

YORK COUNTY AND SUBURBS

NORTH TORONTO H. C. OF L. FAULT OF GOVERNMENT

Says J. Walter Curry, K.C.,
—Refused to Prosecute
in 1905.

"The present high cost of living is the result of the refusal of the government of 1905 to prosecute the combines," said J. Walter Curry, K.C., at a meeting held in Eglinton Hall last night. According to him, the high cost of living, but most of the time was occupied with an exposition of Liberal policies, the referendum and comparison drawn between the premier of Ontario and Hartley Dewar, new Liberal leader. The attendance was very small. J. B. Kerr, who acted as chairman, deplored the fact that so few people had turned out and then called on H. Roebuck to address the meeting. Mr. Roebuck characterized the gathering as the opening of a great campaign in Ontario. He stated that the natural resources of the country had been frittered away without causing much comment and that thieves of profited had been robbing the people while the attorney-general's department slept.

In mixed metaphor the speaker described Mr. Dewar as "one of the best bull pups among watchdogs" and "probably the biggest package of high explosive ever let loose on the province of Ontario."

According to Mr. Roebuck, the most important issue before the people at the present time is the temperance question and the government has already tried to use the referendum as a measure and that legislation was not passed as a protest against the bar. Why has the question been changed from a plain yes or no to the present form? This is not a temperance question but a liquor question, continued the speaker, referring to the referendum ballot. "You don't want beer, will you take wine—for Heaven's sake take it somehow."

Mr. Roebuck charged that the ballot was purposely to deceive the people in the phrasing of these questions. Where do McGarry and Lucas stand on the liquor question? Where does even Canon Cody, the preacher member of the government, stand? "God knows," Mr. Roebuck explained that his reference to Dr. Cody was not a criticism, but the canon had not stated just what he meant by the issue, including the speaker outlined Mr. Dewar's attitude and commended it.

What About Labor? In answer to a question from the floor, "What About Labor?" Mr. Roebuck launched into a sentimental tirade of what the soldiers had done during the war and spoke generally of the veterans who should be provided a Liberal establishment of the eight-hour day, factory inspection, revenue drawn as much as possible from natural resources. In concluding the latter part of his discourse Mr. Roebuck appealed the audience to appreciate the truth of some of the things he had said.

Geo. Wilkie expressed satisfaction, and complimented the again united Liberal party. Referring briefly to the labor union, he did not wholly blame the government. Now the problem of relationship of worker to employer must be solved. Mr. Wilkie stated that W. L. M. King was better able to present a solution than any man in the Dominion.

J. Walter Curry said that he had been asked to speak at the meeting and to answer statements made by Mr. Lucas. It is not news to the people that I was crown attorney in Toronto for 17 years, and resigned on the 15th of May, 1914. At a meeting held some time ago in this hall, I was asked how much manufacturers had paid for the referendum. It has been said that I am not entitled to any credit for prosecuting functions from the office of the attorney-general. Information came to myself, was conferred by myself, and used at my discretion."

Armed With Warrant. Mr. Curry outlined the activities and organization of one or two of the combines then existing, and told of how he accompanied officers with a search warrant and had personally taken away from the office of the attorney-general books and papers needed for the prosecution. As a result there were some 15 indictments issued, but only 16, but 168 indictments had been made by another crown attorney.

The speaker made a tribute to the advice and assistance given him during the period of investigation by Col. Denton. When pressure of business compelled Mr. Curry to take the documents to his home, a detective always accompanied him and stayed on guard over the books at all times.

Ruined a Member. The speaker outlined the working of the supply association under investigation, and recounted how the association ruined a member who would not subscribe to the ruines of the combine as to length of credits, etc. He further stated that statutory reports were given by each member of the combine each month, showing that no goods had been supplied under association prices, or in any way contrary to the rules of the trust. In spite of the fact that true bills were returned by the grand jury, the government was disinclined to continue the prosecution, and as a result Mr. Curry tendered his resignation.

"The present high cost of living," said Mr. Curry, "is the result of the then government, to which the present government the successor, refusing to prosecute. That government was not in sympathy with the prosecution, that affected those who were of most help during a campaign."

Concluding, the speaker asserted that he was not ashamed of his connection, even also it may have been "rough-and-tumble," and I stuck to it until I realized that the government did not intend to press the charge. After that there was nothing left to do but resign."

NORWAY MACDIARMID SPEAKS IN WARD EIGHT

Minister of Public Works
Criticizes Political Union of Farringham Community.

Delegates to the forthcoming convention were appointed at a well-attended meeting of Ward Eight Liberal-Conservative Association, held in St. John's hall, Norway last night. T. Murphy occupied the chair. Hon. Finley Macdiarmid, minister of public works, speaker of the evening, in the unavoidable absence of Hon. Geo. S. Henry, reviewed the political situation in the province of Ontario, paying a glowing tribute to the work of Premier Hearst during the last year, and said that the government's record of the past five years was devoid of any political discussions, and most men during that period were willing to sink all party feelings to help in the great struggle for freedom, with the exception of a few small factions. Mr. Macdiarmid said that the shoe fits they must wear it.

