WORK FOR EVERYBODY.

The time of preparation for the welcome to the returned soldiers and the Prince of Wales is short and there is much to be done. It will be necessary to arouse once more the community enthusiasm which marked the response to appeals in war time. It is a matter for all the citizens and should be the chief topic of conversation for the next two weeks. The city should be looking its best on the two days; but, most important of all, the amplest provision should be made to ensure the personal comfort of every soldier guest. If there is to be a procession, and there certainly should be, it should be one of the best ever seen in the city. There will be no lack of sports for there are at least three fairly good playgrounds, and the fact that they are available is the best evidence of the wisdom of the effort to organize improvement of the city. These leagues and their grounds will now be of great service. The revival of aquatic sports will be another interesting feature. Whatever features of interest for the two days' celebration can be devised and successfully carried out should have strong committees behind them. It will do St. John a world of good to get out of the rut and make a new record for itself while it is paying a small tribute to the soldiers and extending a welcome to the Prince of Wales.

ROUND THEM ALL UP.

The suggestion that St. John should be made bone dry during the days of the August celebration is one that should be carried out with the utmost vigor. It may be taken for granted that the bootleggers are planning for a rich harvest when the city is filled with visitors. To fill a visitor with liquor of the knockout variety and then empty his pockets would be no more than has been done to more than one too faithful soldier after receiving his discharge pay. Between now and the date of the celebration the most numerous of the bootleggers should be rounded up, and if they can be locked up the good name of the city will suffer less. It is said, and is doubtless true, that the most notorious of the gang are well known to many citizens. They ought to be as well known to the inspectors. If more inspectors are needed they should be appointed, and a relentless campaign begun to end the traffic or fill the jail. Whoever can give any information to the officers should give it, and the police department as well as the inspectors should make a determined effort to make the city safe for every returned soldier and every other visitor who may come. This is of far more importance than repairing streets or putting out flags.

WHAT PROHIBITION MEANS.

Touching the matter of prohibition the Christian Science Monitor sees much cause for satisfaction in the passage of the enforcement bill at Washington by such an overwhelming majority. It points out that however much advice the opponents of prohibition may make the congressmen know what is in the mind of the great silent masses of the people. "Consequently," it says, "when they declare the temper of the nation in an overwhelming majority, the wise man notes the sign of the times. And the sign of the times, in the present connection, is this: that the world is growing better all the time, without the export of material indulgence being, perhaps, aware of it. Men may still indulge in bad field to field, and house to house, and build their greater barns, but they do not at any rate desire to add still to still or vat to vat, or to build more palatial saloons."

The Monitor points out very truly that though the forces of evil would gladly see the drunkard abolished, the conditions would not be improved to any extent if this were done. We quote again:

"The worst effect of strong drink has never been the taking of it in excess. Bad as that has been, it has been comparatively slight and by reason of its offensiveness has always provided its own antidote. It is the taking of strong drink in moderation, so-called, which has, without revealing the fact, engendered human sensuality and promoted mental lassitude. The drunkard is only the strongly defined example of a process of mental depletion to infinitesimal and so subtle in its ordinary effect as to reduce a man's normal resistance of mental domination without letting the cat out of the bag. The conquest of strong drink means then the conquest of sensuous appetite in a way which must lead to the strengthening of a man's, and so of a nation's moral fiber. With the strengthening of this fiber must come a sterner resistance to every other form of sensuous indulgence which the suggestive forces of the human mind can urge against the individual's dominant perception of the battle is to the death, and that defeated evil uses every trick of suggestion known to it to vilify or destroy its conqueror? This last is the lesson humanity, perhaps, needs most to learn for until it does learn it, it will continue to take sides with its enemies against its friends. The hidden hand has gauged this phase of the conflict to a nicety. The devil, says old Bishop Latimer, in his homily and hearty way, is a busy bishop in his own diocese."

There is so much wisdom in these remarks that they are worthy of earnest thought at a time when "the hidden hand" is very busy all over this continent trying to avert the inevitable, and to prolong the sway of alcohol over the destinies of men.

Toronto Globe: "The One Big Union, with its weapon, a general strike, is not only an enemy of established trade unionism in Canada, but an equally great menace to the industrial welfare of the whole country. It has been promoted at a time when all employers are disposed to recognize, and the majority of them have already recognized, the international trade union system, and are willing to deal with the individual units in settling disputes which may arise from time to time. The principle of collective bargaining with employers has been won by the international trade unions after many years of struggle, and it would be folly on their part to throw away the fruits of their victory. Most of these unions have earned the respect of the employer by standing to their agreements and the employer, on his side, would regret to see them overthrown by an irresponsible and unreasoning body such as the One Big Union."

