

holds, and around it, both morning and night, regularly gather your families and domestics; and by prayer and supplication make known their wants to God. Aim at doing good: do not be satisfied with doing it by proxy: do it yourselves. God asks you to work for him. Support every movement that seeks to elevate your fellow-men. As a people, we have for years past identified ourselves with the Temperance Reformation. Let it live in your affections. Encourage with your contributions the Bible Society, in its noble work of circulating the Scriptures. Help all Societies whose object is to bring the good old gospel truths home to the hearts and consciences of your fellow-men. Your time for doing this is short. It is more than probable that some of you who are now in fellowship with us will not be dwellers on the earth when we send forth our next Pastoral Letter. Work then, beloved, while it is day.

And now we pray "that our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and God even our Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting consolation and good hope through grace, comfort your hearts, and stablish you in every good word and work."
