

TO THE INDEPENDENT ELECTORS OF THE COUNTIES OF York and Simcoe.

GENTLEMEN,

AFTER the very flattering and successful support which I received from you at my last Election, after four years of zealous and honest service and after the renewed solicitations of many of you, it cannot be my duty to decline offering myself a Candidate for the ensuing Election.

THE labours and anxieties of a faithful representative great beyond what you imagine, might perhaps induce me to withdraw from this honorable trust, but that public duty commands me in a measure, at least, to offer myself again to your choice; and if the result of such an offer should be the Election of another, I will be happy in the hope that you shall have chosen one more able; but be assured that none can be chosen more attached to your interests, and to the honor and prosperity of the Province, than,

Gentlemen, your faithful,
friend and servant,

W. W. BALDWIN.

Spadina, February 12th, 1824.
