

tion to the duties of his office, his wise counsels, his unvarying kindness and consideration for his colleagues, and his high personal character, he not only increased the efficiency of the department of the University over which he presided, but secured the cordial co-operation of all its members in the advancement of its interests, and attached them personally to him as their most valued friend and most distinguished and honorable colleague in the teaching and practice of the medical art.

And, further, that this Faculty tenders to the bereaved family of their beloved Dean its deep-felt sympathy in the irreparable loss which has so unexpectedly befallen them, the profession to which he belonged, and the community in which he so long, so lovingly and so successfully labored.

At a special meeting of the Medical Board of the Montreal General Hospital, held on the 2nd instant, the following resolutions were unanimously passed:—

Moved by Dr. MACCALLUM, seconded by Dr. REDDY,—That the Medical Board of the Montreal General Hospital have heard with feelings of the deepest sorrow of the death of their beloved and honored chairman, the late George W. Campbell, M.D., LL.D. Appointed to the staff of Visiting Physicians of the hospital in the year 1835, he, by his distinguished abilities as a surgeon, laid the foundation of that great reputation which this hospital has long enjoyed as a practical school of surgery. Endowed with rare powers of observation, with a powerful intellect and a cultured mind, his decisions as to the nature and proper treatment of the cases of disease that came under his notice were singularly prompt and correct; and his opinion was always invoked and held in the highest respect by his colleagues. Invariably generous and considerate to his colleagues and the medical staff and to the junior members of the profession, kind and encouraging to the student of medicine, and just and honorable to all with whom he was in any way associated, he was regarded with an affection and esteem rarely accorded by men to their fellows, and in his death we all mourn the loss of a dear and valued friend.

And, further, That this Board tender their deep and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family of their late beloved Chairman, so suddenly plunged into the very depths of sorrow by the unexpected loss of a devoted husband and father, with the earnest prayer that He who was "a Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief" may sustain them in this their hour of affliction.

The remains of Dr. Campbell arrived from England by S.S. Polynesian on the 14th, and on the 16th June they were interred in Mount Royal Cemetery. The funeral cortège was one of the largest seen in Montreal for years.

THE LATE DR. MUNRO.

By the death of Pierre Antoine Conefroy Munro the Montreal School of Medicine and Surgery loses the last survivor of its founders. The deceased gentleman was well known in Montreal, having begun his professional career when our city was far from what it is at present. He was a son of the late Dr. Henry Munro, who died in 1856, and who was for several years Surgeon to the North-West Company. The father of Dr. H. Munro was a U. E. Loyalist, and a descendant of the Munros of Fowlis, Ross-shire, Scotland. He lost all his property in the State of New York on account of his views on American independence, and settled in Canada, where he became a Legislative Councillor. Dr. Pierre Conefroy Munro, his grandson, was born in 1811, and was licensed to practice medicine in 1834. In 1837 he became one of the attending physicians to the Hotel Dieu, a post which he occupied till his death, though latterly age and infirmities prevented him from attending to the duties of it. During nearly half a century he was a daily visitor to the sick wards of the Hospital, and his regularity had become proverbial. He had, besides, a large private practice, and enjoyed in his day an enviable reputation as a physician and a man. In 1848 he founded the Victoria Medical School, along with Drs. Horace Nelson, Sutherland and others, and filled the chair of Surgery till very recently. Though the career of a medical man may offer to his biographer but few facts of public interest, still, as with all who work honestly and faithfully, though in seclusion, for the general good, the greatest meed of praise may be given in the words: "he did his duty." This Dr. Munro ever did, and thereby he merits at once the remembrance and the gratitude of his fellow-citizens.

At the last regular meeting of the Medico-Chirurgical Society of Montreal, the following resolution, moved by Dr. Hingston and seconded by Dr. Howard, was passed:—"That this Society has learned with deep regret of the tragic termination to a long and useful life, in a moment of mental disturbance, as a result of long and severe physical suffering, of Dr. P. A. C. Munro,
