The destroyers started in pursuit of the Germans in a northwesterly direction and discovered eventually that the enemy ships were making for their base. A grim fight ensued, according to the stories of eye-witnesses. None of the German torpe-does found a mark, but the Morris, emerging from an enemy smoke screen, cut off a German destroyer of a large type and torpedoed her at a range of 500 yards. There was an explosion in the enemy vessel and she gacity caused her husband to prove adamantine in his refusal to let himself be sidetracked into the House of Lords, Mrs. Gladstone's devotion to her fameus husband is a matter of general knowledge. Elizabeth Lee, who writes a book on the "Wives of Prime Ministers," speaks of her wise diplomacy concerning her husband's affairs: "When she was asked what Gradstone was going to do in some crisis or other, she would answer with the greatest naivete, 'Well, I wonder, don't you? What do you think, he ought to do?' Once only, in the early days of her married life, she unwittingly said something that showed she possessed some important articles in the home that Jong since have outlived their usefulness. For instance, that old piano that has been there for years and is not what it should be, either musically or in appearance. Would this not be a good time to call on the well-known music house of H. J. Smith and Co. and see what difference you would be required to pay for a new one, and secure it before they advances more in price—as they certainly will. Ask them to see the old one now and quote difference—you will be under no obligation to buy.

Wonder, don't you? What do you think he ought to do?' Once only, in the early days of her married life, she unwittingly said something that showed she possessed some important knowledge of a confidential character. She was very penitent, but Gladstone said: 'It is the only mistake you ever made.'' In devotion to her husband Mrs. Disraeli may be said to have rivaled Mrs. Gladstone, but she undoubtedly had the knack of saying things which might have been left unsaid, or said a little less clumsily. Some one once asked Disraeli if he did not get annoyed by the gauche things his wife so often said. He replied, "Oh, no! I am never put out by them." "Well then," retorted his interlocutor, "you must be a man of most extraordinary qualities," "Not at all," answered Disraeli, "I only possess one quality in which most men are deficient—gratitude."

"Native" Science,

"Native" Science.

The traveller of superior knowledge doesn't always impress the "native," or indeed, get the better of him in a contest of wits. A story is told of Sir John Lubbock that a countryman was assisting him in a field. Sir John, who was always ready to quicken the intelligence of any one who might be in his company, said to him, pointing to a heap of stones: "Do you know how these stones are made?" "Why, sir, I 'spect they growed, same as 'taturs." "Well," rejoined Lubbock, "if they lay there for hfty years, they would not get any higger." "No, sir," was the reply, "in course they wouldn't—same as 'taturs. Take 'taturs out o' the ground and they stop growin'!"

Owing to the rather critical conditions prevailing in the jute industries in Scotland the Dundee jute spinners and manufacturers are largely in favor of resorting to a stoppage of a certain proportion of machinery in their works. The Government has made known its desire for a reduction of 10 per cent. on the 1916 consumption of raw jute, and at a recent meeting of the spinners and discreet, fair judgment, unparally agreed that the reduction
