Sectional Conference Favors Church Union As Expediently As Possible.

MAJORITY URGE CAUTION

Reports Show Three Denominations Are Already United in 1,400 Congregations.

TORONTO, Oct. 21.—Interest in the church union negotiations now in progress in the Metropolitan Methodist Church here centers mainly in the attitude and actions of the Presbyterian section, which holds the key to the further acceleration of the work, being the only section in which any division of opinion remains. The Methodists and Congregationalists have both declared in a practically unanimous way that they are in favor of union.

The joint sessions of the three denominations, opening today, were presided over by Rev. Dr. S. D. Chown, general superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada. Dr. G. C. Fidgeon was elected chairman of the joint committee. Three secretaries were also elected, Rev. J. H. Edmonson for the Presbyterians, Dr. T. A. Moore for the Methodists, and Dr. F. J. Day, representing the Congregationalists.

This morning's caucus was of a preliminary nature, the reports of the three churches being read by Dr. Chown for the Presbyterians, and Rev. James Polley read the Congregationalist report. One of the first steps taken was the exclusion of the press, and it was decided after the meeting that these reports be not made public until the conference is closed.

To Remove Sallowness, Blotches or Wrinkles

Do you realize that just beneath that coarse, muddy or discolored complexion there's an exquisitely beautiful skin of youthful tint and delicacy? If you could only bring this complexion to the surface, discarding the old one, you can—in the easiest, simplest, most natural manner imaginable. Just get an ounce of ordinary macerated wax at any drug store, apply nightly like cold cream, removing it mornings with warm water. The wax assists Nature by gradually taking off the clinging particles of dead and half-dead skin, causing no discomfort whatever. Ordinarily it takes from a week to ten days to complete the transformation. Cutaneous defects like pimples, blotches, liver spots, moth patches, freckles, of course disappear with the old skin. Nothing else will accomplish such wonderful results in so short a time. Fine lines and even the deeper wrinkles often appear at an early age. In such cases nothing is better than a face bath made by dissolving an ounce of powdered salicylate in a half pint of witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.—Adv.

ENDORSE RANEY'S BAN ON BETTING AT RACE TRACKS

Baptists in Convention Also Declare For Closer Movie Censorship.

RENEW LEAGUE DEBATE

Rev. G. A. Leichter Leads Further Discussion On the World Union Resolution.

BY WILLIAM SHARMAN.
ST. THOMAS, Oct. 21.—Indorsement of Attorney-General Raney's action relative to race-track gambling; a frank declaration that much yet remains to be achieved by the Ontario Board of Motion Picture Censors; resolutions warmly appreciating President Warren Harding's stand on disarmament, and upholding the supreme effort for everlasting peace by the members of the League of Nations, marked the closing of the annual Ontario-Quebec Baptist Conference in St. Thomas on Friday.

Last-minute resolutions were introduced, one commending the work of the Children's Aid Society of Canada, and another, the modified document considered Thursday night, with respect to religious training in the public schools.

Not Reached North Bay.
During Monday's session Rev. H. Allen of North Bay took decided exception to the clause included in the Baptist Social Service Council's report, lauding the excellent improvement in the moving picture enterprise, declaring that seemingly the campaign had yet failed to reach North Bay.

After further consideration by the committee the following resolution was adopted: "Whereas the Ontario Government has requested that its people co-operate with the Social Service Council of Ontario as a clearing house, in seeking an improvement in the moving picture enterprise, and theatre posters, we feel in our judgment that much more remains to be done in the enforcement of the law."

Report Objectionable Films.
"We therefore accept it as our responsibility as Christians to make known to the social service committee of our convention such films or posters as we believe would degrade the morals of the observers, many of whom are of tender years."

A second resolution to pass with no amendment the action of Hon. W. E. Raney relating to race-track betting. By it the Baptists are pledged to support his endeavor to effectively suppress this great evil which has done so much to stimulate the gambling spirit, especially among the young."

