The East Again.

The censor continues to interpose his ban upon news from the Western front, an action interpreted to mean that an offensive of more than ordinary importance and dimensions is preparing. There will be news enough when it is launched and under way. Meanwhile other news comes from other fronts which is both suggestive and encouraging. General Cadorna has struck again and struck hard. Madoni, where a fresh success has been scored, is northeast of the famous San Gabriele and on the upper line of mountains which fringe the Chiapovano valley. Every foot won towards this natural outlet from the maze of hills and rocks is invaluable, and the number of prisoners taken shows the engagement to have been a large one. After the long lull it is likely that the Italians will put forth another supreme effort, of which this victory is but the beginning.

There is another direction, also, and one which has lately dropped out of sight, in which they have been quietly active for some time. They have followed up their fine feat of transporting a large Italian army across the Straits of Otranto to Albania, without the loss of a ship or a man, by building a military road clear across that province to the Allies' front south of Monastir, linking up direct communication with General Sarrail. There have been frequent hints of late of greater doings in this neglected theatre of war than the usual desultory bombardments; if an offensive flames out suddenly the Italians will play no small part in it.

Most refreshing is the British victory in Mesopotamia. The torrid heat of the summer is abating and operations are again possible. But it was not certain that they would first be resumed on our side. The failure of the Russian support had caused a general belief that the Turks would make a determined effort to retake Bagdad and restore their shattered prestige, and it was felt that General Maude would have his hands full even to defend his position. Yet it is he that has taken the initiative, and not only the initiative but a general and his staff to boot. The message speaks of the action as still continuing. At the same time the Russians have come back in the Caucasus, and it is possible that the two successes are co-ordinated. If so, it is an encouraging symptom of Russia's recovery and Turkey's exhaustion. It is possible the Turk has not the same plenty of German guns and German officers that two years ago saved Constantinople, and he has been quiescent for a long time, like his Bulgarian friend. It will be interesting to see how far and in what manner events develop in these lesser regions of war. The war itself is truly growing up to a climax.

Officers for Militia Department Arrive.

Major Walter Rendell and Lieutenant Gerald G. Byrne, M.C., reached the city by Saturday's express and were met at the station by a number of relatives and friends. Major Rendell, who left here with the first five hundred as Adjutant of the Regiment, was twice wounded, being among the first to get hit at Gallipoli. After recovering from his wound he was transferred to France and was among the first of "Ours" to stop a Hun bullet in that theatre of war. For upwards of a year Major Rendell was confined to hospital and still feels the effects of his wounds. Lieutenant Byrne also left here with the first five hundred as a non-commissioned officer, and served through the Gallipoli campaign, where for devotion to duty he was some time after awarded the Military Cross. He also saw active service in France. Both young officers are very popular in the Regiment and their appointment to important positions in the Militia Department will meet with the general approval of the soldiers and the public in general. In extending a hearty welcome home to Major Rendell and Lieutenant Byrne, M.C., we congratulate them in the services they have rendered the Empire.

Obituary.

CAPT. T. FITZPATRICK.

We note with regret the death of Capt. Tom Fitzpatrick, which occurred at his home in Placentia on Saturday last. Deceased, who was in his sixtieth year, was a splendid type of man in every sense of the word and was well known and esteemed in the Island. A native of Placentia, he began the codfishery at the age of 15. He was a noted banking skipper, the fame he won being attributed to his industry, ability and dogged determination to succeed. His prowess as a mariner either on board the banking vessel or the coastal steamer is best testified to by the many heroic acts performed by him at great personal risk. He displayed brilliant seamanship during the many years he commanded the S. S. Algerine, Argyll and Portia. A few years ago he retired from the sea to occupy the position of Collector of Customs at Placentia. The travelling public know full well of Capt. Fitzpatrick's courtesy and obliging disposition. For some months past he had been suffering from an incurable malady, but he bore it resolutely and with typical manliness right to the end. He is survived by a widow and five daughters to whom much sympathy is extended.

Daylight Saving.

TELEGRAM FROM ITS CHAMPION.
NEW YORK, Sept. 30.
Editor Evening Telegram.

Hope the trial of the first summer saving of one hour of daylight has proved satisfactory to the people and profitable to the industry, trade and commerce and conducive to the physical, mental, moral and financial welfare of the country. We go back on Sunday night one hour. Hope the promised hour will be returned with golden compound interest in health, happiness and prosperity and the rich harvest of potatoes and hay.

