Ross Johnson, manager of the Port of Bristol, spoke of the improvements ef- fected and under contemplation there. He said the facilities afforded by the three lines now sailing thence to Cana- dian ports had developed the dominion trade to a considerable figure. But there had been no corresponding development with Australasia owing to the insuffic- ient supply of tonnage and the uncer- tainty of sailings. Sccretary Musgrave of the London Chamber of Commerce reported the benefits from the dissemination of in- formation from the dominions by trade to commissioners and the imperial govern- ment, concerning openings for trade and tenders. Sir A. Bateman said that it must be a delicate question to determine whether or not information supplied by foreign members of the chamber of commerce was entirely correct, to which a witness creptied that they exercised similar dis- cretion to that of a government depart- ment. RECENT WEDDINGS Walter F.
