

last, Vancouver collections were merged in those of New Westminster.

The new woolen mills at New Westminster, which are now completed, is described as follows: The mill consists of three flats, a basement and an engine house. On the first floor are 5 looms, 400 spindles, warping machine, press and beaming machine, shears, dresser and ruler. On the second floor 1 one set cards, 2 operators or dusters, jack and grinder. Third floor, picker, drying apparatus, etc., and store-room. The basement contains the fulling mill, dye vats and washing vats. The engine is 35 horse-power, and the boiler is capable of supplying steam for two engines of this size. Hydrants and hose, in case of fire, are on each floor. When in operation the mill will give employment to 20 hands.

The Vancouver News of August 7th says:—"The trade in butter, eggs, cheese and flour between this city and Winnipeg is constantly becoming more extensive, and the importations from south of the line are, in consequence, falling off to a large extent. A year ago nearly every pound of butter used in the city came from California and the Sound, and almost every barrel of flour came from Oregon. Now this state of affairs is fast becoming a thing of the past. Yesterday nearly 150 packages of butter and eggs were received from Winnipeg, and not a week passes which does not bring one or more carloads of flour. Both the flour and butter is of better quality than that imported from the south."
