August—Now that land in the older settled townships has been often picked over, that none but what is called interior is to be had swales and swamps attract attention. People look at the deep soil and wet ground and long to attack it, but are afraid. The run of farmers little know what may be done with such property; those who have once ditched swales prefer the deep rich farmers such places to interior dry ground. There is scarcely any land which had not some run to it—it slopes one way or the other—and therefore can be thoroughly drained.
