He gave up this position to become editor of The Kingston News. In 1883 he went to Ottawa as editor of The Citizen, with which paper he was connected up to his removal to England as correspondent. He was for years captain and adjutant on the Princess of Wales' Rifles, Kingston, and served in the Fenian trouble. In 1887 he was president of the Ottawa Press Gallery.

WILL RAISE ANOTHER MILLION FOR RELIEF OF STRICKEN JEWS

Chicago was second on the list with $84,000; Philadelphia third with $60,608, and Boston fourth with $20,025.

CANADA'S APATHY.

London, Dec. 5.—(C.A.P.)—The Yorkshire Post, referring to the Canadian tariff commission and the colonial preference, says it is not encouraging to find that Canadians, when they come to the actual work of reviewing their tariff, have no suggestions to make on a subject which is supposed to have been uppermost in their minds, but, on the contrary, absolutely ignore it.

FOUR MYSTERIES IN A DAY NEW YORK POLICE ARE BUSY

River, Street, Underground Railway and Chinatown Each Furnish a Tragedy.

New York, Dec. 5.—Three of New York's great highways—the river, the underground railway and the street—and that section known as "Chinatown," where mystery is ever present, each furnished a police mystery to-day. In two cases, the subway and Chinatown, death had come between the victims and the investigators. In the first the police have only the mangled body of a man who, before hurling himself in front of a rapidly moving train, had taken precaution to thwart the efforts of the officers to establish his identity. His clothing, unmistakably new, bore not a single distinguishing mark, and not even a trinket was found in any of the pockets. The man was about 40 years of age, weighing 170 pounds, was five feet nine inches in height, had dark hair, blue eyes and the scrupulous care with which he was dressed indicated that he was not a laborer. He jumped directly in front of a train as it swung into the 137th-street and Broadway station of the subway, and was literally ground to pieces.

The Chinatown mystery was the death of a woman, Lottie Lane, a white woman, whose husband, a Chinaman, died a short time ago. She had three callers last night, a Chinaman, a white man and a white woman. During the night these callers summoned a physician and notified the police that their hostess had fainted while she was entertaining them. The physician, who found her dead when he arrived, regarded the death as suspicious. The police put the three callers under arrest and began an investigation.

The central figure in the mystery of the river is William Ballinger, aged 28 years, a market man, who says his home is in Yonkers. He was dragged from the east river, more dead than alive, by a tug boat captain, who had heard his feeble cries for help. Ballinger said he came down from Yonkers yesterday with a load of produce, and after disposing of it started out to enjoy himself. He told the police that he remembered little from late last night until he was found struggling in the water. When the surgeons in the hospital found that the man had a fractured skull an investigation was begun.

Mabel Weber, a 20-year-old girl, was the fourth victim. She was found lying bound, gagged and senseless in the hallway of the house in West 41st-street, where she resided. She was taken to a hospital, where for hours she was unable to give the police any information which would assist them in locating her assailant.

TICKET SPECULATOR LOSES.

Right of Theatre to Refuse Tickets Sold by Him Upheld.

Albany, Dec. 5.—The right of a theatre manager to refuse tickets sold by a sidewalk speculator was upheld to-day by the court of appeals. The action was brought by William H. Collister, a ticket speculator, against Albert Hayman and others composing the firm of Al Hayman & Co., who conduct the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York. Collister sought to recover $4000, which he alleges he lost thru the action of the defendants in preventing him from carrying on his business in front of their theatre. The appellant said that selling tickets was his only means of a livelihood, and that his income from this source was $4000 a year.

The defendants replied that they posted notices warning patrons against buying tickets from speculators and printed such notices on tickets. The opinion of the court holds that the proprietors of a theatre have a right to refuse tickets obtained thru a speculator in cases where they gave such warning as the above.

It will be necessary to engage the main body of another church.

THREE MEN WILL DIE.

Thoughtless Workman Causes Explosion in Harvester Co.'s Plant.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Fifteen men were burned last night by an explosion in the International Harvester Company's plant, three of whom probably will die.

The explosion was caused by a workman thrusting a cold bar of steel into a furnace of molten metal, in the immediate vicinity of which sixty men were at work.

