Methodist National Campaign.

IN CONNECTION WITH THE INTER-
CHURCH FORWARD MOVEMENT.

We submit to-day synopsis of addresses delivered before the Empire Club in the city of Toronto by Mr. T. H. Gundy, a leading Methodist Financier and Canon Cody of the Anglican Church. Both of them occupy a prominent place in the life of the Dominion, and are held in the highest esteem, therefore, carry conviction whenever they address any audience. The Toronto Globe says:

Strong addresses on the Inter-church Forward Movement, dealing with it from the angle of the clergyman and the business men, were made at the regular meeting of the Empire Club. The speakers were Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody and Mr. J. H. Gundy. Both were warmly applauded at many points in their speeches.

"It is always easier to destroy than to build," said Mr. J. H. Gundy, the fire speaker. Although the Prussian machine had been destroyed the world was not safe for democracy, for the spirit of selfishness remained and was a curse wherever it existed. "Only one man has found the recipe for making the world safe for democracy, and He is the Man of Nazareth."

"If the world is to be a safe place it has got to be a Christian place," he continued. "The standards that have made Canada a safe place to do business must be set up throughout the world."

In putting their money into the work which would do this Canadians were making a good investment, he declared. Canadians are piling up wealth, and in doing so were facing the danger faced by any country experiencing a sudden influx of wealth which gave comforts and ease injurious to the boys and girls.

The Best Investment.

"There is only one place to invest this surplus capital—that is in the unselfish establishment of Christianity in Canada and throughout the world," said Mr. Gundy. "The money you give to that will not harm your children, although what you give them may."

So far as the business men were concerned their task in the campaign was two-fold, he concluded, after reference to the financial aims of the movement. Firstly, to give their organizing ability at disposal of this campaign. If they did the latter there would be no doubt of the result, he declared.

"We have learned a new scale of giving and a new sense of the stewardship of property," said Dr. Cody, after reference to the lessons learned during the war, which, he said, we would do well to remember. We had learned something of the relative values of things, putting comforts behind us and choosing discomforts to accomplish an aim: we had put the immaterial higher than the material, the spiritual higher than the physical. We had learned that there was no place for the unadulterated idler, and we had learned the lesson of thrift.

"We saved that we might give and make it possible for our country to work through to victory," he declared. In future we could not regard our possessions as held in fee-simple; they bore the hall-mark of the blood of the men who went in jeopardy of their lives. The keynote of life in the war was service.

"What the whole world has learned as a result of the war is simply this: the indispensableness of Christ and Christian principles," said Dr. Cody. "Everything else proved weak. The only thing that did not prove so was Christ and the example of His living and dying."

After-war Fever.

To-day the world was suffering from the fever that followed nervous strain, he continued. There are criticism of everything, turmoil and chaos, as in Russia, imperilling the welfare and safety of the world. Many methods of amelioration were offered, but no ultimate success could be found short of the evangel of Jesus Christ.

"I believe with all my heart that he who can spiritualize democracy can save the world, and no one else," declared the speaker. Many needs existed, and every need spelled an opportunity, he pointed out. Many necessary and beneficial schemes held over during the war were pressing on us now. The world had become a neighborhood, and the moral conditions of other countries affected all, just as a plague of disease. For this there were needed religious leaders, who must be adequately paid, for no one could work under low spirits. The branches of the Church must have adequate equipment if they were to represent worthily the institutions behind them. He recognized no incompatibility between the spiritual and the financial, but regarded the latter as an exercise of the former.

"All those who are wasting what they have made, who are flaunting it in the face of the poor, are the true anarchists," he declared, after describing the Church as the nation's conscience, and asserting that it was making the greatest contribution to human brotherhood and world peace. "It is for us to use our money wisely and unselfishly."

Gained Fifteen Pounds And Overcame Longstanding
Trouble By Taking Tanlac.

"You can take it from me, Tanlac is all right, and I'm satisfied in my own mind that it will do all that is claimed for it, for I've proved it in my own case." This statement made by Robert Peckham, tinsmith, who lives on George Street East, St. John's, Nfld., to the Tanlac representative at Connors' drug store recently, simply corroborates what thousands of others have said about this great medicine.

"I had a bad case of disordered stomach of nearly five years' standing. I never could eat but what my food would sour and the gas cause me great distress. After every meal I had severe pains just here in the pit of my stomach and these pains were specially bad at night. As a result I was not able to sleep and at last got very weak and run-down. I lost a lot of weight and went down from a hundred and sixty-five to a hundred and thirty pounds. Then, too, I used to have dizzy spells when everything would turn dark and my mind become almost a blank. I got to dread having to climb these hilly streets in St. John's, and would often have to sit down on a door-step in order to get breath and give my heart a rest. I think you'll agree that was a pretty bad state for a man of thirty-four to be in."

"I was sitting by the fire one night reading the paper, when I saw a statement about Tanlac and it struck me right there that this was just the medicine I needed. I put on my hat and coat and came right down to Connors' and got a bottle. I've taken three bottles now, and I want to say that it has done more for me than I ever dreamt it would. In the first place it gave me a great appetite and although I eat heartily I never have any pain or distress afterwards. I sleep so well that I need to be called in the mornings. I have lost that tired, worn-out feeling that I always had, and now feel full of life and energy. I now weigh a hundred and forty-five pounds and so have gained fifteen pounds since I started on Tanlac. I'm a better man in every way, and I'm quite sure that no one who tries Tanlac will be disappointed with the results."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and by the leading Druggist in every town.—adv going to reconstruct everything in this world, except themselves," he concluded. "I want to put in a plea for the reconstruction of individuals on which shall be reared the beautiful fabric of a fairer Canada."
