by howling and crying at funerals were beginning their work. Jesus was not pleased with these pretenders and said, "What are you making such a noise for? The little girl is not dead. She is sleeping." But they only laughed, for they knew she was white and cold.

Then Jesus put everybody out except the father and mother and His three friends.

He then took the dead child's hand saving, but all at once quite well.

"Little maid, arise," and at once she got up and walked across the room. She was twelve years old.

How surprised the parents were! They had not supposed that Jesus could do such a wonder. They almost forgot their little daughter. But Jesus said kindly, "See! She must be hungry. Go and bring her some food." She was not only alive again,
