The late Duke of Marlborough took the greatest interest in the development of the American trotter, and shortly before his death wrote an article on that subject which the cable says was published this week in The London Live Stock Journal. He says:

The general use of trotters in England would revolutionize the carriage building business. It would become necessary to build carriages after the American model, a class of vehicles unrivaled for strength, lightness and excellence of manufacture. Englishmen would soen learn to appreciate lightness and excellence of manufacture, Englishmen would soen learn to appreciate the four-wheel wagon.

Doubtless trotting, as in America, for big prizes leads to dishonest practices, as it is far ensier to cheat in a trotting race than in a flat race.

"It may be that Englishmen will never take the same interest in speeding horses on a track for trotting purposes as prevails in America, on the principle that they are unlikely to abandon the national game, cricket, and acopt baseball. On the other hand it is impossible that so important a breed of animals as these trotters could exist without Englishmen desiring to purchase sires and dams of value independent of their racing qualities, which can continue to the flackney mares would be incalculable."

The late duke pays a warm tribute to the docility and gentleness of the American horse, and attributes it to the kindness and intelligence with which the American trots his animals. He says:

"If some of these American qualities could be introduced into English horses, it would add more pleasure to horse breeding and keeping than any other element I know of."

The Public Want to See the Cracks Compete—For a Racing Law.

[From The N.Y. Tribune.]

The winter racing of this year plainly shows that the sport is being overdone, and that it is not the city poolrooms alone that effect racing. The continual racing the year around showed that the race-going public would not turn out to see the sport unless there was a race in which some of the stars of the turn were to race against each other. If the card was a moderate one, and the average race-goer wanted to place a beton some horse, he fancied he could do so without going many steps from the door of his home or his place of business. The attendance at Brooklyn was light. At Morris Park it was far below what it was at the spiring meetings in previous years. The Sheepshead Bay spring meeting reflected it, and the attendance at the fall meetings at the three tracks named was so light that everybody talked abcut it, and laid the blame on the city rooms. Monmouth Park, thanks to the vigorous management of A. F. Walcott, had an attendance that the association did not make any money.

The result of it all is that the winter track-owners are willing and anxious to have a racing law enacted in New Jersey, even if the limits racing to the time from March 15 to December 15. The New Jersey Legislature is likely to enact a law as soon as it can do so after it meets, as everybody who takes any interest in the sport is anxious to have the question settled.

The Norwegian is a tall, wiry man, standing fully six feet in height and wears' a full beard and mustache.

Hagen has very poor command of the English language, the present being his initial trip away from his Scandinavian shores. However, he stated his willingness to meet Donoghue or any other knight of the winged steel in America.

Accompanying the champion were Harry McLennon, his manager, and Hugh McCormick, one of the crack skaters of New Branswick. McCormick and Hagen will give exhibitions in the big rink at Minneapolis next week if the weather be suitable.

The Norwegian will spend the next month in Minneapolis, and one Jan. 14, 16 and 18 next meets Fred Breen of St. John, N.B., in a series of three matches for the world's championship and $1000 a side. Hagen carries with him a novellot of skates for all conditions of ice and weather. Hagen was very much surprised at the mildness of the climate here. He always heard Canada spoken of as a cold, cold country, with mountains of snow through which the forest pines peeped at picturesque intervals.

Harold Hagen, the champion skater of the world, was in the city yesterday. He is on his way from St. John, N.B., to Minneapolis, Minn.

Hagen is a magnificent specimen of manhood and straight as a rush. He is 26 years of age, has never used liquor or tobacco, and weighs in condition 175 pounds. "When you see him on the ice," said McCormick, "you feel beaten before the pistol is fired." Hagen has skated a half-mile in 1m. 20 1-5s., a mile in 2m. 48s., two miles in 5m. 43s., three miles in 3m. 46s., five miles in 15m. 11s. and 10 miles in 33m.
