

How Chathamites will Spend the Summer

A SERIES OF SKETCHES OF THE CHARMING RESORTS WHICH BECKON PLANET READERS FOR THE LONG VACATION.

NO. 1—ERIE LAKE.

Within a month or so the screen doors, electric fans and the green barriers on the bar-room entrances will have made their appearance and residents of the city will be deserting the precincts, seeking recreation, rest and cool places.

The past season has furnished some eventful incidents, but for the most part, there has been little of interest, just the same round of pleasures, dances, dinners, and the theatre have provided the main means of entertainment during the winter months. Thanks to Manager Cairns, the class of shows appearing at the Grand has been better than usual but that is past history and now everybody's thoughts are complicated on the question, "How shall I spend the summer?"

Of course those who own cottages at Erieau, Erie Beach, and Port Lambton, have the question already decided for them—the others have something to occupy their attention for a few weeks.

It often strikes me, when considering where to spend a summer outing, that those who have cottages at resorts must feel a certain satisfaction. They do not have to worry or hesitate between where to go and where not to go.

Erieau, since it sees the greater number of Chatham people, holds the place of primary importance. The reason for this particularity is in great part due to the show of acres which it has—a very desirable quality in a watering place.

Methods, already that I hear a girl saying, "Erieau, glorious old Erieau! How the thoughts of many a happy day spent on the sands and in the waters that lap the shores on either side, draws me back to spend one more summer with thee."

Girls, I am told, are charming creatures and an essential requisite of a good summer resort. They spend the time and enjoy themselves. Sometimes you may think they are not enjoying themselves, but really they are. They get all kinds of enjoyment out of it in the winter time, too, when they tell you about the great times they had in the summer. It is then that memory is sweeter than the actual pleasure.

Already Maple Cities who own cottages at Erieau have set their faces to the southward and are getting their residences ready for occupancy.

Those whom we are sure to have with us always at the Eau from Chatham are: J. W. Mann and family, Wm. Wilmore and family, C. C. Greening and family, Douglas Glass and family, Mrs. Ryan and family, J. E. Thomas and family, G. K. Atkinson and family, W. E. Rispen and family, Archie Park and family, A. F. Falls and family, W. S. Marshall and family, W. E. Campbell and family, E. B. Smith and family, W. W. Scane and family, W. H. Harper and family, C. D. Williamson and family, Dr. Sive-wright and family, Dr. Hall and family, William Nichol and family, Homer Turner and family, Chief Young and family, James Brackin and family, T. J. Rutley and family, Dr. McKeough and family, Supt. Jones and family, and a host of others.

There are also quite a number from Blenheim, and we must not forget to mention Drumtochty Lodge, the cheerful summer residence of W. D. Sampson of Blenheim, where everybody has a good time and a hospitable welcome awaits all. It is as much a part of Erieau as the diamond setting is of the ring.

Erieau is deservedly popular. There, boating, fishing, bathing, sailing, fresh air and picnics can always be enjoyed. The fishing is unsurpassed and no where is there such an ideal angler's paradise. The six pound black bass are never caught elsewhere so plentifully as at Erieau. The Eau itself furnishes the finest body of water for yachting to be found. Every resident of the Eau is proud of it. Then the ponds and the marshes are full of water lilies that can be secured for the picking. The happy day spent on the sands and in the waters that lap the shores on either side, draws me back to spend one more summer with thee."

In the evenings there are quiet walks, bonfires, and taffy pulls, always something to be done and always plenty to do it. The children enjoy themselves playing in the sand, the older folks in the shade of the spacious verandahs and everybody has a good time.

In next Saturday's Planet I will have something more to say about other places where Chatham people will spend their vacation this summer.

cated with the officers in command at Long Point, Burlington, and with Major General Vincent commanding the centre division.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
HENRY PROCTOR,
Major General.
Kingston.

Dundas, 7th Dec., 1813.

Sir,—Herewith I beg leave to enclose copy of a certificate signed in duplicate by Major General Proctor, by which it appears that the schooner Ellen of fifty-nine tons burden, my property, was taken into public service as a transport at Amherstburg about the fifteenth of June last and was so continued until the third of October, when she was burnt at the River Thames to prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy, by order of Major General Proctor. That she was valued by me at five hundred pounds when taken into the service, for which amount together with reasonable allowance for the use of her from the said 15th of June to 3rd of October following, compensation is now claimed by me from the government. I trust this matter will meet your early attention and you will see it right to order immediate payment.

