The Heir of Bayneham

—AND—
Lady Hutton's Ward.

CHAPTER IV.

Ten years passed away, and brought with them great changes to Brynmar. Sir Ralph and Lady Erskine slept with their ancestors in the family vault; Lady Hutton was sole mistress of the Hall, and of the large fortune left by her father. She heard once from Magdalen Hurst; and then a silence, deep and unbroken as the silence of death, hid the mother of Lady Hutton's ward from all who had ever known her. The letter was a brief one, stating that she had found her husband, and in accordance with her promise never told him to whom she had confided her child. Hilda had been adopted, she said, by a lady who did not wish her name to be known; she seemed quite indifferent about it, and asked no questions.

Lady Hutton read correctly enough that a broken heart was revealed in every sad word of that letter. Magdalen Hurst sent no address; she asked no questions, and Lady Hutton never heard from her again.

Day by day Lady Hutton grew fonder of her adopted daughter. Hilda was taught to call her mamma, and in every way she was treated as her own child. No expense or trouble was spared in her education; the most accomplished governesses were provided for her. The child spoke French and German fluently; she was a good musician and a skilful artist, but she excelled most in singing. Nature gifted her with a magnificent contralto voice, rich, passionate and full of melody; cultivation and science did her utmost for it.

Once in a way nature is thus kind; she will give a face such as one imagines an angel to wear, and with it she gives a voice that matches the face. She had been thus prodigal to Hilda Hutton.

Brynmar was situated in one of the

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves them the trouble of being prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made and saved only 2¢. Taste pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gives relief at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the sneezing, throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe colds.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

and she rarely allowed her to be long out of her presence.

There were times when Lady Hutton asked herself if she had done quite right. She had taken this young girl from her own natural sphere of life; she had taken her from her parents and brought her up in the midst of luxury and wealth as her own child. Had she done well in trying to alter and shape a human destiny to suit her own purposes? Should she not have been contented and resigned when her great bereavement came? These questions haunted her at intervals; but even had she been wrong it was too late to undo what was done. The cottage from which she had taken her could never again be a home for the graceful, accomplished girl, whose every word and action were full of refinement. The beautiful young peasant-mother could never now take her right place as superior to her child.

It is a serious thing to undertake to shape out or alter a destiny, and so Lady Hutton felt it. But her plans were all arranged; she hoped that Hilda would preserve her beautiful childlike simplicity; nothing like it was ever seen in the great world. As soon as she reached her seventeenth year Lady Hutton intended taking her to London. With her beauty and prospects, there in plenty would surround her, and from them Lady Hutton decided she should choose the noblest and the best; but not one word of these plans did she ever mention to Hilda.

"Her heart will be untouched," thought Lady Hutton; "her fancy will be free. If I use my influence she will marry whom I please, and that will be the most eligible man who presents himself. She will be something different from the general run of young ladies. I shall have no troublesome love affairs with her."

With her talents and wealth Lady Hutton could do much, but she could not control fate. Once, and once only, had the girl asked any questions about her parents.

"Mamma," she said one day to the stately mistress of Brynmar, "I am not your very own daughter, am I?" "Who has been talking such nonsense to you, Hilda?" was the impatient question.

"Elspie, your old housekeeper," replied Hilda. "She says I am your adopted daughter, and that I have another mother living away from here."

"Elspie will leave Brynmar if I hear any more gossiping," said Lady Hutton laughingly. "Listen to me, Hilda. You are my dear adopted child; no one else in this world has any claim upon you. I had a little daughter all my own once, and when she was taken from me you supplied her place. You have no friend but myself."

"Lady Hutton," said the young girl earnestly, "who was my mother? Tell me something of her."

Her fair young face was pale and wistful.

"There is nothing to tell you, my dear," replied Lady Hutton, "she was my friend—we were children together—I adopted you; and surely, Hilda, you want no one else save me?"

MOTHER!

Clean Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if the child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

The curved handle and the curved handle of the Prophy-lactic Tooth Brush make it possible to clean even the backs of the teeth and in between them.

"A Clean Tooth Never Decays"

THE curved handle makes the back teeth about as easy to clean as the front ones. Adult's, youth's, and child's sizes. Always sold in the yellow box. For sale by leading druggists.

Besides twice-a-day brushing of the teeth, it is wise and economical to visit your dentist four times a year for examination and attention, which is sure to be slight.

Yacht Goes Near to Top of World.

The Hon. Arthur Guinness's yacht Fantome II has just returned from a 1000-mile voyage to the northern coast of Spitzbergen, in which she won the distinction, according to experts, of sailing the farthest north ever made by a pleasure yacht.

As reported in the London Times, the yacht left Dover in August with a party of 14 men and women, made several calls at Norwegian ports, cruised among the fjords, and then rounded North Cape, and made for Spitzbergen. At Green harbor, a dismantled wireless station, the party found a man who had lived alone there for two years with a few dogs, and no other persons within several hundred miles.

The Fantome went through the Ice Fjord, where a large quantity of birds were seen; and called at Lockyear, the headquarters of the Spitzbergen coal mining industry, where most of the employees are Scottish, and are able to work only four months of the year. Off the coast of Spitzbergen the Fantome was frequently among ice floes, and the hull had to be protected by fenders. She encountered some heavy gales on the homeward voyage to Aberdeen.

Bees Don't Sting Him.

After a swarm of his own bees had settled on him, P. E. Brown of the post office at Wymeswold, Loughboro, Eng., walked thus laden to a hive, to which he successfully transferred them. Recounting his experience, he said:

"I had no jacket on when they settled on me, and my shirt sleeves were turned up. I shouted to a friend to come and take a photograph, but he dared not come anywhere near me. I then tried to find the queen, and after a few moments I picked her running up to my shoulder."

"I quickly caught her, and then walked to a hive I had previously prepared. I took two good handfuls of bees from my hips and put them at the entrance of the hive with the queen. Then I gave several jumps and shook the bulk of the bees off me, but not for half an hour did I rid myself of all the bees."

Throughout the whole operation I did not receive a single sting.
