

Ashamed of her Skin

Now proud of the complexion "Fruit-a-tives" gave her.

Bad complexions are all too common among women. The skin becomes sallow—pimples and blotches break out. Then women try lotions and creams and "beautifiers" which really injure the skin.

"I was a martyr to that distressing complaint—chronic constipation—and had a dreadful complexion. I had been advised to try "Fruit-a-tives". Before I had finished the first box the constipation was relieved. My complexion began to clear up again, all the sallow disappeared, the black circles under my eyes went away. Since then I have continued to improve and now my complexion is as clear as any woman's you can see."

Fruit-a-tives

It strikes right at the root of the trouble. The skin helps to dispose of the waste of the body. When the bowels don't move regularly—when the kidneys are clogged—the blood carries the poisons, which the bowels and kidneys won't pass off to the skin. The pores of the skin become clogged with this poison and the complexion becomes grey or sallow or irritated and inflamed—pimples and blotches are the natural result of the poisoned blood.

"Fruit-a-tives" correct faulty digestion and make the bowels move regularly. They act directly on the kidneys—and open the millions of tiny pores of the skin by stimulating and strengthening the glands. This insures all the waste of the system being removed as nature intended. It insures pure, rich blood—and you ever heard of a bad complexion where the blood was rich and pure?

"Fruit-a-tives" cost you a few cents and are worth ten times as much as any other medicine you will get. You will get them on receipt of price—no return necessary.

MANY DISASTERS

IN RECENT STORM

Six Lives Lost and Twelve Vessels Wrecked or Damaged.

Boston, March 20.—The wrath of New England's storm of March 19th and 20th was vented against the coastwise fleet, the record tonight standing twelve wrecked or damaged, and six lives lost. That the list will be augmented during the next few days seems probable. In view of the size of the gale which was off the coast when the storm was at its height last night.

The list of disasters and accidents at 10 o'clock tonight was as follows: Schooner—Lady Ann, of Boothbay, Cape Verde, at Marblehead; five lost. How's Maud, of Boothbay, ashore at Cape Verde (Mass.), crew escaped. Marion Draper, of Boothbay, ashore at Booth, at Hyannis. Winslow Lantry, of Boston, sunk at South Yarmouth (Mass.); crew escaped. C. C. Lane, of New Haven, ashore at Boston Light; six men rescued.

My Friend the Chauffeur.

By G. H. & A. M. WILLIAMSON, Author of "The Lightning Conductor" "The Princess Passes," etc.

(Continued.) I tried him in Italian. No use; he jabbered protests in Slavic, with a wide peering curiosity on his forehead, as the Countess peeped over mine. Finally, to save time and somebody's blood, perhaps, I offered an Austrian note and it proved a passport. They let us go in; and entering, I heard Miss Destrey's voice raised in fear or anger, behind another closed door.

Then most of the blood in my body seemed to spring to my head, and I have no very distinct recollection of anything more, till I found that I had done to that second door what I meant to do to the first, and that Maids had run straight in to my arms.

"My darling!" I heard myself exclaiming. I know that I held her tight against my heart for an instant. "Thank Heaven, that's not mine! It has been mine for all the past and must belong to me for all the future. I know that she was sobbing a little, that she clung to me, and that then, remembering the man and what was owing him, I put her away to begin his punishment.

"Unpleasant stuff!" I threw the words at him, and threw myself at the same time. I think we struggled for a few moments, but I am younger than he, as well as bigger, so it was not much to me, and he was sobbing and shaking his head as if he'd been stung.

"I've not lost it!" I cried. "No! I've not it!" I said. "Angel! But you've got mine instead. You won't mind marrying a beggar and a married man's wife, will you?"

"I don't believe anything they say of me," he panted, dried-looking. "Coramari tricked you by sending his wife's revolver to me. I thought I was going to be shot, and would ruin me with you if she could. I didn't know the truth till I got here. I thought it was you I had run away with to Montenegro, hoping I might persuade you to marry me, when you were out of the way of your daughter, who had been and would ruin me with you if she could."

"I would have left Miss Destrey behind, if I could have held her fast as she held," he panted, dried-looking. "I would have left Miss Destrey behind, if I could have held her fast as she held."

INSURANCE INQUIRY

OTTAWA, March 21.—There was quite a lot of interesting business at the insurance enquiry yesterday afternoon. The main questions had to do with the holding of foreign stocks by some of the larger companies such as the Sun Life and the North American.

At the afternoon session, Mr. Shepley went into the memorandum on the Sun Life with Mr. Blackadder. Mr. Shepley made a statement of the books and bonds written down by the Sun Life. There was a difference between the statutory returns and the company's books. The books, for instance, showed the Sun Life had made an investment in Denver & Southwestern Railway Company bonds in 1905, and at the end of that year showed on the books a ledger value of $35,977, a par value of $40,000, and a market value of $40,000.

It seems strange that sometimes your stomach or bowels won't digest your food, no matter what you eat. It may be the weather, or it may be just the state of your general health, but it is a fact that there is only one certain, safe and positive method of cure, and that is the proper use of that universal remedy for all forms of dyspeptic, indigestive or diarrhetic, whether in stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels—STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

"Where's Mamma?" came the first question, as was natural. "I don't know, and we're to talk to you before she comes," said Mamma. "Oh, Beechey, you must be good to her, she's a dear, and don't tell her we're here." They were told the story, preparing Beechey for her mother's decision, and I expected hysterics. But she neither laughed nor cried. She sat at the table, looking curiously up at me.

"I'll do my best," faltered the lady, as a lady should. I suppose, who feels herself a heroine of romance. I could almost have respected that second for his diplomacy. His motto was, "Get what you want, or if you can't take what you want, and he was living up to it, playing up to it before an audience as no other man I ever saw could or would. He did not seem to care what we thought of him, nor that he was gaining his point. But when fatty degeneration of the soul sets in, there is no room for little real pride in a man's breast.

"You will not allow yourself to be prejudiced against me?" he went on. "Never," vowed the Countess. "No one had better try it." "I will not try after tonight, if what I have to tell doesn't alter your mind," said Mamma. "But, just this once—"

"No!" "Very well then, I will say nothing except—"

"Be careful!" "Oh," and the girl turned implicitly to me, "take us somewhere, so that I can talk to her alone."

"There's said to be a good enough hope in the matter, I'll take you both there," I ventured. "Come and see me early—early, Prince," said the Countess, "but I am not 'Prince' now. 'Oto,' then."

"I've got them away, leaving the man behind, to his own device, and at the door I had the joy of wrapping Mamma in my big coat. How glad I was that I had brought it! I drove them to a hotel in the place at the end of the long street, and when the Countess had hurried ostentatiously off to her room, that no nefarious attempt might be made up
