A great picture of the golden days of old California, when whole communities of men lived for months without sight of a woman, lured to lives of adventure by the chance of striking it rich. A story of great heart appeal, made still more delightful by its wonderous Sierra Mountainer setting, with their foaming streams and snow-tipped peaks by the charming old-fashioned dresses and amusing stove-pipe hats. By the courtesy of the men and the beauty (in their eyes) of the first woman. A picture in which that fine actor, MONROE SALISBURY, fills the heart with emotion. The day of "Old California" pictures is here, and "THE SUNDOWN TRAIL" is one of the best. VAUDEVILLE FEATURE
