

SHE RECOMMENDS "FRUIT-A-TIVES"
Mrs. Corbett Read the Advertisement and Tried It
 Aveo, May 14th, 1914.
 "I have used 'Fruit-a-tives' for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. I saw 'Fruit-a-tives' advertised with a letter in which some one recommended them very highly, so I tried them. The results were more than satisfactory, and I have no hesitation in recommending 'Fruit-a-tives'."
ANNIE A. CORBETT.
 Time is proving that 'Fruit-a-tives' can always be depended upon to give prompt relief in all cases of Constipation and Stomach Trouble.
 Box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Grandmother's Counsel.
 Grandmother says in her quaint old way,
 "World wasn't made in a day—a day,
 And that blue sky, where the white clouds fit
 Why the Lord was six days painting it!
 The way ain't sunny
 But don't you fret!
 Cheer up honey!
 You'll get there yet!"
 World wasn't made in a day—a day,
 The meadow there, where you love to sit,
 Why the Lord took time to carpet it!
 The way ain't sunny
 But don't you fret!
 Cheer up honey!
 You'll get there yet!"
 Sweet and true as a chime of bells,
 Helpful, helpful the word she tells,
 And I dream brave dreams as I hear her say
 "World wasn't made in a day—a day
 The way ain't sunny
 But don't you fret!
 Cheer up honey!
 You'll get there yet!"

To the Saloon-keeper.
 If we be pronounced upon the man who gives his neighbor drink, how many woes must be hanging over the man who does this every day and every hour of the day! Do not think because human government may license you that therefore God licenses you. No enactment, national, State, or municipal, can give the right to carry on a business whose effect is destruction.
 I tell you plainly that you will meet your customers one day when there will be no counter between you. When your work is done on earth, and you enter the reward of your business, all the souls of the men whom you have destroyed will, as it were, crowd around you, and pour their bitterness into your cup. They will show you their wounds and say, "You made them;" and point to their unquenchable thirst and say, "You kindled it;" and rattle their chains and say, "You forged them." Then their united groans will smite your ear; and with the hands out of which you once pluck the sixpences and dimes they will push you off the verge of great precipices; while rolling up from beneath, and breaking away among the crags of death, will thunder, "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink!"

Pass on the Praise.
 "You're a great little wife, and I don't know what I would do without you." And as he spoke he put his arms about her and kissed her, and she forgot all the care in that moment. And forgetting it all, she sang as she washed the dishes, and sang as she made the beds, and the song was heard next door, and the woman there caught up the refrain and sang also, and two homes were happier because he had told her that sweet old story—the story of the love of a husband for a wife. As she sang the butcher boy who called for the order heard it, and went out whistling on his journey, and the world heard the whistle, and one man hearing it thought, "Here is a lad who loves his work, a lad happy and contented."
 And because she sang her heart was mellowed and as she swept about the back door the cool air kissed her on each cheek, and she thought of a poor old woman she knew, and a little basket went over to that home with a quarter for a crate or two of wood.
 So, because he kissed her and praised her, the song came and the influence went out and out.
 Pass on the praise.
 A word and you make a rift in the cloud, a smile and you may create a new resolve, a grasp of the hand and you may rouse a soul from hell.
 Pass on the praise.—Heart Throbs

