

Comprehensive, nation-wide scheme now being put into operation, designed to give needed stimulus to construction industry and thereby give employment;

seeks, as well, to further human well-being and happiness through provision of comfortable, healthful living quarters;

Scheme designed to assist in construction of:

- (a) houses to be owned by families of limited means;
- (b) housing accommodation in urban centres to be leased at less than economic rentals;

In addition to direct financial assistance provided to aid housing:

- (a) Government has undertaken to pay a substantial proportion of real estate taxes, over a three year period, on new houses erected before the end of 1940;
- (b) All materials entering into the construction of houses and other buildings have been exempted from sales tax;
