HOW TO KEEP HEALTH. Don't Worry About Diseases That You Do Not Have.

One of the bast ways to keep in good health is not to think or worry too much about it. If you feel strong and well, don't imagine that some insidious disease may be secretly attacking your constitution. Many people are like the inexperienced traveler who anxiously inquired about the symptoms of seasickness, and how he should know when he had it. One generally knows when he is sick, and frequently many supposably alarming symptoms prove, upon investigation, to be either perfectly natural occurrences or of very slight importance.

npon investigation, to be either perfectly natural occurrences or of very slight importance.

Eat and drink what you desire, as long as it agrees with you. Your stomach knows pretty well what it can digest. Plain, simple food is desirable, as a general thing, but the luxuries of the table, in moderation, will do no harm.

Alcoholic beverages are not fit for habitual use. They are true medicines, and should only be used like any other medicines, and should only be used like any other medicines, and should only be used like any other medicines, and should only be used like any other medicines.

Take all the sleep you can get, but remember that the necessary amount varies greatly for different persons. Some must sleep at least uine hours, while others thrive under six. Only don't rob yourself of what you really need. The "midnight oil" is a terribly expensive illuminant to burn either for purposes of labor or study.

Always treat a common cold with great, respect. Ninety-nine times out of 100 fit will get well anyway, but the 100th cold, if neglected, may lead to bronchitis, puennonia or consumption. It is best to take no such chances.

If you are sick enough to need any medicine at all, beyond the simple remedies no such chances.

If you are sick enough to need any medicine at all, beyond the simple remedies familar to all, you are sick enough to need the attendance of a physician.

By all means take as much exercise as you can, and be in the open air as much as possible. Outdoor life is the natural condition of mankind, and the more one can have of it the better.

Fresh air, sunlight, good and sufficient Fresh air, sunlight, good and sufficient food, pure water, outdoor exercise, temperance in all things and a cheerful disposition are the chief remedies in nature's dispensation tory, and are worth more than all the drugs and medicines of the shops. Dr. Holmes has truly said that if nine-tenths of all medicines, patent, proprietary and otherwise, in the world were poured into the ocean, it would be all the better for mane kind and all the worse for the fishes; and the best physician can do little without good nursing, and thus aid nature in throwing off disease.—[Monthly Bulletin.