SMART THIEVES BUSY AT ENGLISH STATION

English Baggage "Crock" Evidently a Person of Great Ingenuity and Nerve
 The railway platform thief has little to learn in artfulness from the "heathen Chinese." He is a man of infinite tricks and disguises, so skilful and daring that he can practise his arts almost under the noses of the detectives whose duty it is to trap him. He is almost invariably a well dressed man, with an air of prosperity calculated to deceive the most suspicious, and when he is not engaged in his employment he often leads a life of luxury.
 One of his favorite and most successful methods is to walk on to a platform as a heavily laden passenger train steams into the station. In the bustle and confusion that follow, he slips a tip into the hand of a porter, rushes him up to the pile of luggage which is being shot out of the van, and, pointing to the most valuable looking batch, says, "That's mine, I'm in a great hurry. Just get it out for me, will you, and give it to my man." At the moment a confederate, dressed in groom's livery, steps up and takes the baggage from the porter, and, presenting the brace of fowls he has disappeared, he tells the real owner discovers his loss his luggage is a good half-mile away, with its porters, in a swift taxi.
 Carries Fake Labels
 Another ingenious trick is for the thief to await the arrival of the train, with an addressed and moistened label in his hand. As the guard turns out the luggage, he selects a promising portmanteau, quietly affixes his label to it, and walks a few paces away. Then he summons a porter to bring his bag, labelled "Mr. Blank Daah," to a cab which he has already engaged.
 On another occasion our ingenious thief will stroll on to a crowded platform, carrying a large dummy bag, which is a mere empty shell, with a bottom which opens on pressure. When he sees an unattended dressing case of suitable size, he seizes a favorable opportunity to slip his dummy bag over it. A touch of a spring in the handle releases a series of prongs, which grip the imprisoned bag securely, and, picking up his own bag, he walks off with its unoccupied contents.
 The Carriage Thief
 One enterprising thief reaped a large harvest by the following method before at last he was caught. Carrying a large violin case, he would look out for a first class compartment which was momentarily left by its occupants—preferably ladies. Entering, he would quietly slip into his case any small articles, with a special eye to jewel cases; and then, exclaiming, "This is the wrong carriage; I want a smoker," he would step hastily out, mix with the crowd, and vanish as rapidly as possible.
 Another notorious thief was more daring in his method. Waiting until some passenger, having deposited his luggage in a compartment, stepped out again to buy a paper, he would readily summon a porter, and ask if this was the train for "St. Andrews." On being told that it was not, and that the train he wanted was at a distant platform—he would seize one of the articles, and, bidding the porter bring the rest, rush off to the proper platform, dismiss the porter, and, as soon as he was out of view, bundle his spoil into a cab and drive swiftly away.

Phillies' Sad Record
 Seldom in Long Career Have They Stayed Near the Top
 The history of the Phillies clubs of bygone days is replete with shattered dreams. Time and again the Phillies have started off in the spring at a whitened clip and raised high the hopes of their adherents. And then came the inevitable crash. Then came a change after many years. The 1915 Phillies started along at the same clip—but it reversed things during the summer by maintaining that clip; by meeting every attack and beating it back; by playing better baseball day in and day out than was shown by any other club in the old league.
 Bob Ferguson was the first manager of the Phillies. His 1883 club finished last. The next year he was supplanted by Harry Wright, who remained as manager until the 1893 season. Over his ten-year stretch the best any of Wright's teams did was to land in third place. Bob Allen finished out his 1895 season as manager and early in 1894 Wright came back. He lasted only half the season. Arthur Irwin succeeded him as manager and that 1894 outfit finished third. In 1895 Irwin again was manager. His team finished third. Billy Nash took up the job of managing the Phillies in 1896 and quit. Then in 1897 George Stallings took a whirl, finished tenth in his twelve-month league, and quit in the summer of 1898. William Shethine succeeded Stallings and lingered around as manager until 1902. In 1901 Shethine brought his club home in second place.
 "Chief" Zimmer, the old catcher, was the Phillies manager in 1903, and Hugh Duffy in 1904-05-06. In 1907-08-09 Billy Murray was manager. He was succeeded in 1910 by Charley Doolin. The red-headed catcher was imposed in 1911 and Moran landed the job.

