The beautiful bride wore a very smart gown of cream-colored satin, with overskirt of ninon brocaded with silver. smart gown of cream-colored satin, with overskirt of ninon brocaded with silver, the skirt edged with black fox, which was also introduced on the corsage and sleeves. With this she wore a diamond and platinum pendant and chain, antique earrings of pearl and jet and a corsage bouquet of violets and pink beauty roses. Mrs. Barnes, who received with her daughter, wore black satin, with corsage of black chiffon over gold embroidery. The drawing-room was arranged with large bowls of exquisite pink tulips, and the tea-table in the dining-room was most unusual and very lovely. The dark wood was partially covered with Maltese lace. In the centre, swathed with mauve tulle, was a large silver basket of yellow roses and dark foliage, the handle tied with a large mauve bow. At the corners were glass baskets filled with vloiets. Mrs. Leacock, who was pouring out the tea, carried out the mave idea in her gown, which blended with the decorations most beautifully. Mrs. Patriarche, who was at the other end of the table, wore a very handsome gown of mole satin, with a velvet and tulle toque to match. Miss Mollie Maclean and Miss Delia Davies assisted in the tea-room.

Premier Asquith Tells Deputation of Need for Every Precaution in War.

LONDON, Feb. 10, 7.05 p.m.-Premier Asquith today received an influential deputation who called upon him to urge a reconsideration by the government of the decision to close the museums and picture gal-leries. Recently there have been many strong protests against the closing of the institutions.

Mr. Asquith, in reply to the ap-

Mr. Asquith, in reply to the appeal today, said there was necessity for every possible economy during the war, which was being fought under unprecedented conditions. He announced that with certain restrictions the National Gallery, the National Museum and the Victoria and Albert Museums, so far as the popular portions of them were concerned. lar portions of them were concerned, and the reading room of the British Museum would still be available for public use, but that beyond these concessions he could give no hope that the government would recede from its decision to close them,

No More Glorious Page in History of War Than Dominions' Story.

Canadian Associated Press Cable.
LONDON, Feb. 10.—Speaking at a memorial mass for Canadians in Westminster Cathedral today, Cardinal Bourne said that the Canadian soldiers, giving up under no compulsion the comforts of their own home life, crossed the ocean with no thought of any other recompense than the hardships of suffering, very possibly death. When the history of the war came to be written, there would be no more glocious page than the record of what Canada's sons had actieved in the defence of the empire. In a sermon to Canadians in St. Margaret's Church, Canon Carnegie said that the remarkable fact was that notwithstanding the stress and sorrow of these present days, the general feeling and flavor was far more cheerful and hopeful than in the days preceding the war. The British Em-

Seven hundred members of 95 Baptist Churches in Ontario and Quebec are reported to Rev. W. J. McKay to have joined the overseas forces. Dr. McKay said yesterday that if the names of all the Ontario and Quebec Baptists who had joined the colors were sent in it would be found that considerably more than one thousand had donned the khaki.

Rev. Ralph E. Smith states in a letter from Colombo, Ceylon, that he has given up his mission work during the war and accepted a commission in the army. His letter says: "I have been posted to the Carnatic Regiment, now in this station, and put in command of a whole company. This is rather a large responsibility after only six weeks' training, but officers are scarce."

the German Empire."
Dr. Alfred Zimmerman, under-secretary for foreign affairs, in giving out the memorandum, said. "We believe we can meet Secretary Lansing's ideas concerning submarine war." He stated that the action would be taken as soon as neutrals could adjust their commerce.

Secret Instructions. It was explained in the memoran-cum that Germany takes her present step in view of what she cites as se-cret instructions of the British ad mirally to merchant ships to open fire on submarines, German further citing 19 instances wherein it is charged German submarines have been fired upon by merchantmen. The memornaum concludes:

"Under the enumerated circumstances, enemy merchantmen armed with guns no longer have the right to be regarded as peaceable merchant-men. The German sea forces, there-iore, will be ordered to treat such vessels as warships after a short interval granted in the interests of neutrals. The German Government makes neutral powers aware of this situation that they may warn their citizens against further entrusting their persons or property to armed merchantmen belonging to powers at war with

The government's action, it is stat ed, follows the finding of the British instructions adduced on board the British ship Woodfield.