Supreme Court.

Fall Session Opens—King's Counsel Receive Their Commissions.

The fall session of the Supreme Court opened this morning, the attendance being fairly large. The commissions of the Honorable W. F. Lloyd, P. J. Summers and James P. Blackwood as King's Counsel were read, and all three took the oath of allegiance of the office and were congratulated by the Chief Justice on behalf of the Bench.

The Grand Jury were sworn and are as follows: Henry Thomas (foreman), Ernest Snelgrove, Nicholas Worsley, Patrick Casey, John T. Coaker, John Williams, Bernard McGrath, Thomas Bowen, Ernest R. Pippy, Matthew Kelly, Edward Dougherty, Ernest R. Willis, John Savage and John B. Baird. The Chief Justice addressed the Grand Jury and sent two indictments to them—one against Alexander Morgan and Matthew Morgan for larceny, and one against Jonathan Raynes for carnally knowing Bertha Gould, a girl above the age of thirteen and under the age of sixteen years. The Grand Jury retired to consider the indictments. Several witnesses were examined and at 1 p.m. adjournment was taken till 2.30 o'clock.

Petol Ointment is a wonderfully good thing for piles. No ointment is a cure for this distressing trouble, but Petol comes as near to it as it is possible for a local remedy to get, and gives prompt and welcome relief. For eczema, acne, and skin diseases generally, it is a good thing, and a tube of it kept in the house is a good investment. For convenient tubes 40 cents each.

Sunset Soap Dyes have made good, and their use will go a long way towards solving a problem which has been urgent for the past three years or so. Any kind of fabrics can be dyed with this dye, and these Soap Dyes cleanses as well as color the goods in one operation. Price 15c. a pkg.

USE YOUR MIRROR OFTEN.

Do you look into your mirror often enough? Yes, of course you glance into it when you arrange your collars or fix your hair, but do you ever go to it and stare boldly at the reflection within?

Every woman who wants to improve her personal appearance will do well to learn how to use the mirror. She will take it where the light is strongest and begin studying her reflection as a whole—as a general assemblage of line and color. Then she can pick it to pieces later. The tour ensemble in what strikes the ordinary observer. The more intimate acquaintance even notices details.

What about the expression of the eyes and mouth? What is the story it tells? Does it tell a tale of selfishness, greed, deceit, conceit, superficiality? Or does it give out the lines of kindness, love, generosity, good sense, intelligence, friendliness? Or is there a queer, intermingling of good and bad expressions? And in that case which is the most enduring and which flashes across the face more often?

Just sit down with an open mind before your mirror and ask questions. You will learn a whole lot about yourself in a half hour. And if you are as wise as woman ought to be you can map out a campaign of beauty culture right in your own mind, and put it into effect with no one but yourself being the wiser and gain results that will make all your friends compliment you.

Sit down, sisters mine, and get out the most exacting mirror you can find. Pull the shades up and let the strongest and most fruitful and glaring light of day shine upon you.

Purge your mind and vision of every prejudice. Then work according to the result. There's a reason behind every frown, and every little curl of the lip may soon mean a fixed sneer. It is up to you to find out the reason and to right the fault.

JAPAN'S MONROE DOCTRINE

NEW YORK, To-day.

Proclaiming a Monroe Doctrine of war for the east, Viscount Ishihara, head of the Japanese mission to the United States, warned the nations of the world last night that his country will not tolerate aggressions against its territory or independence of China. At the same time he pledged Japan not to attempt similar aggressions on her part. Speaking at a formal dinner in honor of the Imperial yacht's visit to New York, the Ambassador of the Emperor Yoshinto outlined publicly for the first time since he set foot on American soil the policy of his Government as it related to the "Circumstances for which we wish no sense responsible gave us certain claims on Chinese territory," Viscount Ishihara said, "but at no time in the past and at no time in the future do we or will we seek to take territory from or to dispossess China of her rights." Then with dramatic earnestness he expounded "the basis of his Government." "We wish to be and wish always continue to be," he declared, "sincere friends and helpers of our neighbors, for we are more interested than anyone else except China in good Government there; only we insist at all times for self-protection prevent other nations from doing what we have no right to do. We notably will not seek to assail the integrity or sovereignty of China, but will eventually be prepared to defend and maintain the integrity and independence of China against aggressors, for we know that our own landmarks would be threatened by any outside invasion or interference in China.