I have the honor to be respectfully,
Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
RD. PATTERSON,
Maj. Gen. Vincent, etc.

CERTIFICATE.

I do certify that the schooner Ellen, fifty-nine tons burden, the property of Richd. Patterson, Esq., was taken into public service as a transport, about the fifteenth of June last, and was burnt at the River Thames by my orders on the third of October, together with her rigging, sails and stores, to prevent her falling into the hands of the enemy, and that she was valued by him at five hundred pounds province currency. Having signed duplicate receipts, Burlington Heights, 22nd Nov., 1813. (Sgd.) HENRY PROCTOR, Major General.

ES FAME IS LAUDED IN OUR BEST HOTELS AND RESTAURANTS

Malt Breakfast Food IS KING OF THE BREAKFAST TABLE

Delicious, palate tickling and healthful Malt Breakfast Food while it reigns in thousands of families as King of the Breakfast Table, has also extended its fame and sway to the best hotels and restaurants of our Dominion and has clearly demonstrated its superiority over the common grain foods such as oatmeal, cracked wheat, hominy, etc.

Malt Breakfast Food with its peculiarly delicious flavor, its great nutritive properties, its adaptability for the digestion of weak and strong people, has become the favorite breakfast food of the homes of the rich and poor and in our palatial hotels and restaurants. Try a package of the great health food that all the best physicians are recommending. One 15 cent package of Malt Breakfast Food makes from twenty-five to thirty meals; as cheap as the cheapest oatmeal. All Grocers.

His Winter Mood—Mr. Subbubs— "I wish you would list my villa at Bakkels-by-the-Bay for sale." Real Estate Agent—"Certainly, sir," Mr. Subbubs—"And if you do not find purchasers by the end of October see if you can't give the place away to some one."

The healthy old man wears his gray hairs like a silver crown. What if he be threescore and ten if there is still fire in his eye, firmness in his step, command in his voice and wisdom in his counsel? He commands love and reverence. Yet how few wear the mantle of age with dignity. Dim eyed, querulous of speech, halting in their step, childish in mind, they drag "lag superfluities on the stage," dragging out the end of life in a simple existence. The secret of a healthy old age is a healthy middle-age. The man who takes care of his stomach, who keeps his body properly nourished, will find that the body does not fail him in old age. The great value of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery lies in the preservation of the working power of the stomach and the other organs of digestion and nutrition. From this centre is distributed the nourishment of the whole body, the salt of the blood, the lime for the bones, phosphates for the brain and nerves. A sound stomach means a sound man. A man who keeps his stomach sound by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" will wear the crown of gray hairs as befits a monarch, with dignity and ease.

OUR STORY TELLER

AN AWFUL FRIGHT.

Two haggard looking men lined up at Grand Central Station yesterday and purchased tickets for Fredericton, New Brunswick. They were eager to escape from New York, "the City of Dreadful Night." They had shivered in fear of being robbed and murdered. They had been accused of arson, attempted burglary and disorderly conduct, they had wrecked Mrs. Talent's respectable home at 33 West Sixteenth street, been arrested and, been frightened well nigh to death, and they yearned for the little cathedral town down by the river where three policemen are too many.

The policemen attached to the West Thirtieth street station laughed coarsely about it all day yesterday, but they have no fine feelings. To the Canadians it was tragic from the fall of the flag.

William R. Wilkes and John F. Howie, young men who are stout of heart and body at home, and who have some property there and are members of the first families, came to New York on Saturday, to learn cutting from a fashionable tailor in Fifth avenue. They intended to sit at the feet of this artist for a week or more, and then return to make a new suit of clothes as a place where one's life is in constant jeopardy and one's life is not worth a moment's purchase.

THEY EXPECTED THE WORST. They expected the worst, but what actually happened outran even their imaginations. They went to 33 West Sixteenth street and rented from Mrs. Talent a room on the second floor, to rear, for which they paid $6.50. In paying for it, as they recalled subsequently, they were in very great fear, they displayed large rolls of bills.

