THE DYING WIFE.

Sit down, sit down at my bedside, Ay, husband, sit ye here, An' fash me, fash me to your heart, An' kiss me, Robin dear.

The world is cold, the world is cold, An' ye will miss me sair, But dinna grieve; I'm better, love, Awa' frae sin and care.

Ye'll tend the bairnies for my sake,— The wee lambs at your knee, Ye'll tell them o' their mother whiles, Ye'll speak to them o' me.

It's sair they'll greet when I am gone, It's lang they'll miss my face, But I'll be where grief canna come, Nor sorrow have a place.

O Jeanie, 'wi' your looks o' gowd, My heart is for ye, O Willie 'wi' your father's face, An' eae o' bonnie blue.

Come here to me, come here to me, My bonnie bairnies twa, An' tak' a mother's blessing baith, Afore I gang awa'.

Ye'll love each other weel, my bairns, Ye'll love God's holy name, Ye'll never grieve your father's heart, Nor bow his head wi' shame.

Ye'll live the lives that guid folk should, Tho' ye may struggle lang, An' think I'm lookin' down on ye, Whenever ye do wrang.

An' Robin, Robin, when I'm laid At rest aneath the sod, Ye'll think o' her that lo'd ye weel— That baid ye next to God; Ye'll think o' a' the happy times, Ye'll mind the day again

Ye took me frae my father's house So young to be your ain.

An' Robin, I have tried to be A guid wife unto ye; Gin I've ever said or done Ye dinna mind it noo; But ye will tak' me for free this, Awa', awa', frae here,

An' lay me where the daisies grow, Beside my father dear.

I'm faith, I'm faith to leave ye a' Creep closer to my heart, An' kneel, ye Robin, down to Him, An' pray afore we part.

Ay, pray ye a' may see His face, We a' may meet again Where we shall never ken a grief, An' never have a pain.

ONLY A HUSB.

Tom Darcy, yet a young man, had grown to be a very hard one. At heart he might have been all right, if his head and his will had been all right; but these things being wrong, the whole machine was going to the bad very fast, though there were times when the heart felt something of its own truthful reasonings.

Tom had lost his place as foreman of the great machine shop, and what money he now earned came from odd jobs of tinkering which he was able to do here and there at private houses, for Tom was a genius as well as a mechanic, and when his head was steadily he could mend a clock or clean a watch as well as he could set up and regulate a steam engine, and this latter he could do better than any other man employed by the Scott Falls Manufacturing Company.

One day Tom had a job to mend a broken-down machine and paper, for which he had received five dollars, and on the following morning he started out for his old haunt, the village tavern. He knew that his wife sadly needed the money, and that his two little children were
