The Printing Bureau at Ottawa was never a necessity. The recent exposure of scandals in connection with it makes this more apparent than ever. The Government never had any right to invest $1,000,000 of public money to compete with private enterprise. It has now been proven to have been worse than a mistake. The Government had no more right to engage in the printing business than it would have to engage in farming as a commercial speculation. Private enter-prise can grow all the wheat that should be grown in this country; private enterprise can do all the printing output to enter the printing business than it would have to engage in farming as a commercial speculation. Private enterprise can do all the printing with the enterprise.

The Aldermen Must Go. That self-interest caused the aldermen to oppose the sanitary program laid down by the Medical Health Officer is well known. Many of them are owners or agents of houses for purposes of rental, and would not legislate against their own interests or vote hard cash out of their own pockets. Health Officer Allen, Dr. Oldright, Dr. Cassidy, Peter H. Bryce and all the best authorities in Toronto pronounce the out door closet system a prolific source of disease and one that should and could be promptly removed. The bulk of public opinion con-curs with that of these medical men, but the interested population—those accommodated at the peril of the public—exert a powerful infuence unon those who hold office by elect Clause 3, sec. 39, Public Health Act, provides that the local Board of Health shall "consist of the mayor and eight rate payers to be appointed annually by the Municipal Council," The Toronto City Council clustered about that clause and passed a bylaw. Turning to the revised by laws of the city we find it included in an instrument regulating the proceedings in Council and in the committees thereof, Bylaw 2435, last part of sec. 68, "and the Council shall also at the said [first] meeting the Council shall also at the said [first] meeting was provided that the council should ap and others. JERSEY CITY, Oct. 2.-Gordon Conover, a fireman on the ferryboat Jersey City, went into the paddlebox to-day to oil the outer bearings of the shaft. Engineer Rogers not knowing of his fireman's position caused the engine to make a full stroke. Passengers in the cabin heard a shriek and a horrible crunching sound as the wheel turned and had the engine stopped. Con-over was smashed to a pulp and then dropped into the water.
