

this movement, being careful to avoid every thing which would excite the prejudices of the ignorant or rouse the fears of the fastidious, and there is hope that in a short time a wonderful revolution may be effected. Indeed it is not impossible that sometime in the future a time will come when it will not be necessary for a woman to give any more time and thought to her dress than is now necessary for a man. Let us be up and doing and not rest apathetically satisfied with the present unwholesome state of things.
