MOST SUCCESSFUL MEET IN 25 YEARS

Supreme Council T. of H. and T. Brings Convention to Close

The Supreme Council, Temple of Honor and Temperance, brought to a close yesterday afternoon the most successful meeting held in the twenty-five years of its existence.

The delegates returned to their homes yesterday. Others will follow today by train.

The steamer May Queen with the Templars, the visiting delegates and their friends on board left Indiantown at 2 p. m. No band accompanied the excursion as the employers of the bandmen could not let them off work on account of the half holiday today.

The steamer proceeded to a point about five miles above Watters' Landing and returned to that place.

The military officers then took charge of the boys and put them through half an hour's drill. Capt. H. J. Smith and Sergt. Doe of the 62nd Fusiliers were in command. The manner in which the lads went through many difficult manoeuvres elicited applause from the spectators who occupied vantage points on the higher ground.

Inspection and a march past concluded the drill, after which one minute addresses were delivered by the officers of the Supreme Council. The boys, William Brown, P. W. A. of La Tour Section, and Beverly Appleby, W. A. of Alexandria Section, tied for first prize of five dollars offered for attendance at drills and general good work.

After refreshments had been served the steamer left Watters' Landing for St. John. At Indiantown wharf the members of the Supreme Council and their ladies gathered in the cabin of the steamer. Addresses were delivered by Hon. D. I. Robinson and Rev. Dr. Woodruff, in which was expressed the appreciation of the visitors on account of the treatment they had received. John B. Eagles and Dr. Roberts responded on behalf of the local Templars.

TEACHES WORKING GIRLS TO ELUDE WIVES OF MEN

School in Chicago instructs Them How to Cut Employers Society, Freeze Handsome Floorwalkers and Treat Conductors and Elevator Men.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—How to protect the innocent working girl from the lure of man has appealed so strongly to Mrs. T. Verette Morse that she is conducting a school in the McClurg Building.

Twelve graduates are putting into practice the theories of Mrs. Morse regarding the best way for a small paid girl to handle her employer.

How to treat a street car conductor. How to cut an elevator starter. How to act in the presence of a handsome floor walker.

How to deman oneself toward a man so lacking of understanding as to advertise for a "bright girl."

"FREEZE THE FLOOR-WALKER." Here are the answers of Mrs. Morse in the form in which she conveys them to her pupils.

"A girl is not called on to speak to a street car conductor at any time, unless it is to call his attention to a mistake in charge or to ask him for a transfer. Either of these things can be done in a few words and in a lady-like, dignified way that will produce any reply on the part of the conductor."

"Our class in the freezing of handsome floor-walkers is our pride. The operation is delicate and not easily mastered. But by the raising or lowering of an eyelash a floor-walker may be trapped in his tracks, because he is afraid of being reported to his superiors."

"There should be no accepting or giving of invitations between a girl and her employer. Only this hard and fast rule will prevent episodes which too often have blighted lives in the Loop. (The Loop is the name of the business district of Chicago.) All personalities should be kept at a distance. If a gentleman must call on a lady, let him call at her home, and not at her place of business."

HOW TO DRESS. "The shop girl's apparel should be simple, but artistic. An artistic gown is always a good thing in color— that sort of gown, however, that never attracts attention on the street. But, after all, the point more than anything else to be considered is the fact of a morning girl leaving her home for the first time to take up a business career. If she understands, she will be safe, but few understand. First, she has to differentiate between the home and the business life. Mrs. Eliza Young, Superintendent of the Schools, is a living example of what a girl can do if she starts out right. Properly, a girl should be just as skilful down town as at home."

Each Rifle Fixed. Each man's rifle was fixed. A double life of strikers deployed and rapidly surrounded the strikers. A few of the men wandered away and escaped the searching expedition. A number took refuge in an old frame building at the corner of McIntyre and McIntyre streets and officers called to the men to clear out. Sergt. Major Sparks, of the C. M. R. took a detail of six men with fixed rifles and rushed into the house. The men hurried out various exits and were not molested.

Chief of Police Dadds, of Fort William, had half a dozen uniformed officers ready and as soon as the lines were around the crowd the police began rapid search of the strikers for weapons. As the men were silent, the Greeks speaking occasionally in their native tongue, but offering no resistance. Two pot metal pistols of small calibre were picked up in the gutter where the owners had dropped them when they were covered what was being done. When half a dozen men had been examined one burly Greek was found with something bulging from his foot-leg. Chief Dadds drew forth an ugly looking six shooter.

