

whom Two at the least shall be Directors; or (in the absence of the President, all the Vice-Presidents, Treasurers, and Auditors) any Twenty or more of the Members of the said Corporation, of whom Three at the least shall be Directors, shall compose a General Court.

4th, The Four General Courts directed by the Act of Incorporation to be holden in each year, shall each be followed by a Dinner, which shall be considered a Public Meeting of the Society, and at which Visitors may be admitted. At each of those Meetings, so soon as a sufficient number of Members shall be present, the Court shall be opened, and the Business of the Day, if possible, disposed of before Dinner; but the whole or any part of such Business may, in the discretion of the Meeting, or as convenience shall dictate, be adjourned or deferred; and in the event of any Debate arising when Visitors are present, the President, or Chairman of the Meeting shall, in the exercise of his own discretion, and without any vote or discussion, have a power to adjourn the Question, and to give directions for summoning a Special General Court to decide the same; and all such General Courts (with the exception of that to be holden on the 21st of March) shall be imperatively closed at Eleven o'clock, P. M.
