A statement by Robert Crawford that unless the police kept stray dogs from destroying his property in Paradise Row would be to take the matter in his own hands and "use a rifle" was made this morning at a committee meeting of the Common Council, when he appeared to urge the paving for Paradise row and proper police protection for that part of the city.

While some said that they could still call themselves the G. W. V. A., others maintained that there was no such thing now in the province and the only authorized soldiers' organization here was the Carleton League of the British Empire Service Branch.

MACKREL STRIKE AT MOUTH OF BAY

Good Catches Reported From Several Places—Schools Off Nova Scotia

Mackerel have struck in fairly large quantities at several points in the southern Bay of Fundy. In one day the Cranberry Island trap pursued 77 barrels; Burns Point, 45; Sanford, 30; and Beaver Island, eight. Drifters this week report many mackerel, the boats averaging six barrels each daily off Wood's Harbor and other places. Large supplies are expected in this city within the next few days.

On the eastern coast of Nova Scotia large schools of mackerel are reported 30 miles off shore. Bad weather and dark nights, when the phosphorescence from the long lines of twine from half a hundred nets frightens the fish away, has hindered the industry in some localities.

The Gloucester, Mass., seiner Catherine Burke, which was off Halifax last week, returned home with 77,000 pounds of mackerel, part of which catch was taken off the United States coast. Prices in Boston have declined at the wharves to five and six cents a pound.

His Worship said it had been agreed to take up the building by-law this morning. Commissioner Bullock asked if the by-law had been submitted to the city solicitor and Commissioner Harding said it had.

Commissioner Harding moved section by section consideration. Commissioner Frink seconded. Mr. Sanford suggested that the by-law be passed if the interested ones would make their suggestions in writing to the common clerk and that official pass them on to the by-law committee and later the council consider the revised law, if the committee accepted any of the suggestions.

Major White thought this suggestion a good one. Commissioner Harding expressed his willingness to withdraw his motion, but Commissioner Frink objected, and on a vote being taken the motion was lost. Major White and Commissioner Wigmore and Harding voted against it. Mr. Sanford's plan was adopted.

Commissioner Frink moved that the commissioner of public works be authorized to pay from general revenue any necessary expenses in connection with the revision. This was lost. It was decided to take the matter up again at the first committee meeting in July.

Robert Crawford said he was representing property owners in Paradise Row who would like to have conditions improved. The street surface was bad and there was very little police protection. He wanted to know what the legal status of these dogs was, and if the police were going to look after them if they were not, then he would take the matter in his own hands and use a rifle.

Major White said they had no legal right on the street and even a licensed dog had no right to run at large. He asked if the police had the control, and Commissioner Harding said that was a question he did not want to discuss at the meeting.

W. N. Collins, who had lived in Paradise row for 33 years. The street was in a bad condition at present. He thought the public works department were doing what they could to keep it in repair, but paving was needed.

Commissioner Frink said he felt the complaint of the residents of Paradise row was justified, but the cry was for economy and bond issues were being avoided as far as possible. He thought the city had made a mistake when the auditor's plan was turned down.

JUDGE FORBES ENTHUSIASTIC OVER CHURCH COUNCIL

Speaks of Montreal Meetings From Which He Has Just Returned

"You couldn't tell one from the other" remarked Hon. G. Forbes in stating how the members of the former Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist churches attending the General Council of the United Church of Canada in Montreal had become part of the Water Carriers' work, and he said to be out to wash away the sting of that defeat. In the City and County League, the Shantlers, Dr. Veniot said the negotiations were begun in 1924, when he was head of the New Brunswick Government, and that this morning he was at the last session of the Legislature. Dr. Veniot said, he reminded Premier Baxter that C. N. R. taxes were not to be increased.

That the general plan under which it is expected the Canadian National Railways will pay into the provincial treasury taxes on the corporation properties was devised by Hon. J. Veniot, the former premier said today in an interview with a Times-Star reporter.
