Caprice at Home.
No, I will not say good-by—
Not good-by, nor any thing
He is gone. . . . I wonder why
I laces are not sweet this spring?
How that crescent bird will sing!
I might follow him and say
Just that he forgot to kiss
Lily, when he went away.
Everything I want I miss.
Oh, a precious world is this!
What if night came and not he?
Something might mislead his feet.
Once the moon rise (oh! Ah, me!)
There are things that he might meet.
Now the rain begins to beat:
So it will be dark. The bell?
Some one some one loves is dead:
Were it he— I cannot tell
I'll tell him, oh, he's dead!
Half the fretful tears I shed,
Half the fretful tears I shed,
Half—! And but to think of death,
How might bring him through the gate:
Lips that have not any breath,
Eyes that stare— And I must wait!
Is it time, or is it late?
I was wrong, and wrong, and wrong:
I will tell him, oh, he's dead!
If the heaven no builded strong,
Love shall therein be secure:
Love like mine shall there endure.
Ligon, lison—that is he?
I'll not speak to him, I say.
If he calls to me to me,
"I was all to blame today;
Sweet, forgive me," why—I must!
—Mrs. S. M. B. Platt.

A New European Sporting Resort.
For the sportsmen in search of "new worlds to conquer" some interesting and trustworthy statistics are to hand from a country hitherto little visited,
and yet not difficult of access—to wit, Bosnia. The name of this province has long been associated with the maze of political problems included in the eastern question, but from official reports published by the local authorities of Bosnia and Herzegovina, we gather that these territories have some special claims to the attention, not only of statesmen, but of those who love
the pursuit of big game.

It appears that the abundance of bears in the highlands and of wolves in the lowlands of Bosnia is such that the government offers capitulation grants for their destruction, and it is reported that in consequence of these offers during the ten years ending in 1889 884 bears and 8,190 wolves were destroyed. In the one year—1885—as many as 129 bears and 1,037 wolves were killed, and about the same number in 1887. The central highlands of Bosnia are said to be the principal haunt of the bears, especially to the south and west of Travnik and Serajevo, while northern Bosnia is overrun by wolves and harbors few bears.
There must be many sportsmen to whom it would be worth while to try their luck in a country so well stocked with bears.—Land and Water.

Stability.
True worth is in being, not seeming—
In doing, each day that goes by,
Some little good, not in dreaming,
Of great things to do by and by;
For whatever man say in their bitterness,
And spite of the fancies of youth,
There is nothing so kingly as kindness,
And nothing so royal as truth.
Hail to the Physiologist.
The doctors are in town to do,
These pillars of the church and state,
And we are pleased to treat them well,
Because they treat us, sick; and tell Us what to do, to cure or kill,
And later we'll reward their bill.
These allopaths, we love to treat,
And therapeutically paid red
Just suits our style; and here we state
Our admiration to be great.
For trauumatism, and our tones
Are suited to hypertic bones,
And longingly we have to seize
On obelics and atomies.
While we are almost pleased to death
With stimulation of the breath,
Oh, yes, dear doctors, yes we are!
And knowledge cannot be a bar
To love of you, our cerebro
In quite capillarie, don't you know,
And being thus we welcome you,
From Cranotomy to Kalamazoo.
