Troops have been landed at strategic points in Greece, at Corinth to control the Morea, at Piraeus to control Athens. Greek islands are being occupied, and hostile submarine bases will be destroyed and the submersibles rooted out of Greek waters.

The Germans and their allies are concentrating three armies for the attack on Saloniki. They will be unable to beset this second Torres Vedras till they have constructed enough roadways and opened the line of railway which runs down the Vardar Valley. In retiring from southern Serbia the French blew up a rock tunnel and tore up the tracks. The Germans have succeeded in clearing the line of the Oriental Railway for traffic as far as Nish, and they have begun to operate trains from Berlin to Constantinople. It is presumed that they are now repairing the line south of Nish into As many bridges have been destroyed, these will all have to be Greece. rebuilt, but, as the French proved at the battle of the Marne, destroyed bridges can be replaced in an incredibly short time. It may not be till the end of February when the enemy is ready to move on Saloniki, while again he may be able to get on the move almost at once. But, first, it might be expected that he would attack the Italians in Albania.

To counter a stroke at Saloniki, the allies, having the command of the sea, have the power to land troops at the fine port of Santi Quaranti, in Epirus. From this point a good metaled road leads to Monastir and an advance on that point would threaten to cut off the hostile troops which might beleaguer Saloniki.

Berlin is certainly alarmed over the presence of allied troops at many points in Greece, and open fears are expressed of the deposition of King Constantine and the declaration of a republic. Sofia is said to be extremely alarmed. This fear may prod on the Germans to a premature attempt to oust the allies from Saloniki.

Official communiques from London, and, especially from Paris, speak of the effective work which is being carried out by new long-range guns and improved anti-aircraft weapons. In increasing their armament two things can be done by the allies: Firstly, the providing in greater number of the same class of weapons as the Germans have, and, secondly, and more difficult, the introduction of artillery which would render the existing German armament obsolete. This was done by Lord Fisher on the sea by the perfecting of the Dreadnought, which rendered all the other warships of Germany out of date, which forced her to begin a new era of construction, and which also forced her to sink hundreds of millions of dollars in deepening her shallow harbors and the Kiel Canal to accommodate the big ships when they were put afloat.

In regard to their armies, the allies have apparently adopted the policy which has worked such good results in the case of the British navy. The outclassing of the German artillery gives the allies an immense superiority in fire. If the Germans drop everything to cope with the new developments in big guns, they cannot hope to compete with the workshops of the allies and the rest of the world. * * * * *

The value of bringing new and improved weapons into the fight is obvious, when it is realized that the problem of forcing a line of trenches is similar to defeating an army in the open field, and solely depends on developing fire superiority. While in the process of doing so, tentative attacks may be expected on the German lines to prove the quality of the new weapons, and to give the British and French troops increasing moral ascendancy over the Germans.

The Russian official communique of yesterday says that the situation on the western front is unchanged. The Russians, it is known, won a big victory on the Stripa River and practically destroyed the army of Von Bothmer, which was mown down by the czar's new artillery. The Austrians, seeing that the Russians have ceased attacking for the present, make a report claiming a big victory on an 80-mile front, alleging that the Austro-Germans held their ground, and basing their claim on alleged statements that the Russian commander had big objects in view. Not only in this war, but in all past wars, Austrian generals have been notorious liars, and the latest effusions from Vienna bear out their past reputations.

The Turks confess to flight in the Caucasus, pursued by superior Russian troops. Petrograd more modestly sets forth the capture of 24 Turkish officers and 200 men, with a field gun, a number of rifles, tents and provisions. The taking of rifles indicates demoralization among the Turks, who have been participants in another battle of Bull Run, and have been throwing away their small arms as they ran.

Mayor Church was unable to we come the delegates thru pressure of business and Controller Thompson and Alder-man Ramsden acted in his stead. the Austrelian Government manufactur-ed for two dollars less. Calls For Enquiry. Mr. Pugsley wanted a commission to be appoin ed to investigate the work of the shell committee. He said that an order for four million fuses had been given to an American company thru Col. J. Wesley Allison, a personal friend of the minister of miltia, altho a Canadian firm, which desired the work, was not allowed to tender at the time. The Canadian firm finally got an order, bu at a price much less than that paid the foreign firm. The shell committee, he charged, had awarded contracts to po-litical friends and favorites. Mr. Hep-burn, the Conservative M.P. for Prince Edward County, had secured a contract ostensibly for a firm in his own coun y, but the contract was at once transferred to a concern in Montreal. Contracts for making boxes for shells had been award-ed to men who had no plants, but farmed them out to planing mills, altho legiti-mace manufacturers were told that more boxes were needed. One firm soliciting ar order for shells after expending $15,-000 installing lathing machines and other machinery, was notified by two gentle-ren very close to the shell committee that one and one-half per cent. commis-sion would have to be paid in order to secure the orders. The firm refused to comply with the demand and did not get the order. Mr. Pugeley said he would give the names of these men to an in-vestigating committee if one was ap-pointed.

An interruption by Solicitor-General Meighen suddenly turned the tide of dis-cussion from the shell committee to the purchase of submarines by Sir Richard McBride for the Dominion Government. Mr. Fugsley declared that the investiga-tion by Sir Charles Davidson had been shallow and perfunctory. Just before the house adjourned Mr. Carvell, the Liberal member for Carle-ton, N.B., announced that Sir Charles Davidson was "the greatest whitewasher who ever lived,"
