It is much better, therefore, that business should be narrowed down to a minimum, for a year or two, than that large operations should be carried on at loss of both money and business prestige. The Miramichi has always occupied an enviable position as a lumber port. Its George McLeod, wood trade, beginning with the export of small quantities of timber, which required the most simple appliances in its preparation, has increased in volume, year by year, for more than three quar ters of a century, calling into existence the great milling establishments of the the commercial enterprise and mechanical skill of the Province. Its lumber parties. manufacturers have, hitherto, conducted their business in such a manner as to place the reputation of the Miramichi on a par with that of St. John and Quebec in the great wood markets abroad—a distinction of which they should be jealous when there are indications that it may be jeopardized. They have equalled, or, speaking relatively, surpassed the lumber merchants of the other great ports in proving their solid business ability and enterprise-now, let them show that they possess also the business caution which the condition of the wood market is calculated to teach, and take the lead in checking the ab normal supply which threatens to render the lumber business worse than unprofitable. We know it will cost much o accomplish the desired end, but it is better that some sacrifices should be nade now and the necessary check be voluntarily applied, than that the duty should be enforced by the unpleasant and imperative logic of a series of transactions which may leave nothing behind save magnificent milling estab-
