New York Woman Formed It by Eat

ing Cookies. New York, Oct. 13 .- Mrs. Emma Mockel went to Bellevue Hospital yesterday to be treated for the Jamaica ginger habit. She has been addicted to the habit for years, and her explanation of its origin is that when a child she was unusually fond of ginger snaps. She says that she used ginger snaps and eat them the way many girls do candy.

Gradually she got so she couldn't go without them, and this led her to satisfy her craving for ginger by drink. This is not the first time Mrs. Mochabit. She was there last November parcel in his rig, when he fell out, for seven days, and when she left she promised to reform. As Jamaica ginger is in great part alcohol, the is similar to that of whisky, both physically and mentally, so the doctors put her in the alcoholic ward. Mrs.
