School Examination.

The examination of the school in section No. 4, Guelph township, took place on Thursday last. The occasion was of more than ordinary importance from the fact that the teacher, Mr. Black, who enjoys a popularity more universal than most men in similar positions, was about to resign. The attendance of scholars was small, as might be expected at this season of the year, but there more visitors than generally lend their countenance to than generally lend their countenance to an examination. The knowledge of varian examination. The knowledge of various classes in different subjects was tested thoroughly, and the answers demonstrated the diligence of the children, and the snergy and efficiency of the teacher. At the close a copy of Webster's Dictionary Unabridged, and a copy of Scott's poetical works were presented to Mr. Black by the pupils, together with the following address, which was read by Miss Ella Kirkland. The presentation was made by Miss Isabella Hood.

To Mr. John Black: Dear Sir,-We, your affectionate pupils, beg to assure you of our great sorrow at your departure from amongst us after having for so long a time performed the arduous duties of instructor to us. Be assured you have our most earnest pray-ers for your success in the calling to which you may henceforth devote your energies. We would also beg you to accept these books from us as a small token of affection and appreciation of your uniform kindness to us, and receive, dear teacher, at the same time the assurance of our gratitude and esteem.

Mr. Black replied as follows: DEAR PUPILS :- This is but one of the many ways of expressing that affection and respect which you have ever shown. Your dutiful conduct ever manifested towards myself, and your kindness towards each other have contributed much to make the hours I have spent among you happy, and to give me that pleasure which I have always found in teaching you. It is my earnest hope that my labours amongst you may have been blessed in storing your minds with useful information, and making such impres-sions on your character as shall make you loved and respected in after life by all all God's works, to love and believe in him as the All-Wise and All-Good, and Chicago has given over all respects for the Sabbath, and 10,000 men are at work friendsbips and no priting. I again your names which are nowso fam'liar, that this token sha'l serve to bring to recollec-tion the impressions you have made on my heart with more vividness and force,

A runaway occurred to-day which had rele linigh been attended with serious repuls. It appears that Mrs. D. Guthrie, coompanied by her little son and a oung daughter of the Rev. up past the Court House towards Mr. G.
A. Bruce's carriage works, where a waggon was to be attached for the conveyance of some articles that belonged to the engine. The guiding of it is a matter apparently easy. The apparatus is exactly the same, if we except the different material, as that by which the carriages of cripples and invalids are steeren ed. All went well until the engine turned to go off Woolwich st. in order to draw up in front of Mr. Bruce's shop. Here there is a deep gutter, and a crossing has for home by the way of Fergus. As may be seen by the notice elsewhere of a runaway, some of the horses that met it on the street were bally frightened. up past the Court House towards Mr. G.

and I shall guarantée there will be no foul play used; 'he then said he was going to the station to meet them; he came back by and bye, and said the parties had got into the Wellington hotel to see if the parties had got into the Wellington hotel to see if the parties had arrived; brought back word that they had got out of the 'bus before it arrived at the hotel; that he had met them by chance opposite Oakes' hotel—that her husband was with Stevens; they went into Oakes', her husband treating; defendant took a cigar; here Mr. Stevens paid him $3.00 for bringing her to Mr Murphy's; plaintiff saked him who was attending the bar when her husband treated; he said, Mr Oakes' boy; she then asked Mrs. Murphy to send down to Mr Oakes' and see if they were there; the messenger came back with word that neither Hoover nor her husband had been there that night. Next morning plaintiff went to Oakes' hotel and inquired of the landlord's son if they had been there that night; she then went to defendant and told him what Mr Oakes' boy had said; defendant replied that the parties told him to tell her that if she was so stiff as not to come out to the Western station to oblige them, she might go to h—l; she said ane would see more about it, and then left.

Cross-examined by Hoover—Was at the Grand Trunk station when the defendant

Cross-examined by Hooser—Was at the rand Trunk station when the defendant rest spoke to plaintiff about these parties; e said the man was a sandy-whiskered ans, and that the lady who accompanied im went to where plaintiff used to live hile in Guelph, and that he pointed out to her the old sign. On the 16th of July e told her the names of these parties at its Grand Trunk station, Guelph; his ame was Wm. Stevens, and he supposed he lady accompanying him was his wife; at he 18th instant defendant said they anted to see her on particular business, him went to where plaintiff used to live while in Guelph, and that he pointed out to her the old sign. On the 16th of July he told her the names of these parties at the Grand Trunk station, Guelph; his name was Wm. Stevens, and he supposed the lady accompanying him was his wife on the 18th instant defendant said they wanted to see her on particular business, and wished to tell her something to he advantage; they had been to Guelph, but found her not, and while absent wanted defendant to find out where the plaintiff lived. On the 16th, after plaintiff and is want to see her husband, as she had had enough of him betore.

This concluded the evidence, when the magistrate summed up briefly, imposing a fine on the defendant of $10 and $4.65 costs, which he declined paying on the ground that he would appeal, which he according did. So that the case will come up again at the Quarter Sessions. The scene in court baffies desoribetion. The room was crowded to its utmost capacity and occasionally a babble of tongues would bellow forth "Lynch him," others more merciful would say "tar and feather him, and ride him on a "ail" which threats, had it not been for the timely influence of Mr. Strange would most assuredly have been put. In force. The defendant was harrassed in various ways, and at last, finding that things were assuraing a serious aspect, he jumped upon a bench exclaiming that he was in British Dominions and claimed the Queen's protection; then his manly flood-gates of nature gave way, and it was a pitable sight indeed to see him blubberwas in British Dominions and claimed the Queen's protection; then his manly food-gates of nature gave way, and it was a pitable sight indeed to see him blubber-ing out like a little school boy. Parties lay in wait for him during the night but he wisely concluded upon staying in Rockwood till morning, when he left, and as I am told safely arrived in Guelph.

In America, and also abroad, the tendency of literary manifestations, for several years past, has been towards condensation. The New York Commercial Advertiser says that it is notably the case in the newspaper press, daily and weekly, and it is also displaying itself in magnaine literature. The average length of articles has been materially reduced. The newspaper, with short, pungent paragraphs, in which the intelligence that is to be given is boiled down into the fewest possible words, is always preferred to one which stretches its articles out into columns of useless adjectives. People who want to find out what is going on, prefer to do it in as short a time as possible, and from a sheet filled with scores of condensed paragraphs they can learn much more than if the space is devoted to a small number of lengthy articles.

In Louisians it is most likely that the rebets will repudiate the new government and set up another. By one mail this week letters were received giving accounts of over 40 murders, while all over the South the slumbering embers of discord are rapidly being fanned into finne by Seymour and Blair orators, and the conduct of the President in refusing to recognize the new State Governments as valid.
