ol' horsehide so far that he's had time to ride the whole darn way around two times in one game when Marquard was in the box an' workin' hard to earn himself a win. But Marquard ain't the only boob. All pitchers suffer like the duke when Phillies' pride starts in.

In three years, leavin' this one out, Magee has made that four-base clout just thirty-two times, bo: I guess that battin' kind o' limp! I guess Magee's a hasbeen stimp! I guess he's goin' slow! His first name?—Gee, I better tell you more about this hit-smith swell. It's Sherwood. Ain't that grand? An' when the bludgeon he don't yield he plays around in center field. Oh, yes, he bats right hand.

$30 In Cash.

1. $10 will be forwarded to the person sending us the largest number of words obtained from the words "Stafford's Liniment."

2. $10 for the largest number obtained from the words "Stafford's Prescription A."

3. $10 for the largest number obtained from the words "Stafford's Phoradone Cough Cure."

You will have a chance to win the $30 if you follow out the conditions below.

Conditions:—All answers must be accompanied by either of the following:

1. The outside green wrapper obtained from a bottle of Stafford's Liniment.

2. The words "Trial size" cut from the yellow cardboard box of Stafford's Prescription "A."

3. The word Phoradone from the white cardboard box of Stafford's Phoradone Cough Cure.

Either of these three things will do, so as to make your guess a bone dry one.

If you are not able to obtain either of these three preparations in your district, you can forward us (together with your answer) one of the following amounts:

20 cents for Stafford's Liniment.
30 cents for Stafford's Prescription "A."

30 cents for Stafford's Phoradone Cough Cure.

If you want to try to win the $3 prizes you must purchase the 3 preparations.

On receipt of same we will forward the preparations you require by parcel post and your answer will be kept until the 30th day of July (1914) when we will publish the names of the winners.

In the event of two or more persons sending in the same number of words (and those being the highest ones) the one that we receive the first will win the prize.

The names of the Judges of this competition will be published at the same time as we publish the names of the winners.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—We are constantly receiving a numerous quantity of our Liniment circulars for the above competition, these do not count. It is the outside green wrapper that you must send us and not the inside circular.

Grips like the sole of an athlete's shoe

The cross bars on a football player's shoes give him a firm footing—he is able to run, jump, make sharp, quick turns with more assurance and safety.

The specially toughened Safety Bars on Goodrich Tires cut through the film and obtain a firm grip on the road surface—thus preventing the skid from starting. And there's another reason why you should equip with Goodrich Safety Treads—the extra thickness at the point of contact insures extra wear.

The Passing of The Sailing Ship.

Lloyd's Decision.

The secretary of Lloyd's announces that in future the special sign (s) to denote steamers will be discontinued in Lloyd's announcements and publications. The names of steamers will be shown without any distinguishing mark following, but the names of sailing vessels will be indicated by the sign (s.v.).

It is estimated, roughly, that steamship movements represent about 75 per cent. of the total movements of vessels, the remaining 25 per cent. being accounted for sailing ships.

Every year the number of large sailing ships decreases, for many, are wrecked but few are built. The number of motor ships, which are indicated by the sign (m.s.), do not yet represent a notable proportion of the total movements.

While "s.s." meaning originally "screw steamer," is now out of date, such signs as "tw.-sc." (twin-screw) and "qr.-sc." (quadruple-screw) are very useful guides.

So would be a sign to indicate vessels driven by turbine machinery.