Molten metal was hurled about the room, and the smoke and fire that shot from the furnace filled the room so the workmen were unable for several minutes to find the exits, but groped about helplessly, stumbling over those who had been prostrated by the blast. From the furnace chimney the flames shot high into the air and could be seen for miles.

The plant was not damaged to any great extent.

GIRL OF 17 SUICIDES.

Leaves a Letter Saying She Was Tired of Life.

Aylmer, Dec. 5.—Beatrice Bentley, a young girl 17 years old, whose parents reside at Eden, Elgin County, committed suicide last evening by taking carbolic acid at the home of Henry Miller.

She left a letter addressed to a friend in which she stated her intention to take poison, as she was tired of life. No other reason can be given for the rash act. She was a bright, cheerful girl, and a great favorite amongst her acquaintances. The letter written was somewhat rambling, and would suggest that she was laboring under a fit of temporary insanity.

NEW TRIAL FOR HOPE YOUNG.

Her Solicitor Scores Clergy and Women's Organizations

Halifax, Dec. 5.—A new trial has been granted to Hope Young, the woman under sentence of death at Digby, N. S. She was to have been hanged on Dec. 20. R.G. Munroe of Digby, who practically obtained this new trial scores the clergymen and women for their attitude in the case. He says that many rushed into print with no knowledge of the facts, except from hearsay. A wealthy Boston lady offered to finance a new trial, but the Women's Christian Temperance Union, or some society of that sort, took the matter in hand and did nothing. Mr. Munroe firmly believes the woman innocent of murder.

JUDGE CLUTE IS VIGOROUS RUBS WITNESS AND COUNSEL

Mann of London Has His Veracity Doubted and Mr. DuVernet is Criticized.

There is one man who runs foul of Justice Clute whenever he gives evidence before him. That is A. W. Mann of London, who gave evidence for the third time yesterday in the assize court in the plumbers' case. The first time he was told that he must bring his books to verify his statements. The second time Justice Clute remarked that he did not believe the witness, no matter what counsel might say to the contrary. Yesterday Mr. Mann appealed to be put on the stand again to explain a former statement of his. He was asked whether he did not use discrimination. On commencing to answer in his own way he was stopped and Justice Clute told him that he wanted a direct answer. Then he said "I did."

"Why did you swear that you did not?" asked the judge.

"I had the option of selling to 95 per cent of the business or to 59 per cent. I elected to sell to the larger quantity. To show I am telling the truth just look at the letters I brought down for the crown."

"Until you can explain why you swore one way and then another I cannot value your statement," said the judge severely.

Samuel J. Frame was the chief witness put in by Crown Attorney Curry, who conducted the prosecution during the afternoon in the absence of Mr. DuVernet. Frame is a confidential clerk in Jenkins and Hardy's office and admitted having acted as secretary-treasurer of the Supply Association a number of times. He was a cautious witness and very apt to refer the crown attorney to the books whenever it was possible for him to say that the information was to be found in them.

He described the formation of the Central Supply Association organization meeting which took place in Hardy's office. The original members were: The James Morrison Brass Company; the James Robertson Company, the Ontario Lead and Wire Company, the Stevens Manufacturing Company, and the Empire Manufacturing Company.

The agreement upon which they worked was: We, the undersigned, agree to form an association to cover plumbers' supplies at a list price and discount, hereafter to be agreed upon."

Mr. Frame said: "The Toronto Hardware Company, the Standard Ideal and Sanitary Company, and McArthur of Colborne-street had never become members, tho he had seen McArthur at a meeting of the association."

On December 11, 1902, the following resolution was passed: "Resolved, that each firm notify all its agents and travelers that association prices are firmly in force and must be rigidly adhered to."

Crown Attorney Curry read from the minutes of 1903, where the prices of slate had been advanced ten cents a foot. In another case J. T. Aggett of Toronto was to be quoted extra low prices in order to meet competition from Montreal. A later minute shows where iron pipe fittings and hair felt were placed on the open list. Allison, Aggett and Armstrong were allowed a discount off the price of the marble list.

Still Existent.

"This is an attempt to show that the association was keeping up the prices?" asked Justice Clute.