Reintroduced on the floor of the convention following the objection to its outline on Thursday by Rev. G. A. Leichter, the resolution favoring the League of Nations witnessed its successful passage Friday afternoon, but not without further exception by the London pastor, and much expression of views by other delegates.

In the original document, Rev. Mr. Leichter was emphatic in his contention that the United States should not be classed in the same group that contained Russia, Germany and Austria-Hungary.

Still Sees Objection.
The reading of the modified resolution brought the declaration from Rev. Mr. Leichter that although the names of the various nations had been withdrawn, the objection was still apparent to him. He expressed the opinion that there was really no need to "drag in the name of the United States at all, or the resolution, for that matter."

A compromise was eventually effected. Names of nations other than Canada were omitted. The following expression derived the favor of the majority of the conference: "It is peculiarly urgent at this time that Canada, as the only North American member of the League of Nations, should assume greater responsibilities in the task of promoting world peace and harmony."

The resolution warmly appreciating and endorsing President Harding's action on disarmament was passed unanimously.

Originally submitted at Thursday night's session, the letter from His Lordship the Bishop of Albany asking that the convention appoint a committee of five to confer with similar committees from other denominations with a view to agreeing upon a definite syllabus of religious education in public schools was reintroduced at Friday's session.

Some time ago the minister of education for Ontario had said if all denominations would agree in this matter he would give favorable consideration to any advice that might be offered by a joint committee of all denominations.

Reaffirm Separation Principle.
Although once again emphasizing its principle of "entire separation of the church and state," the Baptist convention reiterated its firm and abiding aversion to the supreme importance of religious instruction in the schools and incidentally urged the necessity of using every opportunity to present the same in the schools under the direction, however, of the church and at the latter's expense.

The Baptists of Ontario and Quebec strive to make clear that they feel such appointments would be inconsistent with their cherished conviction in regard to the entire separation of church and state.

Whereas, they say, the state has already provided opportunity of presenting instruction in the schools, which the church has not taken appreciable advantage of, they feel it inconsistent with their policy to take further action in that direction.

The Baptists, however, lay the burden squarely on the church and home and the present conference urged each congregation to make every effort to take advantage of such opportunities as are afforded in the public schools, providing the same can be accomplished consistently with Baptist principles and at the expense of the church.

Thinks Church Should Pay.
The passage of the modified resolution was only following considerable discussion. Rev. B. W. Merrill, Toronto, phrased the point that any religious instruction in schools should only be at the expense of the churches. "If we allow the state to pay," he warned the convention, "you must stand prepared to see the state take control."

The first speaker, H. B. Morphy, contrasted the tariff policies of the three party leaders. Mr. Meighen stood for moderate protection, he said, and Mr. Crenner for absolute free trade, while Mr. King's policy might be termed a free trade tariff policy.

Fears For Home Market.
The premier's policy had built up the industries and homes of Canada and had given employment to thousands of workmen. The Progressive policy would destroy the home market for the Canadian farmer, he declared.

The candidate stated that he had been chairman of the public accounts committee in the Union Government. During the war period, while expenditures totalling two billions were being made, there had been absolutely no proof of extravagance, chicanery or deceit on the part of the Government. The record of the Government was clean, he said.

Sir Henry Drayton said the Government had been charged with wilful criminal extravagance. Speaking for "The Anglicans evidently have investigated and are willing to go further. We should give a definite answer, that we Baptists think it best to let the state educate the citizens, and we in the home and church will promote religious training."

Emphasizing the seriousness of the problems which confront the rural churches, Rev. W. S. Bucknrough of Port Elgin, addressing the morning gathering, declared that "a great mass of organizations has grown up in the agricultural districts that detract in no small way the influence and power of church endeavor."

"You know what those bodies are as well as I do," he continued. "There are the women's institutes and the men's various organizations, and the host of others, that conflict with our work in the rural sections."

"We must, I say, stop using our rural churches as collecting bureaus for this mass of organizations, these various enterprises, they have, when they utilize the church and take up collections for this and that. I contend that if they cannot run their own finances let them go."

