A River Scene-Plover Mills. For the Free Press.

A winding read around a hill Will lead you to an inlet still Where willows nodding o'er the stream Scarce dare disturb the lily's dream. A wooden bridge afar is seen Amid a mist of summer green, While 'neath the cedars, clear and cool, Comes bubbling up the drinking-pool; And when the twilight breezes blow Athwart the tree-tops, downward go Along the path the quiet cows, To drink below the scented boughs. Red-cherry with her vellow horns. Breaks thro' a hedge of scatter'd thorns; While Daisy follows Brindle down O'er tangl'd roots and beech leaves brown. The unseen hand of Time casts o'er The mellow sky a starry shower; And heralded by Eurus bold, And crowned with beauties manifold, Queen Dian mounts her skyey throne, The bee across the mead has flown: The haleyon has found his cave The eglantine forgets to crave Apollo's kisses, and the bats Reel in the shadows o'er the flats Like wither'd leaves from smitten oak; Sweet Day in Night's endusked cloak Enwrapped, implores the silent queen For glowing smile and opal sheen, And all the blessings of the dawn Once more to be around her drawn. While ceaselessly between the steeps The river to its far rest creeps. ROBERT ELLIOTT.

THE GREAT NORTH COUNTRY. Land of Much Fertility-A United States Consul's Appreciation of Canada's Destiny.

Victoria, B. C., News.

It may be inopportune in connection with our great Northern country and the 'Canada Western railroad" to direct pub ic attention to the opinion recently expressed by so intelligent and reliable an authority as James W. Faylor, United States consul at Winnipeg for the past twenty-one years, who has made a spec ial study of the Canadian North-west, and gives expression to the following opin-

"That the parallelogram included between the longitude of 100 and 170 west of Greenwich and latitude 50 degrees to 70 degrees is identical in climate and as rich in resources as an equal area in Europe, included between the same meridians of latitude and extending 60 degrees east and 10 degrees west of Greenwich. The European parallelogram includes England, Ireland, Scotland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Holland and most of Germany and Russia in Europe, and is represented by the cities of London, Liverpool, Dublin, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Copenhagen, Stockholm, Berlia, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Nijni-Novgorod and Archangel. Over all the territory included in the North American parallelogram, the opening of spring occurs at the same time almost to a day. It is known by the test of experiment that wheat can be grown as far north as latitude 69, and by far the finest wheat which I have ever seen came from Port'Vermillion, on Peace river, in latitude 59, longitude 116. Wheat, tables, are successfully raised at the mis- me. sion stations throughout this region, and the farmers of Manitoba have had greater average crops per acre for many years past than the American farmers in Minnesota and Dakota.

"The causes for this remarkable extension in the North-west of cereal production are, first, the continually decreasing altitude, the influence of the warm wind of the Pacific blowing through the low mountain passes of the north, and the fact that the long summer days of higher latitudes give a vast deal more of sunshine during the growing season than is pests which are so injurious in milder limates. The causes are certainly sufficient to explain the fact so well demonstrated by experience, that all grains are produced in the highest quality and the greatest quantity per acre near the north-ernmost limit at which they will grow.

CANADIAN WATERWAYS. "Within five years from the present time the present rate of progress, and within May Elvidge's Husband Was Unfaithful, three years if the work is hastened a little, there will be a clear channel for vessels drawing 14 feet of water through Canadian territory, all the way from Lake Superior Wiarton has just furnished another to the sea. Marquis Guiccioli, the new Italian ambassador at Berlin, is a grandnephew of the beautiful Countess Guiccioli, whom Byron loved, and who proved to be the last of the English bard's romantic conquests.