The Chief called to Police Magistrate Pawling. "What shall we do with this man? He has a weapon." "Take him to jail," responded the Magistrate. While two policemen hustled the prisoner over to a special detail, a platoon of twenty regulars stepped forward on the double quick with their rifles all ready. The strikers had seen the regulars place loaded shells in their guns a moment before and knew they meant business. In fact the soldiers were ordered to load and make ready with considerable awe. After being drawn up around the strikers as if to intimidate bold spirits. This business-like proceeding was witnessed in silence, many Greeks remaining within a few feet of the riflemen. As soon as the series had been completed the main body of troops were broken up into small squads and a house to house search of strikers began. Some arms were found and confiscated and small quantities of liquor destroyed.

UNCLE WALT THE POETIC PHILOSOPHER

The ships are sailing overhead; they float upon the gale, their wings and their humps outspread; and I shall let them sail; it's a pleasant thing to sport above the highest tree but this old car, where I am, is good enough for me. The aeronauts have availed that it's a joyous thing, to ride the zephyrus like a bird that soars on tireless wing; that such experience has worth it is not, and I see, but this old trusty, old earth, is good enough for me. It's nice to win enduring fame, and medals by the peck; but I consider my fat frame, and likewise my fat neck, more useful than awards from thrones, or all the kings that be, and this old earth, while I have bones, is good enough for me.

FORT WILLIAM RIOTERS QUIET AS LAMBS NOW

FORT WILLIAM, Aug. 13.—Vigorous work of controlling the strikers and restoring business along the big docks of the C. M. R. began a few minutes after a special troop train arrived from Winnipeg at six o'clock today. By seven o'clock the strikers had been dispersed, and the docks were as busy as usual.

The situation was in hand when the C. M. R. arrived. The 24th was commanded by Major E. Wayland, adjutant. He had 150 men thrown around the docks, concentrating at the corner of McIntyre and McIntyre streets, where they were confronted by about 300 strikers. The men were quiet, but maintained a menacing, bold front, coming right up to the muzzle of the militia men's guns and bayonets. They were silent and grim. Greeks predominated and seem to keep their Hungarian and Italian brother strikers in the background. It was nearly 8 o'clock when a special troop train, had consisted with Colonel Steele, commanding the tenth military district.

Col. Steele had established his headquarters, an order was hurriedly issued to drive the strikers from the thoroughfare, where they had congregated.

Each man's rifle was fixed. A double life of strikers deployed and rapidly surrounded the strikers. A few of the men wandered away and escaped the searching expedition. A number took refuge in an old frame building at the corner of McIntyre and McIntyre streets and officers called to the men to clear out. Sergt. Major Sparks, of the C. M. AMUSEMENTS

BIG MATINEE TODAY AND GREAT FUN TONIGHT.

Today will be a gala matinee at the H. H. H. and the children will certainly enjoy themselves with Prof. Hampton's miniature circus. Mothers should remember that there is ample room for hundreds of baby carriages, and as the H. H. H. is on the ground floor they can wheel their carriages right in. This will be the last chance for the children to see the dog-monkey act. The act goes as Prof. Hampton closes his engagement here tonight. Hampton and Hehr also close their engagement tonight and they have a splendid song programme. There's going to be the same tan at the H. H. H. tonight. Yesterday two well-known travelers were discussing Prof. Hampton's educated goose. The argument grew warm and one declared he could stump the goose by asking him to pick out certain numbers that it was all in the way the professor asked the goose. The other party offered to bet a box of cigars that the goose would pick out the figures. The bet was accepted and the fun takes place tonight. The goose will surprise the traveler, so be on hand for the fun. NICKEL TODAY AND MONDAY.

This afternoon at the Nickel one of the best half holiday programmes of the summer is forthcoming. The Bush family will play at 3.30 and 4.30 and Mr. Buchanan is to sing at every show. At 4.30 the Bush children will play his accompaniment. In addition to this the following pictures will be shown: "The Rape of the Sabine," "The Story of the Courtiers," "Brown's Moving Day," comedy, and "The Rival Sycophants." Monday the Grand March from Wagner's "Tannhauser" with Nickel Orchestra extra. Mr. Robert Buchanan will remain for a day or so longer at the request of the management and of the people and his Monday number will be that charming selection, "Dr. Those Tears." Nickel patrons are still talking of the delightful music of this week and will be glad to know the Bush Family and Mr. Buchanan are remaining longer.