Regarding the U.F.O. there seems to be some uneasiness among its members, altho the speaker could not understand why. "There never was a time when the farmers were so prosperous and prices so high as now," said Macdiarmid. "The unrest started after their return from Ottawa, where they went to protest against reinforcements for overseas."

"I do not think they have any good reason to unite as a political body. Every effort has been put forth in their interests by the government. They have received large grants for fall farms, money has been freely spent on schools and other improvements. It is said that they want more farmers in the legislature, but I do not think this statement will bear close analysis."

Temperance Issue. Regarding the temperance issue, the speaker said some men have threatened to sever their connection with the government in this connection. "I appeal to you: did not the entry of Canada into the war necessitate the conservation of our resources and was there not a demand that the bars should be closed? Both sides objected to the manufacture and sale of liquor, and the temperance people on both sides were agreeable that when war was over the question would go to the people. It is now submitted in a manner for each person to give free expression of opinion. It was considered unsatisfactory by the premier and the government to put it to the people as a straight yes or no question, the speaker, who proceeded to explain the meaning of the four questions on the ballot.

Regarding the labor situation, the speaker said that there is less labor unrest in Canada than in any other country, and said the Hearst government proposed to create a department of labor, and that the government was interested in the workingman, many of which laws have been acted upon and a number of more to be enacted.

The fair wage clause and provisions for carrying it out shows the government has kept abreast of the times, he said. As the U.F.O. realized their strength they put candidates in the field, both Liberal and Conservative. The Liberal and the U.F.O. are not getting on very well, and the U.F.O. and labor will scarcely get on much better. The labor man leans towards protection, and the farmer wants free trade. In other words, one wants to reduce and the other wants to increase.

Eight-Hour Day. "It is not possible to establish an eight-hour day," said the speaker. "Forty-seven per cent. of the working men work eight hours or less throughout the country, but I am in favor of an eight-hour day if it can be uniformly brought about through the province." Concluding, the speaker pointed to the measures passed by the present government in controlling the price of fish and enabling the people to procure fish thru government supply at 15c a pound. He also touched on the workers' franchise and several other measures for the benefit of the people.

Other speakers were Joseph Russell, J. A., Controller Robbins and Aid. Baker.

YORK TOWNSHIP THE HOME OF PRIVILEGE.

Editor World: The Telegram is after the land butchers, tax dodgers and others, who turn the township of York into a "paradise of privilege." The township does not provide a high school; 124 pupils from the township resort to the city high schools at a small fee. The Telegram rightly says that the township should pay the city $118.29 for each of these pupils, the net cost to the city of educating its own children.

But who is to make the township do its duty? Or who will persuade the legislature to change its laws whereby the school rate is equitably put on the whole township instead of on school sections as now? Or who will compel the city to annex parts of the township that would be willing to come under city taxes? But they won't even let in Swansea or Todmorden. Some of us have tried to have a real metropolitan county or municipality for this very purpose. The Telegram regards with even more repugnance the man who wants to get in the city than the same man if he wants to keep them out. In either case he is a menace. As for the land butchers The Telegram must know of some real butchers, who have made their money out of the township. All up the Humber and over North Toronto and down east. Let us get the names and something about the profits they made. More land butchers have cut their own throats hereabouts than the public's.

Land is going to be so cheap with bargain counter sales and new divisions on the Hydro radicals that profiteering in town lots will be a lost art. And why has The Telegram not insisted on the sub-dividers putting in streets, water and pavements before advertising their wares in its columns? That would finish the land butcher and the home of privilege. One Bitten.

divided regarding the draft. Vice-President A. Martel, Montreal, supporting his action, while Mr. Rees was upheld by Vice-President Baxter of Glouce Bay, N.S. They also failed to agree on the suggestion that Secretary Draper be cabled for an opinion. The matter was left in abeyance until the following morning, and the deadlock continuing, the meeting was declared adjourned.

Victory for the Workers. Mr. Moore then read an extract from a reconstruction program he had prepared, which called for increased effort on the part of labor following the victory overseas. Vice-presidents Rees and Baxter were of the opinion that the workers had won no victory. The president declared that in his opinion it was as much a victory of the workers as of the people.

Demand that both the drafts should be read by Mr. Rees, who said that if this were read in full members might get a little of the idea in their noodles. "Oh, no, nothing like that," and similar cries came from all sides. The report of the council was then submitted and adopted by a considerable majority.

The congress at the morning session was attended to a high pitch of enthusiasm by the address of Ben Tillett, the British labor leader, who is the fraternal delegate to the convention from the British Trades Union Congress. He declared that workers of the world would no longer submit to conditions which existed before and during the war.

LEASIDE HOUSING READY TO START

Active preparations are now under way to erect the first Leaside housing houses. The Leaside Housing Company, recently formed under the Ontario housing act for the benefit of the Canada Wire and Cable Company's employees and for the general development of the town.

