The party reached Flambeau on the following day, unfliciently ahead of Stark and his men for Lee to make known his find to his friends, and by smeet the place was depopulated, while a line of men could be sean creeping slowly up the valleys.

Gale found Aliuma in charge of the store, but no opportunity of taiking alone with her occurred until late in the evening, after Necla had put the two little ones to hed and had followed them wearily. Then he told his squaw. She took the news better than he expected and showed no emotion such as other women would have displayed, even when he told her of the gunshot. Instead she laquired:

Instead she inquired:
"Why did you try it there before all could stand, and it came on me all at once, so that I was mad, I suppose." "Does this man suspect?"

"Then it is child's play. We will lay a trap."

"No, by heaven!" Gale interrupted her hotly. "I tried that kind of work, and it won't do. I'm no murderer."

"Those are only words," said the woman quietly. "To kill your enemy is the law."

When he made no answer the squaw slipped out into the shadows, leaving