"And also that the association remained in existence up to the present time," said Mr. Curry.

"I am willing to admit that the object of the association is to keep up the prices," said W. R. Riddell wearily. "I have been waiting for the past ten days for the crown to arrive at that decision."

In a later motion towns west of Kingston and east of Rat Portage were declared to be closed. All prices submitted within that area were to be at association prices. A traveler, however, reported that firms in Montreal were doing a lot of cutting and a letter from his company reads: "We think North Bay and points west should be taken off the list and left open."

"This kind of thing continued so long as you were secretary of the association?" asked Mr. Curry.

"Yes, that represents the nature of the business done."

"What was the nature of the declarations furnished?"

"In effect that those making them—travelers and salesmen—had observed association prices."

B. J. Morris described the formation of the Central Supply Association. All the old funds were deposited to the credit of the bank account of the new association.

His Knowledge.

"Did you know of the understanding between members of the Plumbers' Supply Association and the Master Plumbers?" asked Mr. Curry.

"I knew there was a working arrangement between several members of the Supply Association and the Master Plumbers."

"The Plumbers' Supply Association became a branch of the Central Supply Association, and you were trying to form other branches?"

"I suppose that is correct."

"Who managed the association?"

"Jenkins & Hardy."

"What caused the delay in signing the agreement submitted by Watson, Smoke and Smith?"

"We were awaiting the result of the Crashley case."

"Why so?"

"There were dozens of interests to be combined under that agreement. We were trying to get in the brass companies and the soil and lead pipes. There would not have been any money in it for the Toronto plumbers unless the whole of the province was brought in. They would be forced to work under a disadvantage of having to pay 7 1-2 per cent."

Judge Censures Counsel.

In adjourning the court, Mr. Watson and the judge bandied a few words, and Mr. DuVernet the absent crown prosecutor, was the butt of some scathing remarks by the judge. It appears that Mr. Watson had some other case on to-day, and Mr. DuVernet agreed to adjourn the court until the next day.

"He has not the power to adjourn the court," said Justice Clute. "When I was a counsel I never dared to promise any such a thing. Why waste the time of this court in adjourning? This case is more important than the one in which Mr. Watson wants to appear. This is criminal, that is only civil."

"This partakes of more of the nature of an investigation," put in W. R. Riddell.

It was finally agreed that the case in the police court was to be adjourned, and this case go on to-morrow. In discussing how much time it would take to finish, Mr. Riddell remarked that he was going to make an argument four minutes long.

Manager Turton Here Giving His Opinion to Architects re Location

John E. Turton, manager of Mr. Small's Grand Opera House, London, was in the city yesterday at a conference regarding the construction of a new theatre for London. The Clifton Theatre Construction company of New York, who had prepared plans for the new house, had a representative here and had a conference with Mr. Small and Mr. Turton. There are three sites in London which are suitable for the new theatre, on all of which long options have been obtained by Mr. Small. It was to decide on which of the sites would be the most convenient for the public that the conference was held here, and as Mr. Turton was in a position to give advice on this point, his opinion carried considerable weight with the decision arrived at. From present indications it is likely that the work of construction will be commenced early in the spring, so that the house will be ready for attractions at the opening of the season. The negotiations have advanced so far that the opening attraction has already been booked. E. S. Willard, on Sept. 3 (Labor Day).

AT GADSKI'S CONCERT IN WINDSOR HALL

From The Montreal Star: "An important announcement is made that at the Song Recital to be given by one of the greatest singers in the world, Mme. Gadski, at Windsor Hall, next Thursday (Dec. 7), the "Gerhard Heintzman" grand piano will be used. Mme. Nordica also used the "Gerhard Heintzman" piano at her last concert in Montreal."

The above is especially significant, as Gerhard Heintzman, Limited, have and are steadfastly refusing to pay to managers of halls or concert companies bonuses for the privilege of having their pianos used or placed on the concert platform for advertising purposes, which is usually done when great artists or noted local musical societies appear on the concert platform in Toronto.

The "Gerhard Heintzman" piano is above this sort of advertising; their advertisements as well as their well-known pianos can always be depended upon as being reliable in every respect.