For some time past the management of the Canada Wire and Cable Company have had under consideration the housing of their employees, and upwards of 300 in all departments. At the present time the company has thirty houses erected, the majority of which are occupied by their workmen, and others are in an incomplete condition. It is the intention of the company to finish these as soon as possible.

The new houses will be erected on the company's own land situated on Bannockburn road, Aldrie road, Rumsey road, Sutherland drive and other sections of the town.

Different Designs. It is not proposed to cluster the houses, and the architecture will be in different designs. The sketch shows a group of two of the five basic types, which consist of two-story and brick veneer finish. The buildings will be two rooms deep, receiving full light from front and back, with one window to the single bedroom and a double window to give cross ventilation in the double bedroom. The windows are larger than the Ontario housing act demands. All buildings will be electrically fitted, with gas, water and all sanitary conveniences.

The hedge in front will be bushes and space between the hedge and the building will be allowed for a little planting.

The distance between houses will be eight feet. The architect is William Lyon Somerville, Imperial Bank Building, Bloor and Yonge streets. The estimated cost, it is stated, will be between $250 and $300, including cost of land. The houses will be sold to the Canada Wire and Cable Company's work people at actual cost price. Five houses are now in course of erection for foremen of the company on the west side of Hanna road.

Transportation between Leaside and the city is also under consideration, and his service will be established at a later date.

LABOR CONGRESS AND ONE BIG UNION

It was in denouncing the conditions under which a great number of British workers live that Mr. Tillett stirred the congress to a high pitch of indignation. Suffering thru the stress of the war and now thru its aftermath, millions of the mothers there were, he exclaimed, who would be unable to bring up anything but a 13 race.

"The race of men who would allow their women to become mothers under such circumstances—it is they who should be dead," he declared amid ringing applause.

Again, in referring to sacrifice of life in the war, Mr. Tillett evoked deafening applause. "Will Continue the Fight." "As soon as we can obliterate the memories of the war the better it will be for the workers of the world," he said. "I will continue the fight for the class who saved the world from millennium in order that a new harvest of brotherhood and love may come to mankind."

Speaking of the resources of Canada and the enormous possibilities for labor movement in this country, he said: "Let the aspirations of the old world lead you. You are a young people, not bound and girt by the shackles of our little islands. You have the great continent to conquer. May the great continent be conquered."

"Section" Order-in-Council. The congress resumed consideration of the president's report regarding the order-in-council covering the language and literature. In the report President Moore intimates that he had brought strong pressure to bear on the government against the order-in-council. The committee recommended adoption of the order-in-council. Delegates Leckie of Ottawa and George Armstrong, Winnipeg, called for a repeal of the order-in-council.

The matter was discussed when a delegate moved that a general strike be called unless the order was repealed. The members strongly expressed their disapproval and voted for the adoption of the report.

Alleges Press Unfair. Allegations that statements made in the press of Canada, regarding the strike situation in Winnipeg, were absolutely false and "cooked" were made by Delegate George Armstrong, Winnipeg, during his address to the president Moore regarding the situation. Delegate Armstrong intimated the men who went on strike there were carrying out the action they had decided upon by votes taken at meetings of local councils.

He said that President Moore obtained his information from the press. The statements to the effect that the unions had no "say so" were absolutely untrue.

Delegate McCallum, Toronto, declared that the Winnipeg situation moved every trade unionist up and down the land. R. B. Russell, Rev. William Ivens and George Armstrong had suffered and the rank and file were entitled to know whether they had suffered rightly or wrongly. He thought they should be afforded the opportunity of submitting a written statement to the members of the congress.

Secretary Robinson of the Winnipeg Trades and Labor Council said the fight in Winnipeg commenced 13 years ago.

All honor to the Winnipeg men for striking," said Mr. Robinson. "We have no fears and we will strike again if it is necessary."

He maintained that Hon. Gibson Robertson minister of labor, and the minister provided with proper information, had intimated the strike was revolutionary in character. If he had not done so the strike would have ended differently.

The congress concurred in the report without further discussion. Repeal of the amendment to the Royal Northwest Mounted Police act, which provides for an increased number of the force and the extension of police jurisdiction to the whole of Canada, was recommended by the committee. In the opinion of the committee, Chairman Wilkinson said, the extension of the force was necessary. The recommendation was ratified by the congress following discussion. A recommendation advocating adequate labor representation on the federal health department was concurred in by the assembly and similar representation was requested on the board of commerce.

The entire report of President Moore then received the unanimous approval of congress.

Discuss One Big Union

The report of the executive council denouncing the Order in Council was under consideration at the evening session. Regarding the organization, the report submitted for ratification was discussed. The feasibility of One Big Union methods should have been apparent from the beginning, founded as it was on force and intolerance of existing organizations. The movement, repudiating the organizations from which they drew their financial and numerical strength, preaching brotherhood and love may come to mankind.

Speaking of the resources of Canada and the enormous possibilities for labor movement in this country, he said: "Let the aspirations of the old world lead you.