Westminster Gazette: "Royalty is a little inclined to overdo things just now. The King and Queen are said to be looking forward eagerly to the closing of their engagement books this season and the possibilities of rest, and the Prince of Wales can have had very few hours to himself in the last few months. Our royal house has set a very high standard for itself during the war, but there are limits to human endurance, and always to the centre of every function makes very big demands on that endurance. Let us hope they will be content to take things a little more easily henceforward."

Touching the matter of abutting paying half the cost of street improvement the following dispatch from Sudbich, Ontario, is of local interest: "The council of Essex have decided to build a 32-foot pavement commencing in Tilbury township east through the village of Comber, a distance of nearly one mile, the county paying for 16 feet and the properties fronting on same to pay for 8 feet for each side."

The Standard says the defeat of the tory government in Prince Edward Island is a warning to the Foster government. On the contrary the warning is to governments that are tory in their complexion.

The English are a wonderful people. A few days ago a huge coal strike threatened disaster to the nation. Today the strike is settled.

Sir Arthur Pearson, who not long ago became blind, tells how his misfortune made him really more self-reliant. "When I found my sight was doomed," he says, "I concluded that I had better dispense with the services of the personal attendant who had looked after me for years, as otherwise he would probably become a stumbling-block in the path of blind proficiency. I have frequently been congratulated upon the skill with which my valet ties my bow tie. But I have to take the compliment to myself. My valet neither ties my tie nor does anything else for me, the very simple reason being that I have to 'valet'."

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1918

Notice to Employers of Labor

WHEREAS on the 17th day of April A.D. 1919, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Council did by Order-in-Council bring within the scope of Part I of the "WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1918," from and after August 1st, 1919, the following industries, viz:

Persons employed in the woods in logging, cutting of timber, pulp-wood, fire-wood, railroad ties or sleepers, river driving, rafting, booming, or the transportation of logs, timber, pulp-wood, fire-wood or railroad ties or sleepers.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that all persons engaged in any of the above mentioned industries are required to file a statement of their estimated payroll from August 1st, 1919, to December 31st, 1919, inclusive, with the said board, on or before the 1st day of August, 1919.

AND FURTHER NOTICE that any employer neglecting or refusing to furnish such estimate or information is liable to a penalty, not exceeding $20.00 per day for each day of such default, and is further liable for damages, as provided by Part two of said Act, in respect of any injury to any workman in his employ during the period of such default.

NOTE—Forms for furnishing such information will be supplied on application.

Also please take note of the following regulation passed by the board, and coming into force on the 1st day of August, 1919:

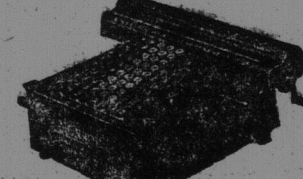

FIRST AID KIT

In an industry where ten or more persons are employed, it shall be the duty of the employer to provide a suitable FIRST AID KIT approved of by the board and in charge of a suitable person.

Certified, passed May 1st, 1919. WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION BOARD, J. A. Sinclair, Chairman. 8-1.

Filling the Gaps in Your Office Force

A GREAT many firms tell us that not only is it next to impossible to get clerical help, but many of those they do get are untrained and therefore inaccurate in their work. Fortunately this situation can be greatly relieved by the use of the Monroe Calculating Machine.

Our girl and a Monroe can do the work formerly requiring two or three men. She doesn't need to be an expert. With a few minutes' instruction and practice, she can place your figure load on the

and you can be assured the work is absolutely accurate because the MONROE Mechanical Check puts a ban on operating mistakes. No rechecking is required. Look at any one of the problems listed at the left and compare the time required by the Monroe to solve it with the old pencil-and-paper method. The Monroe has a range of utility that embraces any figure problem in any business.

Mr. Manager, it is a difficult matter for you to determine the efficiency of the Monroe Machine by our telling you about it. Let us send a representative to demonstrate what it will actually accomplish in your own office.

You can then make your own tests and compare it with any other machine you may have in service. All of which means we have perfect confidence in the ability of the Monroe Machine to "make good." To bring the matter to a head simply mail the attached coupon. No obligation involved.