EVERY STAR HAS MADE ONE "BONEHEAD" PLAY
 Sad Record of Managers, Players, Fans, and Even Mathewson—The Merkle's Are Legion
 They call Fred Merkle a "bonehead," but Merkle is one of the smartest players in baseball. After starting on first base for the Giants McGraw switched him to the outfield, and in the National league they claim that few of all the ball players in the major, could be classed with Merkle's for gardening ability. Merkle is not the only wise man in baseball; who has made what appeared as a serious blunder. "Bone" plays have been pulled by owners, managers and players and some of the biggest mistakes have been made by the recognized stars.
 A fan in New York city has compiled a record of the leading "rock" play made in the last 150 years. Here is the record he furnishes:
 "When Bill Deverly accomplished the release of George Stallings as manager of the Yanks.
 "When Fred Merkle forgot to touch second and thereby robbed the Giants of a pennant.
 "When Frank Chance traded Hal Chase for Ebbets and Bill's Zoller.
 "When 'Chubby' Charley Ebbets refused to pay Joe Tinker the salary demanded by the latter to play with Brooklyn, which resulted in the 'making' of the Federal league.
 "When Cincinnati traded Mathewson for Amos Rusie.
 "When Chief Bender refused to go to New York in 1914 to lead the Boston Braves or to discover the latter's weak points.
 "When Connie Mack and Organized Ball permitted Eddie Plank to join the Federal league.
 "When Anderson stole second with the bases full.
 "When Vincent Campbell and Harden of the Braves jumped to the Federal league and lost their share of the world series money.
 "When Mathewson grooved a ball for 'Home Run' Baker in the world series, which the latter knocked into the right field bleachers for a home run.
 "When the Athletic management refused to permit the Philadelphia newspapers to place the scores on their bulletin board.
 "When Jack Chesbro of the Yankees pitched a game in the rain and permanently disabled his pitching arm.
 "When 'Cy' Seymour ignored Mathewson's request to play 'for Joe Tinker' and the latter knocked a three banger over his head and won the deciding game for the National league pennant.
 "When Jim Thorpe played professional ball as a minor league under an assumed name and disguise and was self as an amateur.
 "When Walter Johnson returned that $20,000 cheque to the Chicago Federals.
 "When O'Mara, the Brooklyn shortstop, refused to play for the Boston Braves, although three of his teammates tried to drag him down to first base.
 "When Connie Mack refused to sell 'Home Run' Baker to the Yankees.
 "When Charlie Giffith refused to sign Eddie Collins for the Yankees.
 "When Weeghtman, of Chicago, handed out free passes in his lunch room for admission to the Chicago grounds.
 "When Appling, of Brooklyn threw the ball to Miller Huggins who was coaching at third base, and allowed two Cardinals to score, thus losing his game.
 "When Horace Povel tried to make a first basemen out of Mathewson.
 "When McGraw tried to play Benny Kauff in the outfield, although the latter was ineligible according to the rules of organized baseball.
 "When 'Hat' Chase tried to play shortstop for the Yankees.
 "When Howard Camnitz signed a contract with the Federals containing a ten days' release clause, and then was released unconditionally.
 "When the Boston fans refused to support the best minor league team ever put together, turning their allegiance to the Federals.
 "When a tallener, but killed International league ball."

Hardening of the Arteries

An Interesting Explanation of How This Dreaded Condition is Brought About.

You take out the garden hose in the spring, turn on the water, and if the rubber has got hard and brittle the tubing bursts and water spurts out in all directions.
 The arteries of the human body may be likened to small rubber pipes, which go everywhere through the body and carry blood to the hands and feet, as well as to the nerves, muscles and vital organs. They carry all the blood in the system, and if the liver and kidneys are not properly performing their filtering work, these poisons form a deposit on the inside walls of the arteries.
 The deposit thus formed gradually thickens and hardens the walls of the arteries. The tiny blood vessels of the liver are affected, and thence comes that fatal disease—cirrhosis of the liver. The cells of the kidneys become starved for want of blood, and Bright's disease gets its start.
 In health the arteries have the elasticity of rubber, and expand, contract or elongate, as required, by the demands of the blood pressure. Hardened, the arteries are like so much brittle rubber tubing. The blood pressure comes on, the tubing bursts, and the resulting blood clot on the brain causes apoplexy.

It will be plainly seen that the cause of trouble is in the inefficient condition of the liver and kidneys. When these filtering organs are kept healthy and active, and the bowels regular in the removal of waste matter, there is no chance for such dreadful conditions as hardening of the arteries bring about.
 As in all forms of serious disease, prevention is the only wise course to follow. You can positively depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to awaken the action of liver and kidneys, and also ensure the regularity of movement of the bowels. It is only by the activity of these organs that the blood can be kept pure and free from uric acid and other substances which form deposits in the arteries and at other points in the human system, causing pain, suffering and serious disease.
 When you think of the scores of common ills, such as colds, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, backaches, etc., which arise from a torpid condition of these organs, you will better understand the reason why Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the favorite family medicine in many thousands of homes. By keeping the liver, kidneys and bowels active they cure the common ills of life, and prevent serious disease. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edman-son, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

The Last Resort.
 Pat's one trouble was that he could not wake up in the morning. His landlady had tried every device she could think of, but even the most determined of alarm clocks had no effect on Pat's slumbers.
 One day he returned home from his work with a larger paper print.
 "There, now, Miss Jennie," said he triumphantly, "as I unwrapped a huge bell, and what I've think of that!"
 "Goodness, man!" exclaimed the surprised landlady. "What ever are you wanting with that great thing?"
 As he tucked the bell under his arm and prepared to go upstairs, Pat replied, with a knowing grin:
 "Sure, and I'm going to ring it at six o'clock every mornin', and wake myself up!"

Signs of Kidney Trouble.