Cannot Halt Migration.
"And as far as preventing the migration from the country to the city is involved," concluded the speaker, "you can't stop it as long as there are those who will make $5 in lieu of four in town. Why, I've asked real spiritual men of the rural districts why they were moving to the city, and they replied the chances for a better life were so great."

That the Baptist Church faces a real crisis with respect to its rural churches was further emphasized by the report prepared by Rev. O. E. Kendall and session by John Pollock.

"To render assistance to the struggling churches," he said, "you have today no highly organized and heavy burden upon our rural churches. There is first an alarming depletion of population. Then the serious spirit of unrest characterizing the entire social and economic fabric of society the world over, which is reflected in the country to an appreciable degree."

"The interchange and exchange of farm property is a disturbing element. The depletion of places of natural products has seriously disturbed rural economy, while the habit of money spending and extravagant luxury is still apparent."

Materialism Takes Toll.
"Materialism as gross in character as that found in the industrial world is taking heavy toll of the moral and spiritual forces as well."

Greetings from the Northern Baptist Convention in session at Syracuse, New York, were received personally from Rev. B. C. Clawson, who arrived in St. Thomas late Thursday night, delivered his powerful and inspiring message at Friday morning's morning session, and subsequently departed again for home.

Rev. W. H. Corkery of Hamilton submitted the annual report of the committee on obituaries.

Thorndale
Thorndale, Oct. 21.—An auction sale was held on the farm of L. Foster, corner 1, West Nissouri, on Wednesday afternoon, when 45 head of cattle and 40 hogs were sold. The highest price paid for a cow was $108, and the average price was $70. The yearlings averaged $25.50. Hogs, 4 weeks old, sold at $5 each and 22 fat hogs were sold at $21.50 each.

The house and lot, the estate of the late Ezra Rathburn of Thorndale, will be sold by auction on Saturday afternoon.

DISCLAIMS EXTRAVAGANCE

Sir Henry Drayton Declares "We Did the Best We Could."

[By Canadian Press Correspondent.]
STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 21.—From a crowded platform in the curling rink Premier Meighen here tonight addressed one of the largest gatherings to which he has spoken since opening his campaign. The premier had come to this meeting from his native town of St. Marys, where he spoken to a gathering of about 1,500 persons on the political issues of the day.

This evening he was supported by Sir Henry Drayton, minister of finance, and H. B. Morphy, formerly a member of North Perth in the Federal House, and now National Liberal and Conservative candidate in the constituency.

Dr. Michael Steele, candidate in South Perth, and Senator Sharpe, occupied seats on the platform, and Lieut.-Col. John L. Youngs, president of the Stratford Liberal-Conservative Association, presided. Tomorrow the premier will speak in St. Thomas.

The first speaker, H. B. Morphy, contrasted the tariff policies of the three party leaders. Mr. Meighen stood for moderate protection, he said, and Mr. Crenner for absolute free trade, while Mr. King's policy might be termed a free trade tariff policy.

Fears For Home Market.
The premier's policy had built up the industries and homes of Canada and had given employment to thousands of workmen. The Progressive policy would destroy the home market for the Canadian farmer, he declared.

During the war period, while expenditures totalling two billions were being made, there had been absolutely no proof of extravagance, chicanery or deceit on the part of the Government. The record of the Government was clean, he said.

Sir Henry Drayton said the Government had been charged with wilful criminal extravagance. Speaking for himself, he would be only too glad if the financial condition of the country would warrant decreases in taxation, but it was costing more money to run the Government than before the war, and the business of government must go on.

"The charge of extravagance is only a loose accusation made for the purpose of supplying material where none exists," said the minister. He did not mean to say that everything done during the war was perfect.

Would Need Archangeles.
"You'd require a band of archangeles for that. But I do say that the work was carried on by a band of men devoted to your interests, and the only adverse criticism comes from political opponents," declared Sir Henry.

"You might have given the soldier a little more," said a voice from the audience.

