"KICK IN"
Here is what Peter Milne says in the Motion Picture News:
"Kick In" is going to put the biggest kick yet in the Pathe programme. It is all punch. "Kick In" never stops moving. Literally it is crammed full of "most exciting moments." When one goes, another arrives. The masterly way in which George Fitzmaurice has handled his scenes serves further to emphasize their strength. Realism there is a plenty. Nothing is false. There is not a single dull moment. It will give offense to none, for in its entirety it is clean. Judging it on a hundred per cent. basis, we would not puzzle long over the rating—one hundred per cent. we should say and we think you will, too."

THE TURF.
Single G, in 2009.
Cleveland, Aug. 19.—Single G, besides walking off with the feature event of Get-away-day at the North Randall Grand Circuit meeting Saturday afternoon, set a season's record by negotiating one half of the free-for-all pace in 2:00 1/2, the fastest mile traveled by a harness horse this season. Single G won the first two heats of the pace but was nosed out by Hal Boy in the third, the latter horse giving him a hot battle right up to the wire in the other two heats.
Miss Directed, the favorite, won the 107 trot in straight heats, but was given such a hard fight by Grand Chimes in the second mile that she went the distance in 2:04 1/2, the fastest mile trotted using the meet.
Walter Cox won another race, the 21 trot with North Spur, defeating Clinton, the favorite after a hard struggle.
In the 211 pace Haley C displayed the best form and won rather handily.
Races Postponed.
On account of the heavy rains which began on Friday night and continued until Saturday afternoon, the horse races that were to be held at Mooseport on that afternoon were postponed until this afternoon.

U-Boat Commander Sent Out "S O S" Calls From the Benguela, Hoping to Entice Prey
(New York Times)
Twelve members of the crew of the Norwegian steamship Benguela, who arrived yesterday on a Spanish liner at an Atlantic port, told how the German submarine commander used their vessel as a decoy for sixteen days before he finally sank her off the Irish coast on July 14. According to the sailors, the Benguela was attacked early on the morning of June 28 by a U-boat of the latest type, which fired a shot across her bows. After the captain had stopped the engine and told the chief officer to have the two lifeboats lowered away, he received orders from the submarine commander to stand by with his men while the Benguela was examined. This inspection occupied over an hour and the German sailors took away two holdloads of provisions. The crew of the steamship, who had been lying off on their oars, waiting for permission to row away, then were told to return to their ship. They were accompanied by ten armed Germans under the command of two junior officers, also carrying rifles and revolvers. The captain of the Benguela was instructed to steam after the submarine, and if the latter craft was compelled to submerge, he was told the two officers would take command and instruct him what to do under the circumstances. Day after day the steamship and the submarine, which was just awash on the starboard side, cruised about, waiting for merchantmen to appear, but none came. The German commander sent out frequent S O S calls for aid by wireless from the decoy ship, but did not receive a single response. On July 14 the Benguela had worked down toward the Irish coast from the north of Scotland, and the submarine commander decided that he was wasting time and would do more work without the aid of the Norwegian steamship. Bombs were placed in the hold of the Benguela and the crew were told to jump into their boats and row away as fast as they could. They got clear just before the bombs exploded and the freighter went to the bottom. Three hours later the crew were rescued by a British destroyer. The Norwegians said that the U-boat was about 1,700 tons gross and was built in 1915 at Stettin. She was about 275 feet long, had two three-inch guns on deck and carried a crew of seventy men.
