It is reported from Ottawa that 166,080 Canadian war badges are lying at Ottawa unclaimed by those who, because of their service in the expeditionary force, are entitled to wear them.

Neglected War Badges

The circumstances recalls to mind the characteristic of un-assuming modesty which has distinguished the soldiers of Canada from those of every other country. There were never men who so despised the red tape part of the show and desired to get into the real business on hand as the Canadians and they carried that attitude from the day they joined up till they were landed by home when the war was finished. back Canadians, as a general rule have little use for titles, badges and such trumpery calculated to label a man as something better or different from their fellowmen. The sentiment of the country was officially expressed when the government was com-pelled to ask the king to discontinue the practice of conferring titles up-on citizens of this country.

The matter of the unclaimed war badges is typified by the attitude of an Orkeney man who had lived many years in western Canada. When the war broke out he hastened to the recruiting office to join up in the cavalry. After answering many questions outlined in the application forms he exhibited his impatience in these words: "Never mind a that, just gie me a horse and let me awa to the front."

Sugar Beet Growers to Fight High Labor

(Alvinston Free Press)

A meeting of the sugar beet grow-ers of this section of the country was held in the Council Chambers on Saturday afternoon with a fair representation present. Topics of general interest were discussed and plans made for the signing up of acreage for the year coming.

Among other important business it was the unanimous opinion that there was little use growing beets at the present price unless the cost of growing the beets could be reduced. By the time the farmer plowed his land, seeded it, paid for the seed, paid for the labor of thinning, hoeing and pulling the beets, and on top of that the taxes, there was little left for the grower who took all the risk. The cost of the labor such as working the beets and pulling same, must be reduced, was the verdict arrived at. Only by co-operation can this end be attained and it will be gone into more thoroughly at a near date.

H. C. Cowan, a deputy from Fire Marshal Heaton's office, Toronto, has been spending the past week in different part of Western Ontario, investigating the causes of several "mysterious" barn fires which have occurred from the 1st to the 20th of

November. Mr. Cowan is satisfied that in every case spontaneous combustion has been the cause of the fire, and in three out of the five fires most recently brought under his attention there was conclusive proof of this being the case, while in the other mentioned the probability amounted almost to certainty. Barn fires have been unusually common this fall owing to the damp state in which most of the fodder was stored this year, partly on ac-count of the wet season and also on account of the large crops of straw fodder which could not be so and

In Mr. Cowan's opinion, the habit of storing constalks in the barn either over hay or straw, and fre-quently with other fodder dumped on DR. G. N.
