

Can We Make You Think the Same as We do?

Rather a pertinent question, 'is it not?' It's a hard matter to get people to think the same—but when it comes to a question of Clothing the Boys, and just where to get the best value for your money, then we ask you to think as we do because we are Boys' Clothiers, and have a reputation for best materials, styles and construction that no other house enjoys to the same extent that we do. We invite your inspection of our Boys' Clothing, and feel sure that you will think the same as we do—There is none better in Toronto.

PORT ARTHUR'S DEFENCES

Tactically Port Arthur is a difficult prize to seize. Its defences are divided into the land and sea forts, which again may be sub-divided into seven sections of defence, four on land and three on sea. The town lies in a great amphitheatre, its area encompassed by an oval ring of hills rising by degrees to altitudes of some 120 to 140 feet. On one of these hills are semi-closed works—that is to say, forts whose fronts toward the enemy on the land side are hidden and protected by mounds or parapets of earth, while their gorges, or sides away from the enemy, are closed by masonry walls inaccessible to scaling ladders, and provided with pits or embrasures for the defenders to fire thru. It is Gen. Vernander of the Russian engineers, no unworthy successor to Todleben, who is responsible for the site, design and trace of these defences. Their form is similar to that of the works on the Golden Hill, with modern improvements. That is to say, technically, they are on the same principle, the ditches being very deep and defended by batteries or projecting turrets of masonry, roofed with earth. There are also deep in the earth so as to be immune from the bursting shells of the enemy, and in the place placed quick-firing guns which sweep the ditches with a hail of iron projectiles. The works have also escarpments or counterscarp galleries. The guns in these forts I will presently describe. They resemble our 7.5 and 11 inch breechloaders. The guns in the Chinese forts are of the same calibre as the 8.5-inch guns taken from the Chinese in 1901. I counted the hill forts as I drove around the excellent carriage road which leads from the Lake Ping-chutse, a shallow lagoon east of the harbor, in which the Chinese forts, to Keekwan fort, due north of the Chinese town. They are some fifteen in number. Besides these are the batteries on Golden Hill. I estimated their number at six to eight. I could not approach them. The guns in these latter I put down as 10 or 11 inch. Four of them are mounted on over-bank carriages, with smaller quick-firing guns mounted near the Marconi mast, and at intervals down the side of the hill sloping steeply toward the sea. I will describe the perimeter of the works of Port Arthur, and the inter-land sector, from the east, in the order of their seven sections, or more or less independent areas of action. The first (and) sector, from the east, is 1200 yards broad; it dominates Petoushan or Rillingshan Hill above Table Hill. The Russian term is 'Drakovy position.' Its point d'appui is Petoushan fort, about 400 feet above sea level, with two dependent batteries on the sea side. Facing north are the two large Urtung forts, with seven smaller works, not shown on the map, armed with 11 inch guns. Of these guns two are 28 centimeter, thirty-two are 15 centimeter and forty-eight 15 centimeter calibre. These guns fire north and north-east. The second (land) sector occupies the summit of the Keekwan (Chan) Hills. It comprises five forts, marked on the map, to the north and north-east of the old Chinese town. This group of works prevents No. 1 sector from being taken in reverse, while the third sector comprises the heights west of the old and north of the new Russian town. It comprises the large forts of Antschan and Eisehan supported by the Sungshoo or Sungshan fort and protects the preceding sector from being turned on its western flank. The extent of this sector is one and a half to two miles in depth and its front considerably more. It mounts sixty guns, probably of 15 centimeter calibre. There are many open works in it which cannot be shown on a small scale map. The fourth (land) sector extends from the south end of Sungshan or Table Hill chain along White Wolf Hill to the extreme south-west of the Welyuen or Tiger Peninsula. It comprises four or five great forts. The Takushan range comprises the Antschan and Eisehan front of the Table Heights, and Eisehan supported by the Sungshoo fort, which is on the road and protects the preceding sector from being turned on its western flank. The extent of this sector is one and a half to two miles in depth and its front considerably more. It mounts sixty guns, probably of 15 centimeter calibre. THINK 'T WAS UP TO U.S.

TOO INTERNATIONAL NEUTRALITY

Situation at Shanghai Still Critical—Time's Up and Nothing Done.

London, Aug. 24.—The Standard this morning, unable to conceal its disappointment that the United States government is not prepared to protect the neutrality of China at Shanghai, editorially contends that the United States could have taken the lead in the matter without arousing the jealousies and suspicions which must follow intervention by any European power. The outcome of the serious situation at Shanghai is watched with anxiety by the Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent, the Russian government supports the refusal of the Askold and Grozovoi either to disarm or to treat China as a power capable of enforcing neutrality. The Daily Chronicle's St. Petersburg correspondent says: "The entire Chinese squadron has left here, doubtless in order that it shall not be liable to further incidents of the Rysshelink kind."

Time's Up. Shanghai, Aug. 23.—The final time limit allowed by the six nations for the Russian cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi to disarm has passed without compliance with their orders. A meeting of the consuls was held this afternoon at the Russian consular general, M. Kleinmoff, was absent, and no definite course of action was decided upon. The tactical has requested Sir Pelham Warren, the British consul-general, to order that the repairs to the Askold be stopped.

Diana Stays. Paris, Aug. 23.—The foreign office here has not been advised of the departure from Saigon (capital of French Indo-China) of the Russian cruiser Diana. The Diana's injuries are slight and she will soon be ready to sail.

HID TO ESCAPE.

Prisoner Pettit Fooled Woodstock Jail Officials for Some Time.

Woodstock, Aug. 23.—Attempted jail breaking is the most recent charge preferred against the Catholic prisoner, young man from Toronto now in custody for the alleged hold up of the Chinaman, Charlie Chou, on Oxford-street last week. It is the result of an escape from the jail premises yesterday evening with the object of scaling the prison wall and regaining his freedom later in the evening. Late yesterday afternoon eighteen prisoners were retained from their cells and placed in the west yard for exercise. When the assembly bell sounded after they had enjoyed an hour's recreation Pettit was missing. Every nook and corner had been examined and all necessary precautions taken. The search party when suddenly one of the officials remembered an outbuilding in the yard with a small hole in the ceiling. Putting his hand up thru the opening Pettit was discovered and bound. The space above the ceiling was six feet by two feet and a foot and a half high. Pettit had managed to dig a hole in the wall and had crawled out of it but a foot square.

THE FALLING OFF.

Washington, Aug. 23.—A sensation was caused here to-day by the fact that it became known that a petition in bankruptcy had been filed by three of the city and county officials. The petition was signed by Thomas A. Waggaman, a prominent real estate and insurance agent of this city and county, and by two other officials. The petition seeks to set aside a deed of trust recorded yesterday on Waggaman's property for approximately $125,000. A Catholic University on the ground that it is void as being an attempt by the petitioner to defraud his creditors. Waggaman has been in the real estate business since 1873, and was reported generally to be a man of large means.

MRS. MAYBRICK ARRIVES.

New York, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Maybrick had expected to leave the ship at quarantine last night, but the plans were changed and she remained until the Vanderland docked to-day. The immigration authorities made no attempt to question Mrs. Maybrick, and the customs officer did all in their power to expedite the taking of her departure and the passing of her baggage. The departure of the party from the ship proved somewhat of an ordeal, owing to a large crowd of the curious. During the voyage across Mrs. Maybrick appeared a few times at meals and in the cabin, but remained most of the time in her cabin. She was driven directly to an hotel, and after a brief rest will make a trip to the Catskills.
