WHAT CAN BE DONE WITH THE INDIES AND BRITISH GUIANA.

INDIES AND BRITISH GUIADA.

Son. John Macdonald Folls of the Treafe of These closures before a Meeting of Merchanics—The Deminsion Can de Great There in Commerce.

Just.as the Board of Trade hanquet represented the wealth; the energy and the commercial enterprise of the province, perhaps it might almost be said, of the Dominion, the gathering at the Board of Trade room is at since the represented the wealth, the energy and the commercial enterprise of the province, perhaps it might almost be said, of the Dominion, the gathering at the Board of Trade room is at since the received the wealth, the energy and the commercial enterprise of this, the Queen City of the West. But though in comparison with that memorable banques, at which expressions of patrioism, not only from the Crown Ministers and the Framiers of the fair Provinces and the great Dominion but also from railway managers and prominens but assumes were so thereing uttered, the attendance was not so great, the sentiments were as patriotic, as far-seeing and as much looking to Chanada's material progress as were those of the eminent gentlemen who diined in the 'Big Glass House 'They were assembled in that spacious hall of the Board of Trade, the walls of which have before now school utterance greatness of our country, and the west in the chair, in introducing Senator Macdonald on the pressit consistent W. D. Matthews, whe was in the chair, in introducing Senator Macdonald on the pressit consistent with the country and the West Indies.

Now it will readily be apparent that the needs of such a population implies for the mere necessaries of life an immense consumption, and, as a consequence, with some fation or nations a very large and a very important trade. "From whence," asked the Senator, "are the islands supplied?" In answering this question he said: Barbadoes draws its supplies.

What we Could Do.

Then the Senator considered these two questions: 1. Are we doing all the trade with these West India Islands which we can do and which we oughs to do ? 2. If not, is it possible to increase it? Before answering these questions he said: I met with nothing Inducements For Material Trade.

The Hon. Senator having enlarged on these points, said: We cannot, of source, be the large consumers of the sugars, the fruits, the cocos and other products of the Wess Indian Colonies that the United States are, by reason of the difference in our population. But we can be purchasers from blem direct of all that we need, and thus make our trade of greater value and of greater importance to But we can be purchasers from them direct of all that we need, and thus make our trade of greater value and of greater importance to them than it has ever yet been. I cannot say whether or not the United States offer greater inducements to these colonies to send their products to these markets than we offer them in order that they may send their products to ours; and bence I cannot be charged with introducing political issues. But I think I may safely add, that it is only reasonable that the West Indian Colonies should find with us, to whom they are so closely allied, inducements at least equal to those which they find with the United States, which stands in the relation to them of a foreign power. That if any disparity exists at present, and such disparity militates against us and in favor of the United States, I do not hesitate to say that it is our duty at the earliest possible moment, and having respect for existing interests, to remove such differences, so that the interests of our customers and not sentiment oughs to be the ground and the only one upon which we ought so look for the trade of these colonies. And indeed without this, fast steamers, cheapened cable communication, regular and efficient postal service would be marvailing.

Be assured thatthe Colonies are ripe for any arrangement which will, be of mutual advantage to them and to us.

In conclusion the hon, gentleman said: Our destiny is in our own, hands and not in the hands at any foreign power, however near or however great, and realizing this fully I feel that if in working, it out we are but true to those great underlying principles of truth and righteousness, which are the guarantees, not only of a unation's prosperty but of a nation's stability; if we are but true to our country and true to ourselves nothing can stand in the way of our progress, sothing could by any possibility retard our davelopment. For then we shall be prosperous and contented at home, and we shall be thoneed and contented at home, and we shall be thoneed and contented that the thanks of this meeting of and are hereby tendered to the Hon. John Macdonald for his able, interesting and instructive report of his recent investigations in the West Indies and British Guinna, and that the same be printed and issued to the members of the Board and to the Boards of Trade of the Dominion. to the Boards of Trade of the Dominion.

Reference was made by the speakers to the proposed scheme of the Government to subsidize steamers with a view to keeping our trade between our own country and Great Britain, and was strongly endorsed.

This resolution was then moved by W. B. Hamilton, seconded by A. B. Smith, and carried:

The Newcastle Chromele gives the following account of Hanlan's last race with Beach In the fourth sculling match, for $500, a side, between the ex-champions, William Beach and Edward Hanlan, over the Parramatta Championship Course, on November 27 last, the former was a strong public favorite at from 6 to 4 to 2 to 1 on him, and he justified this confidence winning easily by two lengths. to 4 to 2 to 1 on him, and he justified this confidence by winning easily by two lengths. Hanlan won the toss, and took the midstream, or northern position. Both mea got away well together, Beach, if anything, having the best of the start. Although Hanlan rowed a slightly faster stroke, Beach gradually forced his boat ahead. Hanlan pulled with great views and tried all he knew to overhand. great vigor, and tried all he knew to overhaul the ex-champion, and managed for a brief space to come on aven terms. Beach, however, possibility retard our development. For then possibility retard our development. For then we shall be prosperous and contented at home, and we shall be honered and respected abroad.

A Recert of Appreciation.

When the address was concluded Mr. D. R. Wikie rose and fittingly thanked the Senator on behalf of the members.

He moved this resolution, which was secondated by Mr. S. F. McKinnon and adopted:

That the thanks of this meeting be and are hereby tendered to the Hon. Join Macdonald hereby tendered to the Hon. Join Macdonald hereby tendered to the Hon. Join Macdonald From this point Beach setting on the possed Putney in 9 min. 15 sec. From this point Beach seemed to row well alead, and appeared more as nome land in the open water, grainally increasing his lead till he passed Putney in 9 min. 15 sec. From this point Beach seemed to row well within himself, and way satisfied to keep two or three lengths in front. Haulan struggled hard, but Beach always held bim safe, and passing Gladesville spirred splendidly, leaving Haulan still turther Sebind. Little change occurred after this, and Beach rowing comfortably won by about two lengths in 21 min. 15 sec.

At the conclusion of the contest, Beach rowed back to his quarters at Ryds. On being questioned he expressed his opinion about the contest in a very candid manner. For the first mile and a quarter, he said, he had a hard struggle with his opponent, and it was not until that distance had been covered that he became convinced that the race was his own. The remainder of the course he rowed without a doubt of being the winner. He thought Hanlan showed a deal of pluck in rowing a hard stern chase. When the race was over both men paddled a ongaide each other and shook hands. The Canadian then stated to Beach that he was satisfied with the result of the race, as he (Beach) was too strong for him. The renized champion then said that if there was any ground for dissingly that his rival was too strong for him the race was any hope of being successful. Beach declared that he will not again row Hanlan or any sculler in a match. When questioned as to whether there was any truth in the rumor that he intended to challenge Seade for the championship of the world, Beach and that the report was entirely false, as he was certain that he was not a match for the present holder of the shampionship.

Murphy v. G. T. R. was commenced late in the afternoon before Judge Rose and will be stinued to-day. On July 16 of last year the Sa. Vincent de Paul Society gave an excursion to St. Catharines, going across the lake by the Empress of India, then from Port Dalhousie to St. Catharines and back by rail. William Murphy, aged 16, a son of the plaintiff, was, because of the drowded state of the truin, obliged to stand on the platfern. He was thrown off and received injuries from which he died after being removed to Toronto. The father brings action against the G. T. R. and Mr. H. M. Hepburn, owner of the Empress, to recover $5000 damages for the loss of his son. The defence is that the accident was due to young Murphy's own negligence.