"We did the utmost we could for the soldier without crippling the Canadian to God to save," replied Sir Henry. "We did the best we could. Would he do we could have done more."

Premier Meighen said that "an epidemic of scurrilous and utterly silly misrepresentations had literally swept this country." Some of these were uttered by nonentities, and others by prominent men.

Since coming to Stratford he had been informed that a man in the vicinity had declared the Government had a padded military list with 30,000 names on the public payroll. This man, he said, made a similar charge some time ago, had been requested to substantiate his allegation, and had failed to appear to do so. The charge was false, said the premier.

Canada's expenditures for defence were at the lowest possible point, said Mr. Meighen. The cost per head to Canadians for defence was $2.15 per annum, as compared to $13.12 in the United States; $6.13 in Australia; $5.32 in New Zealand, and $22.35 in Great Britain.

Two-Year-Old Child Killed When Running To Meet Playmates.

[Special to Advertiser.]
MERLIN, Oct. 21.—Running from her home across the G. T. R. tracks, to greet some playmates returning from school shortly before 6 o'clock this evening, the little 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brusso was struck by a train going east and instantly killed.

Dr. Bell, coroner for the district, was called and ordered an inquest. A jury was impaneled at once and after viewing the remains the inquiry was adjourned till Monday, Oct. 31.

STATES WOMEN ARE IN NEED OF COURAGE

Fair New Yorker Brings Message to Her Sex.

DETROIT, Oct. 21.—"The greatest need of the average business woman is courage."

This message was brought to the business women of Detroit by Miss Lena Madson Phillips of New York, executive secretary of the National Association of Business and Professional Women.

"Business women must be more self-reliant and must trust their own judgment, experience and even intuition," Miss Phillips said. "They must dare to give up unconvincing work which is steady for a new undertaking, more congenial, but with an element of risk."

"They must have courage to express themselves, courage to wear the kind of clothes that express their personality, to wear straw hats in the middle of October."

"The women who are eminently successful are not more clever or better-looking or shrewder than any of us. What differentiates them is courage."

"One of the most shrewd of business women I know pawned her engagement ring and her wedding ring to buy the meagre equipment to start a tea-room. She bought three second hand pianos for one cent. Her husband had lost his position. She was untrained for any occupation except that of house-maker, but she was a good cook and manager. She took a risk and capitalized her own talent. Today her income is $35,000 a year."

"We business women must quit enjoying our misery. Too often we solace ourselves for over-work and under-pay with the mistaken idea that we are victims of circumstances and heroic martyrs. We must stop feeling sorry for ourselves and set ourselves to find a way out."

Another thing that business women must learn is economy of time. We go home spent with our day's work and sit up until midnight embroidering silly little '400-dabs' for Christmas presents, things that gather the dust or are tucked away in bureau drawers until another Christmas, when they are resurrected and passed on. We must learn how to relax.

One of the new projects to be launched by the National Federation this year will be vocational guidance to eighth grade and high school girls. Each business woman's club is to sponsor a group of girls in its community, giving them talks on vocations and the benefit of the members' experience."

LISTOWEL LADIES HOLD HOSPITAL AID FAIR
LISTOWEL, Oct. 21.—The Women's Hospital Auxiliary opened their hospital fair yesterday on the second floor of the Perfect Wheel Factory. Misses Ivy Kidd and Lola Fair were responsible for the effective decoration scheme, which gave the impression of brightness as one entered. The spacious tea-room was patronized by a continuous throng. Mrs. T. L. Hamilton being convener, assisted by an able committee. The main building was divided into a number of booths at which practically everything from a handkerchief to a ton of coal could be purchased. Supper was served from 5.30 to 7, and refreshments during the evening. Great interest was manifested by the ladies from the surrounding rural districts both in donations and attendance, and the unity of effort is an evidence of appreciation of the Listowel Memorial Hospital. The officers of the auxiliary for this year are: President, Mrs. Sangster; secretary, Mrs. (Dr.) James Moore; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. McDonnell.