The house is a very respectable one, but the Canadians suspected every one without exception. A policeman, who was not to sleep, but to tremble under the covers and converse in whispers. Someone tried the door and asked admittance. Several rays followed. The door had been opened, but no reply. One of them said yesterday he heard a woman in the hall say: "Oh, George, why not knock them cold and get them out of the way quick?"

THEY BURNED SIGNALS FROM THE WINDOW.

This may have been imagination, but the startled persons from New Brunswick had no intention of going into the hall to investigate. To them the whispering without meant murder. The window was boarded up with burning lights at sea. Wilkes stripped off the pillow cases, set them on fire and threw them out of the window, hoping to attract the attention of the police. The clock in the steeple struck one. They were sure they would not hear it strike again. The flaming cotton sailed down into the yard. The Canadians crouched in a corner, waiting for the fire to reach the door. They occupied, saw the reflection of the fiery signals and rapped on their door. No answer. Frightened whispering within.

"God preserve us," from Wilkes. Howard called in Policeman Gilligan, telling him there was something fearful coming to pass in the room occupied by the Canadians. Gilligan beat open the door.

ROPE MADE OF CURTAINS.

"Open up!" yelled Gilligan. "Wh-a-a-a-dye want?" queried a tremulous voice within.

"I'm a policeman. Let me in," said Gilligan.

"You'll never murder us in cold blood," was the wavering answer. As Gilligan put his shoulder to the door Wilkes pulled down four lace curtains twisted them into ropes, knotted them together, fastened one end to the window sill, threw the other into the yard and yelled to Howie:—

"Quick, for your life. Think of your wife and children."

WILKES SLAPPED AND FELL. Howie said to the yard, but Wilkes, following just as Gilligan burst in the door, slipped and fell, splitting his face, lacerating his scalp, and spraining his ankle. He lay where he struck.

So Mr. Howie, already he fancied he felt a knife between his shoulders. Gilligan, roaring at the window, Howie felt certain was a bloody minded murderer. So Howie sprang at an eight foot fence and was over it like a scared cat. Gilligan retrieved Wilkes, but Howie, mad with fear, ran to the rear basement door of Mrs. Galt's boarding house, 44 West Seventeenth street. It was locked. He broke the glass, his hand through, turned the key and dashed into the sleeping quarters of five servant girls.

PANIC AMONG SERVANT GIRLS.

In a second five nightgowned forms were flying about and the air was vocal with such shrill remarks as "Murder!" "Fire!" "There he is!" "Spare me for mother's sake!" "Police!"

A bound or two carried Howie to the front door. Locked! He dashed his feet through the glasslock. It once through he crouched under the front steps. He was beginning to think life in a great city did not agree with him.

Policeman Hutchinson heard the crash of glass and approached. He saw the form of Howie and thrust a big revolver in his face.

"Don't you move," he said, "or I'll kill you like a rat."

"I wouldn't move," said Mr. Howie, "for a million dollars."

ARRESTED AND SET FREE.

He was locked up for attempted burglary, and when a hospital surgeon had inserted six stitches in the countenance of Mr. Wilkes he too was locked up. Gilligan then sought Mr. Talent, the lady's husband. That person was disposed to be impertinent and was arrested for interfering with the police. The police soon discovered that the Canadians were not criminals but were simply crazed temporarily by the heat of that they were about to be robbed and murdered.

Magistrate Cornell discharged them in Jefferson Market yesterday, but he held Talent for further examination.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

THE GREAT REGULATOR OF THE DIGESTIVE ORGANS

The Only Medicine That Gives Tone and Strength to the weakened and Irritated Nerves of the Stomach and Digestive Machinery.

The lives of the majority of men and women are made miserable by some form of stomach derangement. It may be common indigestion, or the ordinary weak stomach, Paine's Celery Compound quickly overcomes all trouble, gives tone and strength to the weak and over-worked stomach, stimulates the appetite, puts the digestive apparatus in proper condition to pass the food over to the blood and converted into nerve, brain, muscle and tissue. Miss Hien, of Eganville, Ont., writes as follows:—

"I was troubled with a severe pain in my stomach for four years and I could not eat meat or any strong food. I was under the care of doctors and used a vast number of patent medicines, but received no benefit. A lady friend who had been cured by Paine's Celery Compound after years of suffering advised me to give your medicine a trial. I did so, and was completely cured. I can eat any kind of food now and feel well and strong."
