PRESENTED AT COURT ABSOLUTE

Experience of an American at an English Royal Levee.

A RAPID TRANSIT FUNCTION.

He Was In and Through and Out Before He Really Realized What Had Happened—The Way His Difficulty About a Costume Was Overcome.

A six foot American who had se enred a "command" to one of the Eng-lish royal levees recently found him-self in a pretty predicament. On his notification paper was the hint that levee dress was indispensa-ble. In the guileless innocence of his cratic soul the American took this to mean that frock coat and shiny shoes would be called for.

He was in the act of looking over his sest outfit of that nature when a more experienced friend called and caught experienced friend caned and caught him in the act. The friend made haste to inform the misguided Yankee that levee dress involved silk stockings, ruffled sleeves, black sword and other to ensue when owing to his height and girth no borrowable suit was discovered and no tailor could be found who would make one before the next after-noon. At last a stage levee dress was rented from His Majesty's theater, where it had done duty in "The Last of the Dandies."

After the levee was over the American confessed that he hardly knew what had happened. When he reached the palace he was first surrounded by the yeomen of the guard, who started him upstairs with great dispatch. In the course of his progress upstairs the yeomen disappeared, and he found himself in a lane of tin plated life uardsmen. Again the scene changed, says Town and Country, and there was a lane of royal footmen and next a large room filled to overflowing with admirals, generals, diplomats, peers, chamber-lains, soldiers and sailors of all degrees of commissioned rank and a great host of men attired like himself in levee dress. One by one they were singled out and ushered into the royal presence in the adjoining room, where stood the king surrounded by his suit. The work of presentation was so rapid that the American found himself out and in another room before he knew what had happened. His overcoat was on his back in the same rapid, mysterious fashion, and the next thing he knew he was outside in the courtyard. But he was actually "presented" and is now forever Hof-fahig, or eligible for presentation at any court in the world, provided be be-

All this was preliminary to the presentation of the man's wife and daughter at the drawing room. Men are presented at the king's levees, and the women undergo the same ordeal at the courts or drawing rooms, which are by far the more imposing functions. It is probably no exaggeration to say that every time a drawing room is held £100,000 is spent by the people who go to court.

None but a very old habitue of the court—and then she is never below the rank of a countess-would dream of appearing at court in a costume that she had worn there before. The item of flowers alone is one of vast impor-tance. If it were not for the drawing noms the large florists could not exist. Every woman who is presented goes armed with a bouquet, whose value is at least a pound, and some of them are worth ten times that sum. Then there are the bookmakers and the hosiers and the milliners to consider, to say nothing. of the people who lend carriages. e there are at a low estimate 500 people on the presentation list. Of these every mother's daughter has herself photographed in her court cos-tume, and London court photographers are notorious for their stiff prices.

St. James' park on the night of a drawing room is filled with Londoners who wander up and down the double line of carriages stalled in the mall, ble line of carriages stalled in the mall, peering into the windows and criticising the costumes of the matrons and their debutante daughters. It is a legitimate privilege of the populace to consider those waiting for presentation as objects of interest, and there the latter have to sit, some of them over an nour, subjected to the gaze of London's citizens. You see half a dozen shopgirls fiattening their noses against the window of a motor brougham and carrying on a rapid fire conversation about the dress of milady and her daughter inside.

"Ain't she bestiful Many and and the daughter inside. an hour, subjected to the gaze of Lon-daughter inside.

"Ain't she becotiful, Mary Ann?" or "Wot do you think of this un? Oi don't like 'er gown at all."

All this has to be borne with Spartan fortitude so long as there is no rowdylsm; but, strange to say, there

A good many people starve them-selves for months so that they and their offspring may have the money to enable them to go to court. There are many half pay colonels who live in the country whose one object is to come up for a drawing room. Generally they have influential and wealthy friends who make it easy for them in the matter of lodging in town them in the matter of lodging in town and lend them their horses, carriages and footmen; otherwise it would be impossible for them to go. There seems to be a tradition that if a man's daughter has not been presented at court her way to a successful marriage will not be so smooth. That of course is a fallacy, but the tradition never dies, and so people stint themselves and endure endless sacrifices that they may put the hall mark on themselves and their aftering.

The raw infantry who shambled into camp Tuesday in disorder are now executing manoeuvers with a decided military swing and precision.
The progress made in the cavalry brigade is most remarkable. It is about nip and tuck between the men and horses as to which have taken to the manual most readily.

As to the general behavior of the men, Sergt. Maj. Widgery, the camp sergeant-major and chief of police can testify. There has been only one desertion and two arrests for misdemeanor. Few men have been seen under the influence of liquor.

The army medical corps up till Friday had not been called upon to do nuch work. Minor cases of sickness have been practically the only ills the doctors have had to attend. Friday afternoon, however, an accident occurred under very peculiar circumstances. While making a tackle in a football game, Pte. Baker of the 36th got his upper jaw broken through contact with another fellow's elbow.

Pte. William Irwin, a cook, of the 34th Regiment, died in the camp hospital yesterday afternoon, of acute kidney trouble. This is the first fatality which has occurred on the camp-ground in five years.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver teachled," by the second of the second trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It re-stores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-mak ing glands, cleanses the system from polsonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.
